PUMP PRIMERS JUMP GUN WITH SPENDING PLANS

Get Started Before Bill Becomes Law.

Washington, D. C., June 4.—(AP)—The administration has started its lending-spending pump priming program, although congress still has a week's work to do on the $3,617,905,000 bill that will supply most of the funds.

The senate passed its version of the bill in a midnight session last night by a vote of 60 to 10, and the legislation now goes to conference.

Officials disclosed today that the WPA was using funds already on hand to create additional work relief jobs at the rate of approximately 30,000 a week under the expanded spending policy, which is awaiting final action.

Expect Increase in Rolls.

If congress finally approves the $1,425,000,000 which the lending-spending bill now carries for WPA, they said, they expect an average of 2,800,000 persons to be given relief employment in the next seven months. This could compare with an enrollment of 2,679,656 on May 28 and an officially expected winter peak of 3,000,000 or more.

Most of the additional jobs provided since May 28, it was said, were in large industrial communities where the unemployment situation was most acute.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace also has taken steps to put the administration's relief program into effect without waiting for congress to finish action on the big lending-spending bill.

Expand Gifts of Food.

He directed the federal surplus commodities corporation yesterday to canvass needs for food and clothing among persons on relief. With funds already available, the corporation is to expand its purchases of surplus farm products for distribution free to those on relief.

If the pending bill goes through in its present senate approved form, $50,000,000 more of new WPA money may be used for such purchases.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation already is receiving applications for long term loans for business and industry, and officials of the Public Works administration are getting ready to start new PWA projects.

2,000 Projects Planned.

PWA engineers said they intended to recommend allotment of funds for more than 2,000 projects, estimated to cost in excess of $650,000,000, at the outset of the new program. Only $300,000,000 in federal grants and $60,000,000 in federal loans would be required for these projects.

The engineers explained that the projects they favored for immediate action were among 2,714 previously approved by PWA but held up when its activities were curtailed.

[Included in the projects for immediate action is the $14,000,000 Chicago subway grant.]

Reports from PWA regional officers said they had been swamped with telegrams, letters, telephone, and personal calls from mayors and other local officials concerning additional proposed projects.

Conferences Begin Tuesday.

Members of congress expressed conflicting opinions as to whether the house and senate would have difficulty reconciling differences in the conference committee sessions, which are expected to start next Tuesday.

Senate appropriations committee members predicted the house would accede to most changes the senate wrote into the measure.

Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, said there was no doubt that a senate approved item of $212,000,000 for additional farm benefits would be enacted.

Expect Slum Loan Approval.

The house also appeared likely to join the senate in increasing by $300,000,000 the existing authorization for slum clearance loans.

Informed members of the house appropriations committee expressed belief, however, that it would oppose vigorously a number of senate changes in the bill. They referred particularly to a senate amendment nullifying the present requirement that the WPA allocate its funds so that no deficiencies would occur.

Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas, the Democratic house leader, said that he saw no reason why congress could not complete its work and go home by the end of next week.

POLICE AND FIRE HEROES TO GIVE SHOW OF THRILLS

Time: July 17; Place: Soldiers' Field.

Every day in Chicago policemen risk their lives to protect law abiding citizens from gunmen and other dangerous criminals.

Every day Chicago firemen risk their lives to guard the safety of householders and property.

It's routine work for them. They don't look for thanks. Chicagoans now will have a chance to witness the work of the city's defenders. They will have an opportunity to see what their policemen and firemen do in the constant fight on crime and fire, and how they do it.

More than a Thousand in Show.

The place will be Soldiers' field; the time, Sunday afternoon, July 17. In that field and starting at 2 p. m. that day more than a thousand policemen and firemen will give a dramatic three hour show, depicting their work. The show will be given with the joint coöperation of the city police and fire departments, the Chicago park district, and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

It will be a swiftly moving panoramic exhibition of the every-day chores of policemen and firemen. There will be dozens of exciting features that will seem so realistic you'll forget they're only makebelieve. There will be a mock battle with bandits. There will be a thrilling pursuit of hoodlums by police squads. There will be fire sirens screaming, fire trucks racing, and daring rescues of women and children.

Mayor Indorses Show.

Mayor Kelly gave the show his strongest indorsement last night.

"It will be Chicago's greatest joint police and fire show," he said. "More important, it will give Chicagoans a chance to turn out en masse and cheer these men who daily protect our homes without thought of personal safety."

The program as arranged yesterday provides for a colorful motorized parade of police and firemen to the field. A military exhibition will follow. Chicago's firemen and policemen are trained in military maneuvers.

Then will begin a series of impressive tableaux. In one police will trap a gang of desperadoes in a hideout. They will attack with machine guns and tear gas bombs. There will be a sharp exchange of gunfire, then the grand rush that wipes out the besieged hoodlums.

Firemen to Scale Building.

In another exhibition, firemen will scale a burning building, rescuing its occupants, and will display the use of water towers and automatic ladders. From these two acts alone, Chicagoans will be able to perceive the definite science—and danger—of their public defenders' work.

There will be a solemn interlude when the audience will be asked to stand quietly. Then the roll of Chicago's firemen and policemen who have died during the year will be read from the top of a 60 foot fire tower.

Popular prices will be charged for admission. The proceeds are to be shared by the benevolent societies of the police and fire departments and the park district.

The event will be in charge of Capt. John Prendergast, chief of the uniformed police; First Deputy Fire Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney, Chief Evan Kelly, and Assistant Chief James Eagan of the park district special service department, Police Lieutenant Harry Fulmer, and Harry O'Rourke, secretary to Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes.

EARL, 8, GIVES PUZZLING PHONE BILL HIS O. K.

Memphis, Tenn., June 4.—(AP)—The telephone bill received today at the R. E. Luten residence carried the following preplexing charges:

"Call to Gov. White, Jackson, Miss., 95 cents. Call to Gov. Browning, Nashville, Tenn., 90 cents. Report charges, call to White House, Washing, D. C."

Earl Luten, 8 years old, called in for questioning by his parents, quickly cleared up the mystery.

"I just wanted to talk with them," said Earl, explaining that while he did converse with the Governors, he was unsuccessful in his attempt to speak with the President.

Police Captain Gets a Fine for Imitating a Cop

It can hardly be doubted, in view of what has happened, that Capt. John Cholewa of the Phoenix village police hitched his galluses to the wrong star.

The captain [and his title out Phoenixwards is incontestible] met State Highway Policemen Francis Andrews and John Howe at 159th and Halsted streets in the suburb the evening of May 23. They were questioning a truck driver.

"I want this driver," said the captain, who was not in uniform.

"And who are you?" demanded Andrews.

"I'll show you who I am," retorted the captain.

Complete with Star, Gun.

Throwing back a lapel, he proudly displayed a star. On it was inscribed "Thornton Township Police." The state highway policemen inspected it carefully and asked if he had a pistol. Capt. Cholewa said he had.

"There ain't any Thornton township police," declared Howe. "Give me that gun and come along."

So, waving the truck driver on, they took the captain to the state police headquarters at 139th street and Cicero avenue, where they charged him with impersonating a police officer.

"You can't do that," Cholewa protested. "How can an officer impersonate himself?"

Yesterday, when the case was called before Justice of the Peace Walter Dohl of Markham, the state police let it be known that the resplendent star of Thornton township was a bit of metal that William F. Propper, township supervisor, has distributed to his friends. It didn't mean anything, they said, except that Propper liked the wearer.

Hurrying to Find a Robber.

Capt. Cholewa explained. He said he had a Phoenix star, too, but that by mistake he had left it on his uniform; he was trying to find a robber who had held up the Phoenix postoffice. To this the state police replied that the robber was captured five hours before the Thornton township star had been flashed on them.

"You're fined $5 and costs for impersonating a police officer," said Justice of the Peace Dohl.

And so Lieut. Morris Schwartz of the state highway force confiscated the captain's pistol and the shining little star.

DYKSTRA 'THUMBS' A RIDE AND REACHES IOWA CLASS REUNION

Iowa City, Ia., June 4.—(AP)—Clarence Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin, was on his way to a reunion of his class [1903] at the University of Iowa today when his car slipped into a ditch at West Liberty, Ia.

While his chauffeur was going for aid, Dykstra stepped up on the roadside to try his luck at thumbing. He finally "clicked" with two women and a girl. "Where are you going?" they asked the hitch-hiker as their car came to a halt.

"To the University of Iowa commencement," he replied.

"Well, we don't usually pick up hitch-hikers," one of the women said. "O, I don't want to be picked up—I just want a ride," Dykstra replied. He got the ride.

PROTEST POPCORN PEDDLER PLIGHT; PLENTY PEEVED

Four venders of popcorn, 400 members of the Hellenic American Social club of Evanston, and 98 other Evanstonians are popping about the suburb's new ordinance which prohibits the sale of popcorn on Sheridan road and the area a block west of that highway.

The four sellers maintain that they can't make a living under the ordinance, since the Evanston appetite for this sort of cereal is confined to the Sheridan road neighborhood. The social club holds that they will have to go on relief if there isn't a modification of the law. The 98 other Evanstonians, all residing near Sheridan road, have signed a petition stating that they want their popcorn back.

City officials said that it was too bad, but the ordinance was designed to prevent the peddling of popcorn in places where the wagons would create a trafic menace.

Records Show Physicians Outlive Rest of Population

Springfield, Ill., June 4.—(AP)—The public health department compared the mortality records on physicians and surgeons with those of the entire state population today and found that doctors were healthier than other persons of corresponding age. The death rate among doctors was 19 per 1,000 last year, compared with 21 in the general population of equal age. Also, the average age of the 222 physicians who died in Illinois last year was 65.4 years against an average life expectancy of about 60 for the entire population.

Newark Mob Eggs Thomas; Stops Speech

Newark, N. J., June 4.—(AP)—Norman Thomas, long time leader of the Socialist party in this country, was showered with rotten eggs today when 100 men and a brass band broke up a Socialist rally in Military park.

Marching four abreast through a crowd of about 500 persons, the contingent shouted Thomas down and forced police to escort him from the scene. Many of the marchers wore war veterans' caps and carried American flags.

Police Quell Fighters.

Thomas sympathizers and their foes got into fist fights and mounted police, patrolmen, and detectives wielded night sticks to break up the mêlée. The platform on which Thomas stood was wrecked.

Thomas, his hair and face streaked with egg yolks, stood on a park bench during the disorder and pleaded for a chance to speak. Whenever he started, the band played louder and the yells increased. Finally, Deputy Police Chief Phillip Sebold stood up beside Thomas and announced: "On my advice, this meeting is disbanded."

Thomas Accuses Officers.

Escorted by police on horseback and afoot—they marched down the middle of the street—Thomas went to the Socialist headquarters and there lashed out at the police and charged that the opposition force was mobilized through the influence of Mayor Frank Hague of nearby Jersey City, with whom he is engaged in a free speech controversy.

He charged that the meeting was called off at police direction and said the police were indifferent, or inefficient, or in collusion with the mob. Deputy Sebold brushed aside Thomas' criticism of the police, but said the rally was stopped at the suggestion of the Socialist leader.

C. I. O. Pickets Surround Hospital in Labor Fight

Paris, Ill., June 4.—[Special.]—Surrounding the Paris hospital, filled with patients, 100 pickets for a common labor union affiliated with the C. I. O. today attempted to intimidate workers and halt construction work on a large addition to the building. Police enforced order, permitting work to go forward temporarily. The issues involved are union recognition and work for union members only.

Jap Air Bombs Kill 1,000 in Canton Raids

BULLETIN.

HONGKONG, June 5 (Sunday).—(U. P.)—Casualties in yesterday's Japanese air raid on Canton were placed today at 1,000 persons killed and 1,000 wounded. Hundreds were buried alive. This brought the casualty list in the repeated bombings of Canton in the last week to a total of 5,000 killed or injured.

CANTON, China, June 4.—(AP)—Japanese air raiders continued their bombings of this industrial city today with two devastating attacks.

Officials feared the casualties would exceed those of a week ago, when they estimated 750 persons were killed and 1,350 wounded.

Today's raids marked the sixth day of attacks on Canton in the last eight days. Only on Wednesday and Thursday were there respites. The raids came close on the heels of American and British denunciations of air attacks on civilians. Only yesterday the American state department, with the approval of President Roosevelt, called such attacks barbarous.

[In Tokio Domei, the Japanese news agency, indicated that the Japanese government would not alter its tactics. It referred to a foreign office statement in which the May 28 bombing of Canton was described as having been confined to military establishments. In Spain also it was indicated the American-British censures would be ignored when rebel flyers bombed Barcelona and other cities, killing twenty-two and wounding thirty-six persons.]

40 Planes in First Attack.

About 40 war planes took part in the first raid on Canton today. They appeared over the city shortly after 10 a. m. and unloaded their explosive cargoes for 35 minutes before heavy clouds and rain ended the attack.

Thirty bombs fell near the municipal government offices in the central section of the city and the Taishatou railway station, near which there is a refugee camp.

Damage was heavy and many persons were crushed beneath falling masonry when buildings were wrecked by three missiles in Winghon road, Canton's main street. Saichuen, where electric power and waterworks are situated, also was bombed. The steel and concrete Pearl river bridge was one of the objectives of the flyers, but was not seriously damaged.

The raiders, ignoring foreign protests, flew over the Shameen international quarter and released explosives on nearby Chinese buildings.

Hospitals Are Overcrowded.

Hospitals were filled to overflowing and doctors scarcely had time to attend to one lot of wounded before another arrived. Witnesses described heartrending scenes of sorrow, with hundreds of mangled corpses lying in the streets in populous parts of the city far away from military defenses. Many of the victims were women and

PROPOSE NEW LICENSE FEES TO AID RELIEF

Bill Up in Assembly This Week.

A state law designed to give cities and villages throughout Illinois the power to license for revenue all businesses and many personal services is the backbone of the Kelly-Horner plan to raise new millions for public relief.

For the first time in the state's history, municipalities would be given the power to license for revenue only; heretofore municipal license laws have been limited to measures for regulation. The bill will be introduced in the general assembly this week.

Increased annual revenue for Chicago, according to Mayor Kelly's estimate, would be about $3,000,000. However, tax experts hesitated last night to predict the ultimate possibilities of such legislation as a revenue producer. Licensing only for regulation last year, the city raised $8,479,481, and this year increases in existing fees are expected to bring in an additional $400,000.

Taxing Powers Increased.

It was pointed out that the proposed law would grant greatly increased power to levy taxes on private enterprise and that larger sums than those now contemplated could be raised simply by increasing the scale of fees from time to time. The fees will be set by the cities under the proposed law.

Joseph F. Grossman, first assistant corporation counsel, who is drafting the proposed legislation, said he believes he has included all types of business by careful classification.

These classifications are:

BUSINESS SERVICE — Auditing, accounting, collecting, banking, finance, advertising, and other independent services that are rendered in aid of commerce and industry.

CLEANING AND REPAIRING SERVICE—Laundries, cleaning and dyeing, polishing, floor sanding, window washing, and businesses employing individuals in these trades.

GARAGE SERVICE—Servicing or storing all vehicles.

Barber and Beauty Shops.

PERSONAL SERVICE — Barbershops, beauty parlors, manicuring establishments, or any enterprise for the comfort, convenience and appearance of citizens.

SPORTS—Boxing, wrestling, football, baseball, dance contests, exhibitions of skill and endurance contests. [Movies and plays are not included because they already are assessed an amusement tax].

STORAGE—Cold storage, furniture storage, vaults and safety deposit boxes, and grain elevators.

CONTRACTORS—Firms dealing in construction, decorating, remodeling, furnishing or equipping.

MANUFACTURERS — Concerns where merchandise is made, processed, assembled or otherwise prepared for sale.

Department Stores Included.

RETAILERS—Any place where articles are sold for consumption or use by the purchaser. This includes all large department stores.

WHOLESALERS—Any place where articles are sold for resale later.

GRAPHIC ARTS — Photography, etching, and all forms of printing, or enterprises dealing with the transfer of an impression from one surface to another. This includes newspaper publishing plants as well as job printers and sign painters.

The bill was devised by Mayor Kelly and city financial experts to offset a demand in other sections of the state for an increase in the real estate tax levy. The mayor has opposed burdening property owners further, and when it appeared that the assembly might consider such a step, he hurried to Springfield with several suggestions which he laid before Gov. Horner. At a conference last week they agreed upon the terms of the bill as a substitute for legislation raising real estate taxes.

May Use Fuel Tax Funds.

The mayor is also considering a proposal to divert $2,500,000 annually from the city's share of the motor fuel tax fund for relief purposes.

The proposed law provides that all revenue from the new licenses must be used for relief. Those businesses or services now being taxed through regulatory fees will continue to pay only these fees, and the money will continue to go into the corporate fund. The cash that Chicago raised last year and expects to get this year from licenses is necessary for expenses of operating the city government and cannot be utilized for anything else. Any reclassification of various enterprises will not affect this division of the revenue between corporate and relief funds, Grossman explained.

The bill does not include provision for taxing professional services. And there is no intention of taxing individual employés who may work at one of the skilled crafts mentioned. An auditor would have to pay a fee if he was in business for himself, Grossman explained, but not if he was employed in an office.

Uniform Rate by Cities.

Each municipality would be permitted to determine its own fee scale, but the measure as now drawn provides that all businesses or services within a city and in a single classification must be taxed at a uniform rate. This can apply only to the new licenses or to those licensed previously if the necessary revision of old ordinances is made and they are included under the new system. Revision of ordinances now in force is at the discretion of local authorities.

No reference is made to the manner of enforcement. Grossman said that unless the legislature makes some new provision for this, the former method of enforcement will continue. Citizens who refuse to get licenses will be forced to suspend business and they will be subject to a fine for every day they operate in violation of the law.

If the measure is passed by the assembly and signed by Gov. Horner it will become effective July 1. The city council then will draw the ordinances necessary to start collection. However, there is a clause in the legislation which will enable the city to issue tax anticipation warrants against the new fees as soon as the law is approved. This would make cash available in short order for the share of relief costs which Chicago must bear.

The city tried in 1923 to get legislative enactment to broaden its licensing power, but a bill which passed both houses was vetoed by Gov. Len Small.

REYNOLDS LEADS FOR U. S. SENATE IN NO. CAROLINA

Raleigh, N. C., June 4.—(AP)—Senator Robert R. Reynolds was more than 50,000 votes ahead of Representative Frank W. Hancock Jr. in returns tabulated late tonight from the Democratic primary for United States senate, a contest between two avowed supporters of the Roosevelt administration. With 1,301 precincts reported of 1,860 Hancock had 137,743 votes against 192,565 for Senator Reynolds.

In the 10th congressional district, in which Representative A. L. Bulwinkle of Gastonia was opposed by Hamilton C. Jones, Charlotte attorney, whom he defeated two years ago, the vote tabulated from 197 of 261 precincts gave Bulwinkle 27,250 and Jones 24,564.

Kentucky Democrat Wins.

Louisville, Ky., June 4.—(AP)—Joe B. Bates, Democrat, won by 2,400 majority from Dr. James Cecil Sparks, Republican, today in a special election to fill the vacancy in the eighth Kentucky congressional district, according to unofficial returns complete from all but one of the 20 counties in the district. The vote was 21,244 to 18,844.

Deadlocked Murder Jury Discharged; New Trial Set

The jury deliberating the fate of George [Oily] Kubanda, 21 years old, and Victor Homontoski, 20, both of 2154 Superior street, on a charge of murder, was discharged last night by Judge Joseph Sabath because of a deadlock. Judge Sabath ordered a new trial to start Tuesday. Kubanda and Homontoski are accused of killing William Pawlick, 22, 814 North Campbell avenue, in front of 837 North Western avenue last March 5.

KILLED BY STREET CAR.

Nicholas Metropulos, 63 years old, 3444 South Marshfield avenue, a popcorn vender, who was struck by a street car yesterday at Ashland avenue and 32d street, died early today in the Southtown hospital. Motorman C. T. Jensen said Metropulos appeared suddenly from behind a parked automobile.

DIXMOOR JUDGE ACCUSED OF AUTO LICENSE RACKET

Two Tell of Paying for Pass Cards.

Questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Richard B. Austin, two colored residents of the southern suburb, Dixmoor, related yesterday how they were able, by paying 50 cents fees to a police magistrate, to drive their automobiles for weeks without buying state license plates.

Charles A. Braun.

Austin said he would ask State's Attorney Courtney tomorrow for permission to have the grand jury make a full investigation of the conduct of the magistrate, Charles A. Braun of Dixmoor.

One of the witnesses, Clarence Stevenson, of 144th and Paulina streets, was arrested May 22 by state highway policemen for not having a license. He was arraigned before Police Magistrate Louis E. Haht of Riverdale on May 27 and made his plea for leniency.

Shows 50 Cent Card.

He displayed a card which, he said, had been made out by Magistrate Braun. It certified that Stevenson had filed with Braun an application for a state license and that he had deposited $11 to pay for it. But the card also bore a notation, "License fee to be forwarded by applicant."

"I bought this car on May 2," said Stevenson. "I gave the judge [Braun] 50 cents and he said I could drive anywhere in Illinois with it, but that I had better get a new one about every ten days. I got the second card from him on May 17 and gave him another 50 cents for it."

Stevenson insisted that Magistrate Braun told him he needn't ever pay the $11 state fee so long as he had the cards. When Police Magistrate Haht heard the story he communicated with the state's attorney and the investigation was started.

Yesterday Stevenson repeated what he had told in court. He also gave the name of Henry Knight, colored, 14333 Paige avenue, Dixmoor, a special policeman in the village. Knight was taken before Austin and displayed a card, purporting to show that he had deposited $7 with Braun for a state license. He said that he had paid the magistrate 50 cents on May 6 for the card and that he had not paid anything else. He was without state license plates.

Braun's Side of Story.

Police Magistrate Braun insisted that all he did was make out the applications for the men and inform them they had to send to the secretary of state for the licenses. He denied telling them they needed no plates so long as they had his cards. Stevenson's case is to come up before Magistrate Haht again tomorrow and the Chicago Motor club will have a representative present to assist in further investigation.

The treatment of autoists in Dixmoor has been investigated frequently. Three policemen of the suburb spend much of their time making arrests for trafic violations. In 1936 state highway policemen halted autoists at the village line and warned them of the unusual severity of the police and the heavy fines—and costs—assessed by Braun. Later the magistrate's custom of having motorists deposit personal property as security for fines was brought to official attention and he promised to stop it.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 4.—[Special.]—Although only 20 months old, Richard Battaglia was taken to the Police Emergency hospital today for the fifth time. This time he had cut his hand when he broke a drinking glass. TWO O'DONNELLS ACCUSED OF PLOT TO 'BORROW' $100

John and Leo O'Donnell, brothers of Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, former beer runner, were arrested by the Marquette police yesterday when it was charged that they had attempted to "borrow" $100 from a west side baker by the use of a little duplicity. A companion, James Driscoll, 7300 South Racine avenue, was also arrested.

Rudolph J. Mrizek, a baker at 1801 South California avenue, said that some one representing himself as William Lee, business agent of the Bakery Drivers' union, telephoned him and asked to borrow $100. The caller said that he would send his chauffeur. The baker telephoned the union official and learned that he had not made the call. Then he notified police.

A little later Leo O'Donnell and Driscoll, Mrizek said, entered the shop and said they were sent for the money. The two fled when Lee appeared, but were captured by a police squad. John O'Donnell was seized outside. The brothers gave their address as 8253 Laflin street. They are not connected with any unions and denied the baker's charges.

WOMAN GETS YEAR ON DOPE CHARGE.

Miss Marian Barker, 38 years old, of 4104 Michigan avenue, was sentenced to a year in jail by Judge Joseph B. Hermes yesterday on a charge of possessing narcotics.

WISCONSIN G. O. P. CONVENTION FOR OPEN PRIMARIES

Adopts Pithy Platform of 15 Sentences.

BY THORNTON SMITH.

Fond du Lac, Wis., June 4.—[Special.]—The Republican party of Wisconsin in state convention here today endorsed an open primary with the number of candidates limited only by their own ambitions, and adopted a party platform that was called the most liberal in the party's history.

The convention's action marked the complete abandonment of the old practice of naming candidates by favored leaders in closed caucus. Under the platform adopted, the Republican party can never again be designated as a party of special privilege, state leaders said. It has become, they declared, the party of the people that it was when it was born in the little school house at Ripon, in this county, nearly seventy-five years ago.

Field Day for Candidates.

There was a field day this afternoon for candidates who already have announced their intentions of entering the primaries. A half dozen appeared before the convention in person or by proxies, and received generous applause.

The platform was unusual in two additional phases. It was short and it spent no words in condemnation. Every one knows that the depression was caused by the Roosevelt administration and knows the reasons why both state and national administrations should be condemned, so there's no need to go into that, the platform writers declared.

The document they produced was called a constructive, not a destructive platform. It contained fifteen planks of one sentence each.

For the farmer, it declared for the right to a fair profit and protection against government aided competition.

Defends Right to Organize.

For labor, it declared for the right to organize without coercion and for an equitable share of the earnings of industry. It favored the principle of a tarif alike for farmer, labor, and manufacturer.

It approved the principle of private ownership and the protection of private property and demanded the elimination of government meddling in business.

It endorsed the idea of work for the able bodied and relief for only the needy, administered through state and local government.

The platform approved a pay-as-you-go old age security law and the liberalization of the state old age assistance law.

Candidates for Governor.

Leo F. Nohl, Milwaukee attorney, presented the name of Julius P. Heil, Milwaukee industrialist for governor. James F. Peterson of Medford, farmer candidate, offered his own candidacy.

For the United States senate, Stephen McMahon, Alex Wiley, William H. Stafford, John B. Chapple, and William J. Campbell are definitly in the field.

GILLETTE'S AIDS HIT MEDDLING BY ROOSEVELT SON

Wearin Message Widens Iowa Party Split.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., June 4.—[Special.]—The Iowa Democratic fight between Senator Guy M. Gillette and Representative Otha D. Wearin for the senatorship in Monday's primaries took on new frenzy today.

The "my friend, Otha Wearin" message yesterday of James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, was interpreted by Gillette's friends as further interference in Iowa politics. The split between the rival Democratic camps, which was started by the recent indorsement of Wearin by Harry Hopkins, head of the WPA, seems to have broadened into a chasm.

Senator Gillette, before leaving for his Cherokee home, insisted that President Roosevelt, James A. Farley, and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace are neutral. Among his camp followers, however, the interposition of Jimmy Roosevelt was denounced as further meddling by the so-called kitchen cabinet, embracing Hopkins, Thomas Corcoran, and young Roosevelt.

View Meddling as Attempted Purge.

Gillette's followers view the interference as an attempt to defeat the senator because he voted against the Roosevelt court packing bill.

Wearin capitalized on the James Roosevelt message at a Clinton meeting last night. The missive, sent to E. G. Dunn, United States district attorney at Mason City, was read at the meeting by Wearin, with an intimation that it spoke for itself.

Throughout his campaign Wearin has been distributing a picture of himself and James Roosevelt, taken recently at Harpers Ferry, W. Va.

In the last few days developments have made Gillette favored in the betting.

Editorial Hits Dictatorship.

One blast against dictatorship in Iowa came from the Witness, the official organ of the Catholic archdiocese of Dubuque. It indorsed Gillette's candidacy and elicited much attention. An editorial by the Rev. William Henry Rowan, its editorial chief, said:

"The senatorial election in the Iowa primary is of tremendous importance and all America is watching it.

"Certain forces are trying to purge out Senator Gillette because he resisted the court packing. Except for the court packing Senator Gillette is more New Dealerish than his opponent. The burocrat who made the appeal to the poor on public relief against Gillette is a registered Socialist, according to a celebrated radio orator.

"This is burocracy; this is playing politics with human misery. The court packing brings up the issue of the constitution and the constitution is America.

"The issue then is dictatorship or Democracy."

Blast Aids Gillette.

The Rev. Mr. Rowan was quoted as saying the reference to the burocrat was of Hopkins, and the radio orator he identified as Father Coughlin.

The effect was interpreted as strengthening Senator Gillette in the populous river counties around Dubuque, where much of the population is conservative and of German descent.

Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel's indorsement of Gillette and his blasts last night against Hopkins, whom he charged with unethical action in indorsing Wearin while Hopkins is in charge of WPA relief, has brought the state machine behind Gillette with few exceptions. It is figured there are some 28,000 state employés. The state party organization also is with Gillette, and the politicians regarded Gillette as being in the lead.

Gillette supporters say seeds in behalf of Wearin were sown among WPA employés weeks before Hopkins indorsed the representative. It appears, however, that George Keller, the state WPA administrator, does not look kindly on politics in relief. After Hopkins indorsed Wearin the state administrator mailed to WPA workers copies of the old Hopkins statement to the effect that politics is not mixed in the WPA.

Seek to Get Voters Out.

With five Democratic candidates for senator in the field, one question is whether any one candidate will get 35 per cent of the vote, necessary to a nomination. Otherwise the nomination goes to a state convention.

The fight, however, has concentrated on the Gillette-Wearin struggle. The other candidates have been overshadowed, and the belief here is that the primaries will decide the nomination. What the state's 33,500 WPA workers may do is one uncertain element.

The total Democratic vote in Iowa primaries falls below the Republican vote. Today the Gillette camp put out a notice telling voters who are registered as Republicans but have been voting for Democrats in recent elections that it is their right and duty to vote in the Democratic primaries.

The Republican state committee countered with an appeal to Republicans to stick in their own primaries as a duty to country and party. Under the Iowa law a voter can change his party at any primary simply by calling for the ballot of the party in whose primary he desires to vote and announcing his desire to change.

G. O. P. Holds County Jobs.

In Iowa 66 per cent of the county officers are Republicans. This tends to keep Republicans at home, for the jobs of sherif and other county offices are of importance locally.

For example, in the 1936 primary the total Democratic vote on senator was 141,372, while the Republican poll was 260,204. In the November election that year Roosevelt carried the state by a plurality of 133,779. That year, too, the Democrats elected Senator Clyde L. Herring by a 35,290 plurality, while Gov. Kraschel won by only 2,431.

Looking these figures in the face Republicans view the Democratic controversy with pleasure. They say the prospects look good for November.

Former Senator L. J. Dickinson and Lloyd Thurston are running for the Republican nomination for senator. Dickinson is regarded as leading. In the 1934 congressional campaign he was the chief speaker for the Republican party and carried the ball in many states.

Copeland Assails Meddling.

Washington, D. C., June 4.—(AP)—Senator Royal S. Copeland [D., N. Y.] said today that James Roosevelt had given "another demonstration that the administration is interfering with the freedom of expression of the people at the polls." Copeland referred to a telegram the President's son sent to E. G. Dunn, United States district attorney at Mason City, Ia., which referred to Representative Otha D. Wearin of Iowa as "my friend."

PRIMARY SPLITS CLEAR WAY FOR COALITION MOVE

Elections to Decide Fate of Roosevelt.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 4.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's aggressive undertaking to purge the Democratic party of those senators and representatives who opposed his project to pack the Supreme court not only has divided the Democrats into bitterly hostile factions but has given new impetus to the movement for coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats against the President's policies.

Just as the President by his intervention in Democratic primaries is bent not only upon disciplining refractory Democrats in congress, but upon gaining control of the 1940 Democratic national convention, so the political repercussions of his activities are promoting coalition in the congressional elections this year in certain constituencies which may prove to be only a curtain raiser on coalition on a national scale in 1940.

Returns to Point Way.

That the 1938 and 1940 elections are going to decide the fate of the President's policies and determine the character of our political, social, and economic institutions for decades to come is universally regarded as a self-evident fact. The elections next November alone will show which way the wind of public sentiment is blowing.

If the President succeeds in defeating the proscribed Democrats who have flouted his will, if the Democratic party succeeds in returning to congress majorities not substantially less than its present margin in senate and house the administration will have won an indisputable popular vindication auguring well for its chances in the presidential election of 1940.

Power May Be Checked.

If, however, the Republicans should recapture half a dozen senate and 75 or more house seats and the President should fail to defeat the Democrats he has blacklisted, the doom of his policies would be sealed. Under such circumstances although the Democrats would still retain majorities in both houses the coalition of Republicans and anti-administration Democrats would be strong enough to prevent passage of further radical legislation if not to force modification of that already in force. A check of that nature sustained at the polls by the party in power traditionally forecasts its defeat in the next presidential election.

With these vital factors at stake both the pro-Roosevelt and anti-Roosevelt factions are at each other's throats in the Democratic primaries in many constituencies. The outcome will determine, subject to the election, whether the President is to have a Democratic legislature who will support him all or only part of the time and will go far toward deciding whether the pro-Roosevelt or anti-Roosevelt faction is to name the delegates of the constituency to the 1940 convention.

The President is bringing every ounce of his enormous influence and power to bear to win this contest and is supremely confident of success. As was done successfully in the Democratic primaries in Florida and Oregon, with partial success in Pennsylvania and is now being attempted in Iowa the voters on the federal relief rolls and the beneficiaries of pump priming expenditures are being mobilized to plump for the President's candidates.

The lack of complete success in the Pennsylvania primary is attributed to the fact that the Democratic state machine with its state patronage could command more votes than the federal machine with its relief rolls.

In predicting Democratic victory in 1936 Vice President Garner remarked that "you can't beat four billion dollars," which was the size of the relief and pump priming fund at that time. Now the fund furnished by legislation in process of enactment is to be five billion dollars. The grumbling of Republicans that the President is being provided with the largest campaign fund in all history only evokes the famous Roosevelt grin.

But while the pro-Roosevelt faction has the relief roll voters and beneficiaries of government contracts and the federal patronage, the anti-Roosevelt leaders are relying upon important factors of another character for victory in the contest with the President.

President's Foes Popular.

In the first place each of the nine Democratic senators seeking reëlection who opposed the court packing project is an outstanding, forceful personality, a man who has achieved a large following by his capacity for public service and by his devotion to his oath of office. The independence that caused him despite presidential pressure to oppose the court packing bill because of the belief that it represented a blow at our fundamental scheme of government is expected to bring to his support thousands of Democrats who otherwise would take no part in the primaries.

Coalition is another factor counting heavily in favor of the Democrats proscribed by the President. Republicans in unprecedented numbers are participating in the Democratic primaries, as they did in Illinois recently, to aid the opponent of the candidate with the administration blessing.

Egg Volley Routs Norman Thomas

Rotten eggs may be seen splashing off Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, in this picture made as a mob attack prevented him from making a speech in a park in Newark, N. J., last night. The eggs were hurled and the speaker howled down by a band of 100 men, most of whom wore caps of type used by some war veterans' organizations.

BOAT CAPSIZES; RESCUE OLYMPIC SWIMMER, WIFE

Richard E. Howell, 910 Michigan avenue, Evanston, former Northwestern university swimming star and member of the American Olympic swimming team in 1924, and his wife, Elizabeth, were rescued yesterday when their 11 foot cat boat overturned in the lake one mile off Wilmette.

The Howells clung to the boat until help arrived. A 12 year old boy, identified only as Little Tommy, reached the scene with his sail boat and took Mrs. Howell to shore. A coast guard boat picked up her husband.

Forced to Live in Cellar, Shoots Daughter-in-Law

Springfield, Ill., June 4.—[Special.]—John Enzmann Sr., 74 years old, late today shot his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Nancy Enzmann, 29, and attempted to kill himself. Shot through the left lung, Mrs. Enzmann is in a critical condition. Enzmann, when taken to jail, said his son, John, had agreed to provide him with food and lodging if he would sign over the lease to the family home. He said his son failed to keep his agreement and he was compelled to live in the basement. Explaining the shooting, Enzmann said: "I just got mad and shot her."

Gives Colored Woman Ride; His $600 Pin Stolen

Sidney S. Cohn, 3927 Frontier street, a personnel manager, complained to Chicago avenue police last night that a young colored woman whom he had picked up in his car stole his diamond stickpin, valued at $600. He said he met her at Michigan avenue and Ohio street and drove her a block or two east in Erie street, during which time she took the pin.

PARENTS OF KIDNAPED FLORIDA BOY GIVE UP HOPE HE'S ALIVE

Miami, Fla., June 4.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. James B. Cash Sr., whose son James Jr. was kidnaped last Saturday night, believe the boy is dead and doubt that they ever will see his body. But they believe the kidnaper will be caught. Search for clews thus far has been futile and agents of the federal bureau of investigation are hoping some of the $10,000 ransom billls will appear.

Today 400 of 2,000 persons who have been searching field, forest, and swamp for the boy remained in the hunt. Federal agents continued their methodical investigation of every possible lead.

VISITOR FROM VA. SEES 2 STARS, BUT NOT MOVIE KIND

Press McDaniel, 23 years old, of Stewart, Va., paused in Chicago two hours last night between trains en route to California, where he hopes to see some movie stars. He saw two stars in Chicago—but not the movie kind. They were star confidence men.

A well dressed man approached him in the Chicago and North Western railway station and invited him to see the world's largest building, the Merchandise Mart. They saw it, after which another man approached and suggested a penny matching game.

This new stranger lost his money. He threatened to call police. The first stranger, appearing frightened, suggested to McDaniel, "We'd better give him all our money and buy him off." McDaniel agreed and handed over $70. The two men walked away and then McDaniel, suspicious, notified police. He later picked out bureau of identification pictures of Joseph Davis and John Coughlin, known as masters in the penny swindling game, as the men who had cheated him.

CABINET MAKER ROBBED.

Ole Brevik, 48 years old, 2612 North Kedzie avenue, a cabinet maker, was robbed of $25 and severely beaten last night by two colored men in front of 2124 Lake street.

Boy, 15, Killed at Play by Falling Curtain Rod

Philip Karlin, 15 years old, of 853 Lakeside place, died last night in the County hospital from a compound skull fracture incurred when he was struck by a brass curtain rod that was dropped from a third floor porch at the rear of 4545 Sheridan road. Town Hall police said the rod was dropped or thrown by another boy while the Karlin boy was playing below.

REBELS KILL 22 IN AIR RAIDS ON SPANISH CITIES

British Subject Is Slain; Ship Set Afire.

MADRID, June 4.—(AP)—Rebel air bombers made repeated attacks in their campaign of destruction against Spanish government Mediterranean ports today.

Sixteen persons were killed and 32 injured in the bombing of Val de Uxo in the province of Castellon north of Valencia.

The 4,870-ton tanker Maryad, owned by the Pallas Oil and Trading company of London, was bombed and set afire at Alicante, killing the second engineer, a British subject.

Four warplanes bombed Barcelona twice, killing five persons and wounding four. One of the attackers, which presumably were from Mallorca, was reported to have been struck by anti-aircraft fire and to have plunged into the sea in flames.

Two attempts were made to bomb Valencia. Anti-aircraft gunners drove the planes away both times.

Dissension in Rebel Spain.

GIBRALTAR, June 4.—(AP)—Reports of bitterness against Italian and German influence in rebel Spain were brought to Gibraltar tonight by visitors from rebel controled territory.

The unrest was said to have developed over fears of rebel officers that the Italians and Germans intend to maintain a military hold on the country when the civil war ends. Rebel officers arriving here to buy medical stores for Seville hospitals themselves confirmed the reports.

"The dictatorial manner of the Italian and German officers is unbearable," one officer said.

Scores of laborers coming across the border freely discussed manifestations against Gen. Francisco Franco, rebel commander, at La Linea, just within rebel Spain north of Gibraltar. Thousands of anti-Franco pamphlets were scattered in the streets of La Linea and many buildings bore charcoal scrawled denunciations of the rebel leader. Several persons were arrested in La Linea and were reported to have been doomed to the firing squad at dawn tomorrow.

Two Italian Pilots Captured.

MADRID, June 4.—(AP)—Two Italian pilots who mistook the government's airfield at Guadalajara for a rebel base were reported today to have been captured with their Italian made pursuit planes.

The chief of staf for government forces defending Madrid announced that the two airmen, in their early 20s, were in rebel uniforms but wore Italian Fascist insignia.

Last night the two airmen, a lieutenant and a sergeant, sighted the Guadalajara field, about thirty miles northeast of Madrid. They were nearly out of gasoline, it was said, and, believing themselves to be over rebel territory, they landed.

Smash Loyalist Lines.

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], June 4.—(AP)—Spanish rebels, aided by artillery and war planes, today smashed government lines in a drive toward Lucena del Cid, a gateway to Castellon de la Plana and the Mediterranean.

The offensive in eastern Spain, directed from the southern side of the rebel wedge to the sea toward Castellon de la Plana and Valencia, remained virtually halted at other points.

Lucena del Cid, a town of 5,000 and a center of iron and lead mines, is in Castellon province, forty-six miles southeast of Teruel and sixteen miles northwest of Castellon de la Plana.

Thousands of troops drove through Chodos, eight miles north of Lucena del Cid, and Villahermosa, an equal distance northwest of the town. Late this afternoon the rebels were reported two miles from the mining center.

Machines vs. Men in Paving

Issue in Strike

Highway engineers yesterday compiled estimates of the costs of building pavement with machinery as compared with the cost when men haul the materials in wheelbarrows.

They took this step after Michael Carozzo, president of the International Hod Carriers, Builders, and Common Laborers' district council, called a strike halting the paving of approaches to the 103d street viaduct because the contractors are using machinery on the job. He has threatened also to call a strike of the concrete workers on the repaving of Austin boulevard between Cermak and Roosevelt roads, Cicero.

When pre-mixed aggregate is used in the mixing machines and booms with buckets spread the mixed concrete for the pavement, the cost of building one mile of pavement forty-two feet wide is $86,660, the engineers said. Twenty-five men can do the job in fifteen and one-half days. When men with wheelbarrows load the mixer and carry the mixed concrete to the roadway the cost of a similar job is $96,516. Forty men then will do the job in twenty and two-third days.

REVIEW OF NLRB ORDER TO INLAND STEEL REFUSED

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday dismissed the Inland Steel company's petition requesting judicial review of an order issued April 5 by the national labor relations board.

This order, which required the company to sign contracts with the Committee on Industrial Organization as sole bargaining agent for its employés, was withdrawn by the board on May 12, after company attorneys had filed arguments that the hearings on which it was based were unfair and illegal.

In its latest petition the steel company maintained that the labor board could not escape a court review of its acts by setting them aside after they had been questioned. Attorneys for the board argued that the setting aside was proper so long as no transcript of its record had been filed in court. This position was upheld by Judges Will M. Sparks and Walter E. Treanor.

AUTOIST ROBBED, ABDUCTED AND PUT OUT ON ROAD

Two gunmen yesterday held up Richard A. Morgan of 5110 Deming place, took $35 and his car, drove him thirty-five miles into the country and abandoned him. The men entered the car when Morgan stopped it at Sacramento and Augusta boulevards. They forced him to lie on the back seat, and while one man pointed a pistol at him the other drove westward.

When Morgan was forced out of the car three miles west of River Forest he was penniless. Walking and catching a few rides, he finally reached the Cragin police station about 11 p. m. The $35 was the bulk of his week's salary as a carpenter.

SPANISH REBELS SUE U.S. BANK FOR SILVER SHIPMENT

Claim $2,000,000 Hoard Sold by Madrid.

New York, June 4.—(AP)—Fiscal representatives of Gen. Francisco Franco, head of rebel Spain, brought court action today against the Federal Reserve bank of New York in an attempt to gain possession of a 186 ton shipment of silver sent here from the Madrid vaults of the Bank of Spain.

President George L. Harrison or one of the other leading officers of the reserve bank was ordered by Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora to appear in court Monday morning for an examination regarding ownership of the silver hoard.

Plaintif Is Bank of Spain.

The plaintif in the action was named as the Bank of Spain, control of which is claimed by both rebel and loyalists governments in that country. A radio photo of a power of attorney issued to Joaquin Sunye, of New York, by Aurelio Valls, who described himself as branch manager in England of the Bank of Spain, was filed with the papers. The photo showed Valls' signature was sworn to in London yesterday by American Vice Consul Franklin C. Gowen.

Spokesmen for the reserve bank confirmed the claim made by the plaintif that the silver had a value of $2,150,000. Armored trucks carried it to the bank Tuesday from the S. S. Normandie.

The silver was in 2,334 cases. The consignor was Etablissements Aget, a firm of forwarders of Havre, France. Reports that gold was included in the shipment were denied both at the bank and by Franco representatives here, but the latter said some of the silver was "family jewelry" owned by prominent Spaniards on the insurgent side.

Bank Rejects Rebel Demand.

The complaint said that Sunye, a Spaniard, accompanied by two attorneys of the firm of Sullivan and Cromwell, of New York, called upon Vice Presidents Walter S. Logan and L. Werner Knoke at the bank yesterday and demanded immediate delivery of the silver. The reserve bank officials refused to honor the demand.

Unofficial diplomatic representatives here of the Franco régime indicated that their hopes of obtaining possession of the silver or recovering its value would be based chiefly on the claim that the great majority of the officers and directors of the Bank of Spain are on Franco's side.

They added that they were informed Valls would come here personally from London to seek possession of the silver.

SLOVAKS OPEN PITTSBURGH CONTRACT FETE

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

PRAGUE, June 4.—The Slovak Clerical party, of which Father Andreas Hlinkas is leader, today opened the congress of Bratislava commemorating the 20th anniversary of the Pittsburgh agreement. The American Slovak delegation, led by Dr. Peter Hledko of Chicago, which brought the original of the agreement to Czechoslovakia, attended the conference. The Slovak Clerical party is advocating autonomy for Slovaks.

All Sloves, irrespective of party, acknowledge the Pittsburgh agreement in principle, but there is marked difference in its interpretation.

Slovak leaders who have thrown in their lot with the Czech government, such as Premier Milan Hodza, have dissociated themselves from the autonomy demands and say they have a larger following in their constituencies than the Autonomy party. Hodza will speak in Bratislava Monday on this issue.

This photograph shows actual cutting heads in our possession that Colonel Schick made in his search for the perfect shape and type of cutter for the Schick Shaver (as shown in inset). He discarded these, and dozens of others, because of fundamental faults.

Do you think Schick didn't KNOW?

BEFORE Colonel Schick sold the first dry shaver to the public, he experimented with dozens of different shapes and types of cutters. One by one he discarded them as he approached the perfection of our present cutter.

All other shapes he tried had some basic fault that interfered with close, quick shaving or "burned" the skin and damaged it in the same way that blades do and just as badly.

Eventually he evolved the flat cutter with the thin upper plate of such precise dimensions, such accuracy that there were no known methods to manufacture it in quantities.

Then he found the ways and means, invented machines and methods, to produce thousands a day.

Imitators copy errors

Schick's success invited imitators. Look at the cutters of competitive shavers. Some of them are near-duplicates of shapes and types that Schick discarded in his experimental days. (See photo.)

Some, unable to duplicate the fine accuracy of the Schick cutter, have much wider slots to make them shave. Wide slots may shave but the skin enters too deeply into the slots, the inner cutter "burns" off the tops of the tiny mounds of the skin—and the user loses one of the greatest advantages of electric shaving.

Others have thinner outer cutters. Again the skin may be injured so that scar tissue forms exactly as it does with blade shaving.

Schick couldn't "break" his own patents

Colonel Schick spent years trying to invent a better cutter than the present type—trying to break his own patents.

Inevitably and always he came back to this truth: There is no theoretical or practical improvement to be made in the Schick principle of shaving. All that Schick, or anyone else can do, is to improve and refine the mechanism for using that principle.

If all men's skins and beards were alike, the problem would be solved. Schick could guarantee perfect shaving with no possible injury to the skin. If men had never shaved with blades and thereby developed calloused skins, we could, after seeing their beards, hand them shavers that would perform perfectly.

The standard Schick cutter (No. 7) has the ideal dimensions for the vast majority of men and for all boys arriving at shaving age. Some men can shave with it the first time—others take from two to three weeks to bring their skins back to the soft flexibility nature intended them to have.

For men who cannot use the Schick standard cutter

If men will be patient and learn to use the Schick standard cutter (No. 7) they will get the full benefits of dry shaving.

Some men, with tough skins or thick-haired beards, may not be able to use the Schick standard cutter. The tough skin cannot enter the slots far enough. Thick hairs do not enter the slots freely.

For such men, there is a Schick cutter (No. 10) with slightly wider slots. The upper plate of this cutter is the same thickness as the standard cutter.

By widening the slots, a fixed 2½ thousandths more, it is possible to control the closeness of the shave so that a quick, clean shave may be obtained without injury to the skin.

If you have tried a Schick and failed to obtain perfect results. Come in and see us.

Schick was first—Schick is first

The living genius of Colonel Schick still guides the making of the Schick Shaver. It guarantees to the user that all Schick knew about skin, hair and shaving is embodied in Schick Shavers. Others try to copy—but genius and inspiration cannot be copied. Every dry shaver motor that we have seen (except one) embodies the ideas that Schick worked out—but that is another story. The courts have declared valid the Schick patent on the shearing head. This patent is being vigorously protected against infringers by proper legal means.

But regardless of patents, Schick has years of leadership over competitors, more than two million happy users, many thousands of unsolicited testimonials and has emerged from the severest test of all—Time—which experience no other shaver has had.

These simple truths should convince you that your investment in a Schick Shaver is safe. Schick's methods of doing business, the twenty-four hour service on repairs, our year's guarantee and our unceasing desire to make every man and woman a satisfied Schick user, is your full protection.

children. The clothing of some had been blown off.

Sirens for the second raid sounded while rescue work was in progress for victims of the first.

Thirty-five planes swept over the city in the second attack. They finally were driven off by Chinese anti-aircraft fire.

The intensity of the anti-aircraft firing indicated that Canton's defenses had been augmented greatly since the start of the series of raids last Saturday.

Wu Teh-chun, governor of Kwangtung, fled to a dugout. Several bombs exploded within 100 yards of his refuge.

CHINESE LINES CRUMBLE

SHANGHAI, June 5.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—Reports through foreign sources at Hankow said today Chinese resistance along the Lunghai railway in central China had collapsed. A general withdrawal of Chinese troops was said to be under way.

The Japanese were reported to have occupied Kaifeng, ancient former capital of China.

It was predicted that Japanese troops would enter Chengchow, junction of the Lunghai and the Peking-Hankow railway, within 48 hours.

Kaifeng, forty miles east of Chengchow, had been the objective of Japanese troops stalled temporarily at Lanfeng. About thirty miles west of Lanfeng, Kaifeng was considered the key to the Chinese Lunghai defenses.

The Japanese plan has been to occupy Chengchow, then drive south along the Peking-Hankow railway about 300 miles to Hankow, one of China's provisional capitals.

During the protracted engagement about Lanfeng a division commanded by Lieut. Gen. Kenji Doihara, Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria," had been encircled by Chinese troops. A Japanese communique said today that the division had broken through the Chinese ring.

Japs Take Liuho.

Earlier today Japanese declared that Liuho, between Kweiten and Lanfeng, had been captured. The Japanese said then that Chinese were beginning to fall back from the Lunghai area.

Asked concerning the Hankow reports, the Japanese military spokesman here said he lacked confirmation, but said such advances were "quite likely as events are happening fast along the Lunghai now."

He said it had been known that Japanese occupied highways both south and southwest of Kaifeng.

The reports by way of Hankow said Japanese forces south of the Lunghai had pushed a spearhead westward and cut the Peking-Hankow railway, occupying Yencheng, midway between Hankow and Chengchow.

A Japanese naval spokesman announced that an attack by six armored Chinese junks on a Japanese patrol vessel southeast of Canton had been repulsed. Japanese naval aircraft took part in the engagement, the spokesman said. He added that three of the junks were set afire and sunk, one was disabled, and the other two escaped.

She'll Wed Jon Hall

Hollywood, Cal., June 4. — (AP) — Friends of Frances Langford, radio and screen singer, and Jon Hall, actor, said today their engagement will be formally announced next Tuesday. Because of her personal appearances scheduled for New York city and Chicago, friends said, the actress will not be married until December.

Japan Lifts Ban on News of Prince's Trip to China

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, June 4.—The ban on news of Prince Chichibu's trip to China and Manchukuo was lifted today with his return to Japan. The prince, who is a brother of Emperor Hirohito, visited all the battlefronts and the remotest sections of Manchoukuo, especially the soviet border region. The trip lasted one month and was made mostly by air. The Japanese press splashed the story to the exclusion of all other news. It was the first time the Japanese have heard the prince had gone to China, although the rest of the world has been kept fully informed of his trip.

KAIFENG, CENTER OF WAR, FOUNDED BEFORE CHRIST

City Was One of China's Earliest Settlements.

Kaifeng, strategic city on the east-west Lunghai railway in central China, which was reported early today to have been taken by the Japanese in their drive on Hankow, was built by Duke Chwang about 740 B. C. and once was the eastern capital of China. The city normally has a population of about 175,000 and is the capital of Honan province.

As one of the earliest settlements of the Chinese in China, Kaifeng has seen its name changed many times as dynasties rose and fell. Following Duke Chwang, who named it Kaifeng, meaning to mark off [kai] the boundary of his fief [feng], the Chow, Suy, and Tang dynasties called the city Pienchow from the years 557 to 907. During the five dynasties of the Wutai, from 907 to 960, it was Tungking, or eastern capital.

Reconstructed Many Times.

When the Yuan or Mongol dynasty came into power in 1260, the name was changed to Pienliang, but with the establishment of the Ming dynasty in 1368 it again became Kaifeng.

Floods and rebel bands have attacked the city many times during its history, but each time it was reconstructed. The wall, pierced by five gates, affords some protection, and its broad streets and beautiful buildings are imposing evidences of the city's determination to survive.

Has 600 Foot Pagoda.

A twelve story pagoda rises 600 feet and is the tallest structure within the city's ancient wall. A watch tower 200 feet high affords a look out for approaching flood waters from the Yellow river.

Jews who entered China in 1163 A. D., established their first colony at Kaifeng. Remnants of the ancient and once prosperous Jewish colony still live there.

HUNT FIVE MASKED ROBBERS.

Police yesterday were seeking five masked gunmen who invaded offices of the Lasham Cartage company, 2601 Archer avenue, Friday night, locked seven employés in a truck trailer and escaped with $600.

WOMEN TROUBLE SOVIETS AS SPIES, MASQUERADER

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, June 4.—Woman trouble hit Soviet Russia from two quarters today. At Novosibirsk, Ekaterina Zarezova, who had masqueraded as a man and a revolutionary hero for five years, was exposed and sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

In Leningrad a woman dentist was arrested as a spy for a foreign power and has been sentenced to "merited retribution," presumably death.

Two other women, who aided her, were also found guilty of espionage, one of them receiving a sentence of seven years. The sentences imposed on the other woman and a man accomplice were not disclosed.

WPA WORKER PLUNGES TO DEATH.

Thomas Duane, 29 years old, a WPA worker, was killed yesterday when he plunged from the fire escape of his fourth floor room at the Jefferson hotel, 600 West Madison street.

HERO OF DEATH BATTLE IN DARK AWARDED $100

Ambushed Policeman Kills Two in Bandit Gang.

John B. Ascher.

Three masked bandits lurked in the shadows of the alley as John B. Ascher drove his car into a garage at the rear of 150 North Leamington avenue in Chicago. It was 9:15 o'clock at night, and he was on his way home from work. When he alighted and walked toward the rear to close the doors they appeared suddenly out of the darkness, flourishing their weapons.

One had a revolver, another had an automatic pistol, while the third, who lagged behind to serve as lookout, was unarmed. The three were colored.

Up to this point the robbery was like dozens of others that take place in Chicago almost every evening.

A Robber Gang's Error.

But Ascher was a policeman. He went into action immediately. With his left hand he brushed aside the revolver of the closest man while he whipped out his own weapon and opened fire.

"This is a stick——"

The bandit's words rattled in his throat as two bullets ripped into his abdomen. He was a dying man but he continued to struggle and convulsively pressed the trigger of his revolver. The policeman grappled desperately for possession of the gun which was pointed at his head.

A Pinched Finger Saves Life.

When the bandit tried to shoot, the hammer sprang forward but, instead of striking the firing pin, it jammed against Ascher's index finger. By that narrow margin the policeman's life was saved.

With the robber clinging to him, the policeman aimed hurriedly and fired twice at the second bandit, who had been unable to shoot because his companion was in the way. This robber was whirled around by the impact of the bullets and dropped to the garage floor.

A moment later he climbed to his feet and limping outside rejoined the third member of the band, who helped him flee from the scene on foot. When Ascher succeeded in knocking down the robber who remained in the garage he ran outside but the two had vanished.

Neighbors Call Help.

Meanwhile persons living in the vicinity heard the shots and notified police headquarters. The wounded man was taken to the Bridewell hospital, where he died a few hours later.

He was identified as Edward Henderson, 2556 Maypole avenue, who had served a sentence in the county jail for carrying concealed weapons.

The second man, Charles Price, 4907 South Michigan avenue, was found shortly afterwards lying at the rear of 5100 Lake street. He died within a few days.

George McFarland, 2235 Fulton street, was arrested a few blocks away and admitted that he had been the lookout. He is in prison.

Two Identified in Prior Shooting.

Henderson and Price subsequently were identified in several other robberies, in one of which the latter shot and seriously wounded a tavern keeper.

Ascher cut short the careers of the three criminals on April 14. He had been a policeman for five years but it was his first encounter with robbers. He is assigned to the bureau of criminal investigation under Capt. Michael Naughton.

Quiet spoken and unassuming, Detective Ascher would rather tell of the days when he was captain of the De Paul university basketball team than discuss his exploit. He is married, has a son 3 years old, and lives at 5137 West End avenue.

Because he unhesitatingly exposed himself to death when he faced three dangerous criminals alone in a dark alley and because he rid society of men whose existence was a constant threat to the safety of other citizens, Policeman Ascher received the Tribune hero award for April. Each month THE TRIBUNE awards $100 to the city or park district policeman or the fireman who performs the act of highest courage in that period.

FRAMEUP, SAYS DEFENDANT AT MURDER TRIAL

Michael Karapournos, one of two men on trial in the Circuit court at Waukegan for the murder of William Hancock, testified yesterday that he was the victim of a frameup by an enemy.

Edward T. Leonard, who was indicted for the same crime but granted a separate trial, has appeared as a witness for the prosecution. He declared that Karapournos took part in the slaying in 1932 of Hancock, 80 year old farmer of Antioch. Karapournos said he had once reported Leonard as an automobile thief and that Leonard threatened to get even for this.

The trial will be resumed tomorrow. Joseph Russo is Karapournos' co-defendant.

BRICK SLAYER IS LIKENED TO JUNGLE BEAST

Ferocity Is Reflected in Nixon's Features.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Beneath an alley fire escape policemen and detectives stand three and four deep. From a fifth floor window others lean out and call: "Let him come."

Handcuffs click. A slouchily dressed colored youth detaches himself from the crowd of detectives and begins making his way up the side of the building, effortlessly. At the second floor, where the fire escape begins, he poises himself lightly and swings over on to it.

"Look at him go," says a policeman. "Just like an ape."

By the time this has been said the youth has swung himself over the sill and is in the fifth floor room where two years ago he raped and murdered with a brick Mrs. Florence Thompson Castle. As detectives watch he shows in pantomime how he committed the crime, one of the five savage murders he has confessed.

Comes from Little Town.

The Negro youth is Robert Nixon. He is 18 years old and comes from a pretty little town in the old south —Tallulah, La. But there is nothing pretty about Robert Nixon. He has none of the charm of speech or manner that is characteristic of so many southern darkies.

That charm is a mark of civilization, and so far as manner and appearance go, civilization has left Nixon practically untouched. His hunched shoulders and long, sinewy arms that dangle almost to his knees; his outthrust head and catlike tread all suggest the animal.

He is very black — almost pure Negro. His physical characteristics suggest an earlier link in the species.

Ferocious Type.

Mississippi river steamboat mates, who hire and fire roustabouts by the hundreds, would classify Nixon as a jungle Negro. They would hire him only if they were sorely in need of rousters. And they would keep close watch on him. This type is known to be ferocious and relentless in a fight. Though docile enough under ordinary circumstances, they are easily aroused. And when this happens the veneer of civilization disappears.

Nixon was docile enough yesterday afternoon as he stretched in the rays of the warm sun that streamed through the windows of the detective bureau. He leaned back in the deep lether chair to which he was manacled in the office of Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan.

He began to talk about the days in Tallulah. He went to school. He played hookey. He always was whipped the next day. But he didn't mind that.

Always a Thief, Says Sherif.

He liked school all right, but he wasn't crazy about it. He avoided chopping and picking cotton. He always got jobs driving cars and minding children. He never worked on a river boat. Man, that is hard work. Yes, he got into trouble now and then.

On Chief Sullivan's desk lay a letter from Sherif A. J. D. Sevier, of Madison parish, Louisiana. "Nixon has always been a thief," wrote Sherif Sevier. "He has been on the prowl since he was 6."

Nixon continued telling about his youth. Yes, he stole—lots of things. Brass fittings, anything he could sell; anything that was loose. He got into jail. His employers got him out. [It is a southern custom that you stand by your colored help when they run afoul the law in minor offenses.] And when he got out of jail his mammy whipped him.

State Is Handicapped.

"We are handicapped in this state by having no institutions for handling juvenile offenders," Sherif Sevier's letter continues. "When they are as young as Nixon we can do nothing but advise that their parents whip them, or whip them ourselves. There should be a juvenile home or reformatory, but there isn't."

As he talked yesterday Nixon's dull eyes lighted only when he spoke of food. They feed him well at the detective bureau, he said. He likes cocoanut pie and strawberry pop. It was after a generous meal of these refreshments that he confessed two of his most shocking murders, those of Mrs. Edna Worden and her daughter, Marguerite, 12 years old, in Los Angeles last year.

He talked animatedly again later, when he told of having been in the movies. He was an extra in "Slave Ship" and "Souls at Sea." He went to see himself in one of these when it was released, then went to work on the other one. And meanwhile he beat Mrs. Worden fatally with a brick, raped her and slew her sleeping daughter.

Ferocity Is Indicated.

Photographs of the Los Angeles murders were the most shocking in the memory of Chicago detectives, they said yesterday. These killings were accomplished with a ferocity suggestive of Poe's "Murders in the Rue Morgue"—the work of a giant ape.

Again the comparison was drawn between Nixon and the jungle man. Last week when he was taken to 4631 Lake Park avenue to demonstrate how he had slain Mrs. Florence Johnson, mother of two small children, a crowd gathered and there were cries of: "Lynch him! Kill him!"

Nixon backed against a wall and bared his teeth. He showed no fear, just as he has shown no remorse. He stood in a snarling attitude until police took him indoors and the crowd was ordered away.

A Different Personality.

It is different with Earl Hicks, Nixon's companion of May 27 in the Johnson murder. Hicks is 19 years old and is of lighter skin. His background is much the same as Nixon's—he comes from the river town of Greenville, Miss.—but as a personality he is vastly different.

He has made no attempt to hide his fear. He is fully aware that he is in grave danger of going to the electric chair. Nixon either doesn't realize the gravity of his position or doesn't care. He will worry about the chair when the time comes. Hicks has worked hard in his day. Though he is known in his home town as a thief and a pickpocket, he has never before been connected with a crime of violence.

He has been implicated with Nixon only in the Johnson murder. Hicks did not figure in the coast murders, the Castle murder, nor that of Miss Anne Kuchta, student nurse who was raped and beaten to death in the Chicago hospital last Aug. 20.

Burglary Primary Object.

"Nixon has prowled dozens of rooms occupied by men and has left without harming them," one detective said. "He turned rapist when the opportunity presented itself, but his primary object was burglary. He is not a moron in the common sense."

Nixon dwelt lightly or not at all on his crimes yesterday. The ordeal of confession was over. He felt purged. He stretched in the warm sunshine that came through the window and smacked his lips as Chief Sullivan allowed him to order his supper—more pie, more pop, and some good sandwiches; good sandwiches this time. He didn't want any more like those last ones.

And on Chief Sullivan's desk, in the same sunlight that bathed Nixon, Sherif Sevier's letter still lay. "It has been demonstrated here that nothing can be done with Robert Nixon. Only death can cure him."

GERMANS PAY 5½ BILLIONS IN TAXES IN YEAR

Figures Reveal Per Capita Levy About $85.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 4.—With pride, Germany's financial chiefs today announced that in the fiscal year which ended March 31, the German government collected a total of $5,585,000,000 from income taxes, customs, taxes on consumption and other internal revenue.

According to the figures, taxpayers in authoritarian Germany paid federal taxes of about $85 per capita in 1937. To this must be added the church tax which is collected by the state, the head tax and the local taxes. Whether an employer or worker, the German also must pay for illness insurance, old age insurance, unemployment insurance, labor front dues and sundry welfare donations all collected under state control.

Officials declared the 1937 federal taxes yielded almost one billion dollars more than in the fiscal year 1936.

Taxes Cover Large Field.

The government collects from two groups, property and trafic, and customs and consumption.

To the first group belong the income tax, capital tax, transport tax on passenger and freight trafic, taxes paid by members of boards of directors, defense tax, corporation tax, crisis tax, fortune tax, inheritance tax, turnover tax, real estate purchase tax, and sundry "capital trafic taxes." Others are taxes on documents, automobiles, insurance, betting, and an emigrant tax collected from Jews and other desiring to leave Germany which alone netted slightly more than $32,000,000 in 1937.

Taxes on consumption list tobaccos, salt, beer, alcohol, matches, lighters, cards, saccharine, brandy, mineral oil, fat, slaughtering, as sources of federal income.

Check Books of Big Concerns.

Fritz Reinhardt, secretary of state in the ministry of finance, in a recent speech declared it would be possible to increase state income by raising taxes but that the government endeavored to avoid such measures and carried on a systematic supervision of books of business concerns to make sure that all existing taxes were paid to the last penny, thus "insuring equal treatment for all citizens."

Crash Kills Poloist

Baron Maximilian von Romberg, killed when plane crashed off Fair Haven, N. J., and his wife, the former Emily Hall of New York.

Red Bank, N. J., June 4.—[Special.]—Baron Maximilian von Romberg, 27 years old, society polo player and aviator, was killed today when his small plane crashed into the north Shrewsbury river off Lewis Point, Fair Haven.

He had been circling the area of the Red Bank airport for several minutes attempting to land in a fog. His body was recovered from the wreckage, which lay in ten feet of water.

The baron, who lived in Santa Barbara, Cal., had been in New York for several weeks and was on the way from Roosevelt field to Red Bank for a week-end of polo.

Baron von Romberg was a grandson of the late Edmund C. Converse, founder of the Bankers' Trust company of New York. His mother was Antoinette Converse and his father, Capt. Baron Maximilian von Romberg of the eightieth Prussian fusiliers was the first German officer to be killed in the world war. He was married in 1928 to Miss Emily Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hubbard Hall of New York and Santa Barbara.

Soviet Convicts Woman Dentist, 3 Others as Spies

MOSCOW, June 4.—[U. P.]—A woman dentist in Leningrad who used foreign instruments and materials has been discovered to be a spy for a foreign power and was sentenced to the "deserved penalty"—presumably death. That was disclosed today. Two other women and a man who were her associates, also were sentenced, one woman to seven years and the others to undisclosed penalties.

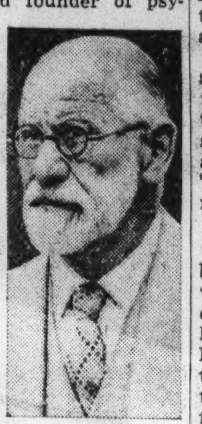
BODY FOUND BESIDE TRACKS.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 4.—[U. P.]—The body of an unidentified man about 28 years old was found beside the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks today. In his pockets were papers bearing the names of Matt Shelby, Flint, Mich., and Della Phillips, Metropolis, Ill.

SIGMUND FREUD QUITS VIENNA FOR EXILE IN LONDON

Psycho-Analysis Founder Virtually Penniless.

LONDON, June 4.—(AP)—Sigmund Freud, world-famed founder of psychoanalysis, is coming to London from Nazified Vienna, determined at the age of 82 to complete his psychoanalysis of the bible.



Sigmund Freud.

Friends said he virtually is penniless and "had a great shock" with Germany's absorption of Austria. Since the anschluss of March 13, they said, he has remained in the seclusion of his Vienna home, "dreading insults if he emerged—because he is a Jew."

In a rented house in London's district of Chelsea, Freud intends to live with his daughter, Anna, and work on his partly completed biblical analysis. This, it was said, explains "the subconscious wishes and fears of the people" of biblical times. Chapters on Moses already are in proof form.

Home in Vienna Since Childhood.

Freud left Veinna which had been his home since childhood, a city which he helped make famous as a center of modern scientific thought and which, ironically, had ceremoniously honored him with his "freedom."

He quit Austrian Germany to the accompaniment of Nazi press attacks against his work. Brief notices of his departure today omitted his name and referred to his famed psychoanalytic school as "a pornographic Jewish specialty."

Freud's publishing house and "all his money" were confiscated, and although he was permitted to keep his own library, all new books in his Vienna publishing office were destroyed, friends said.

Freud left Vienna imploring journalists not to write of his departure until he had crossed the German border, fearing difficulties.

He was wheeled in an armchair to his train compartment by his daughter, Anna. With him were suitcases and boxes containing manuscripts and books representing his life's work. Only a few women friends were at the station to bid him farewell.

He is due in Paris tomorrow afternoon, and will be met by his son, Ernst, an architect, who left London today. Freud and his son will rest a few days in France.

Ernst, who lives here, has been in almost daily touch with his father by telephone since the Austro-German union. The scientists's passport was seized by Nazi authorities March 22 and was not returned until today. The departure then was arranged immediately.

Born of Jewish Extraction.

Born of Jewish extraction in Freiberg, Austro-Hungary, in 1856, Freud was taken to Vienna when 4 years old and lived there until today. On his seventieth birthday he received laudatory congratulations from scientists and scientific groups throughout the world, and was accorded "the freedom of the city of Vienna."

"The Vienna psychoanalytic school actually was a center against the Reich during the previous régime," said the newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter, official Nazi organ, upon Freud's departure.

The paper charged that Jewish physicians in Vienna before anschluss boycotted German medicaments "even when there was no substitute for them."

Seniors Feel Like Poison After Daisy Chain Affair

Bethlehem, Pa., June 4.—(AP)—Seniors at the Moravian College for Women still felt keenly today the juniors' traditional presentation of a daisy chain. Poison ivy inadvertently had been entwined with the flowers.

UNION TO INSTALL POLICE ENGINEER FOR 16TH TERM

TIME ENOUGH

By CALEB

TWENTY THOUSAND clocks . . . tick tock, tick tock . . . twenty thousand clocks.

The men of science tell us that Time is, after all, a splendid fellow if one but knows him well enough. We could, they say with a fourth-dimensional wink, stop Time, slow him down—and, indeed, set him spinning backward if we but knew the formula. In common with us, they do not know the formula—yet.

We strongly suspect, too, that in common with us, Time leads those very scientists a merry chase. They can project their thoughts along the paths of light from stars, through space to infinity. But—like us—they may stand on the railway station platform, out of breath, watching the last car of the 8:41 disappear in the distance.

They can postulate a new dimension, but they can't speed the forty minutes they spend waiting to meet a busy, shopping wife. They can draw a tessaract, but they can't cure the hook on their wood shots because the timing is off. They can telescope time, and prove that two plus two equals three—but they can't convince an irate traffic officer that thirty-five miles is twenty.

And so, like the rest of us, eventually they settle down to make the best of it. They are at once the masters and the servants of Time—and so are we all. We live today a neighbor with Time—and Time is a compelling neighbor.

All of us today live by schedule, and by clocks—so much so that in our Clock Room and in its reserves we carry somewhere in the neighborhood of twenty thousand clocks. There they stand—big ones, small ones, for sage and citizen and all good folk who find time, lose time, need time, and use time.

Most of us develop our own definition of relativity, finding that the small, pressing problems of life loom larger than the greater but more distant ones. Surest refuge from the insistent pressure of small things is a plan—measured by a friendly clock.

In a world that makes both a servant and a master of Time these clocks must play the part of referee and arbiter. Like a wall of sound, their steady ticking and orderly progress hold back the utter confusion into which a carefully scheduled world would be thrown without them.

REJECT 25 CENT WAGE MINIMUM AS COMPROMISE

Proposal Is Voted Down in Conference.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 4.—[Special.]—After tentative defeat of a compromise wage-hour bill, designed to satisfy both northern and southern industries, senate and house conferees late today adjourned their meeting over the week-end. Leaders, however, have high hopes that differences between the northerners and southerners will be adjusted early next week.

The compromise, temporarily beaten today, was important because there were indications that the conferees may finally find it the only solution to the problem.

Offered by Representative Fred A. Hartley [R., N. J.], the compromise bill would fix a flat minimum wage of 25 cents an hour for all industries in interstate commerce and impose a maximum work week of forty-four hours. These standards would be in effect for two years only.

Study Proposed.

In the meanwhile a commission composed of representatives of the government, of business and of labor would conduct a thorough study of the wage-hour problem and report to congress recommendations for legislation. It was argued that at the end of two years congress would be enabled to draft an equitable bill based upon the commission's recommendations and also upon the lessons learned from the operations of a wage-hour law for the two year period.

Only the house conferees voted on the Hartley proposal and it was beaten 5 to 2, Representative Robert Ramspeck [D., Ga.] voting with Hartley for the compromise. Representatives Mary T. Norton [D., N. J.], Kent E. Keller [D., Ill.], Jennings Randolph [D., W. Va.], and Richard J. Welch [R., Cal.] voted against it.

However, the conferees eventually may come to approve a compromise along these lines, it was apparent. Senator Allen J. Ellender [D., La.], one of the southerners appointed to the conference, said he would vote for such a proposal "as a last resort."

May Accept It Later.

The southerners are convinced that even imposition of 25 cents an hour would ruin many industries in the south and that congress, noting the bad effects of a flat minimum wage would provide in a new act for differentials in the case of industries which could show they were unable to operate at 25 cents an hour. Thus, if forced to it, they might take the Hartley compromise.

Southern senators, if the conferees stand fast against sectional pay standards, will battle for assurances of freight rates for the south as low as those enjoyed by northern shippers. It is the contention of southern industrialists that higher freight rates offset any advantage they hold over eastern and northern manufacturers by reason of lower wages.

Seek Freight Reduction.

Senator Ellender said he would be agreeable to flat wage and hour standards if a workable railroad rate clause could be written into the bill. This might take the form of a simple provision that the rates between two destinations be the same, irrespective of the direction in which the trafic moved. He asserted that at present rates are higher, for example, on freight shipped from some southern points to New York than they are on similar shipments from New York to the southern points.

Another compromise debated by the committee was that offered by Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.]. He proposed that the 25 cent an hour wage, which has been agreed upon by the conferees as the "bed rock" wage of all workers affected by the proposed law, should increase only 3 cents a year instead of 5 cents a year. The 40 cents an hour minimum wage would thus not be reached for five years instead of three years as under the house bill.

The Walsh proposal also would permit an employer to gain a suspension of the act for not more than one year upon a showing that the industry might otherwise be forced to cease operations. His bill provides for no interference with collective bargaining above the minimum wage and no interference by the administrator with wage rates already fixed in working agreements.

Representative Norton also proposed creation of an administrator who would have power to grant exceptions by industries to the minimum wage standard. She also suggested establishment of the 25 cents an hour minimum for the first year, advancing to 30 cents an hour the second year. After that the increase would be 2 cents a year for five years until 40 cents an hour was reached.

The administrator, under the Norton proposal, would be empowered to act after the 30 cent standard had been reached. If he found that a further increase would force a substantial number of firms out of business, he would have authority to waive the increase temporarily for that industry.

Surprise Lickings

Betty Jonaitis, back home after an overnight runaway, gets an ice cream cone instead of the spanking she feared.

[Associated Press Photos.]

Three breakfasts apiece, soft beds to sleep on, and no spankings at all had the two Jonaitis children, Betty and Charles, who are 8 and 10 years old, and their friend, John Heich, 11, pretty well convinced yesterday that it's true. There's no place like home.

They had not yet learned this Thursday when they disappeared from their apartment house at 641 Drummond place. They went without supper and slept in a stuffy and hard hallway that night. Friday morning they were hungry. They were dirty and a little frightened. So they mailed postcards to their parents inquiring about their chances of avoiding spankings if they returned. Before they could get an answer, they were picked up by Policeman Dewey Rietnour in Lincoln park and sent home.

WAR THREATENS IN TWO AREAS IN SOUTH AMERICA

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, June 4.—Danger of war in two areas on the South American continent was feared tonight. Peru and Ecuador furnished one critical situation and at the same time the unhealed wound left by the Chaco war between Bolivia and Paraguay again was opened.

Dispatches from Ecuador and Peru said both countries are mobilizing their armies to deal with an unimportant frontier incident in the territory that has been in dispute since the two republics were founded, some 400 years ago.

The armies of Bolivia and Paraguay are eager to get at each other's throats. Ten days of unsuccessful frontier negotiations here threaten the definite failure of the Chaco peace conference, which has been working earnestly, but uselessly, for three years trying to find some formula on which Bolivia and Paraguay could agree to sign a peace treaty.

ROOSEVELT SON TAKES SLAP AT PRESIDENT'S FOE

Sulphur, Okla., June 4.—[U. P.]—Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, took a mild slap today at one of his father's political opponents while crowning Marjorie Ann Adams queen of Sulphur's annual water carnival. Young Roosevelt referred indirectly to W. H. [Alfalfa Bill] Murray, candidate for President in 1932 and now a Democratic gubernatorial candidate, as "a Republican who had decided to run for governor on the Democratic ticket." Gov. E. W. Marland, who is running for the United States senate on a campaign slogan of "March On with Roosevelt," introduced the President's son.

SLAYER SENT TO HOSPITAL.

Toledo, O., June 4.—[Special.]—Common Pleas Judge Robert Gosline of Common Pleas court today committed Vincent Lewandowski, 51 years old, crazed slayer of his stepson, Joseph Posdnik, April 25, to the Lima state hospital for criminal insane.

ROOSEVELT CRUISING ON POTOMAC RIVER AND CHESAPEAKE BAY

Washington, D. C., June 4.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, accompanied by a small group of friends, motored today to Annapolis, where he boarded the presidential yacht Potomac for a week-end cruise on Chesapeake bay and the Potomac river.

The party included besides the President, Judge Samuel Rosenman of New York, the President's former law partner and collaborator on the Roosevelt state papers, and Mrs. Rosenman; Capt. Walter B. Woodson, naval aid; Miss Marguerite LeHand, personal secretary to the President, and Miss Elizabeth Henderson of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., a protégé of Mrs. Roosevelt.

The President planned to return to the capital late tomorrow afternoon. He saw no official callers before departing on the trip.

FINLAND LINES UP—ALONE—TO PAY WAR DEBT

Washington, D. C., June 4.—(AP)—Finland sent word to the state department today that it would pay $161,935 on its war debt to this country on June 15. The little republic is the only one of thirteen war debtor nations which has kept its account in good standing.

State department officials disclosed that this government had sent its usual reminder to all debtors that instalments would be due June 15. It was expected generally that Finland would be the only one to respond with a payment.

A total of $1,891,661,670.89 will be due on the war debts June 15. The total by countries: Belgium, $70,642,538; Czechoslovakia, $17,998,213; Estonia, $4,483,137; Finland, $161,935; France, $545,951,725; Great Britain, $1,080,157,132; Hungary, $495,256; Italy, $100,861,350; Latvia, $1,742,811; Lituania, $1,522,849; Poland, $55,805,187; Rumania, $9,487,500, and Jugo-Slavia, $2,352,031.

FRENCH TROOPS PATROL STATE OF ALEXANDRETTA

30,000 Turkish Soldiers Massed at Border.

PARIS, June 4.—(AP)—Veteran Moroccan troops and foreign legionnaires patroled the Sanjak [state] of Alexandretta tonight under martial law with 30,000 Turkish troops said to be across the border matching their efforts to keep order.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet and Suad Davaz, Turkish ambassador to Paris, conferred again in the tense Arab-Turk dispute over a pending plebiscite in the region on Turkey's southern border which France rules under her Syrian mandate.

Both insisted, however, despite the display of military strength in the near east, that their differences over rule of the strategic "elbow" of the eatesrn mediterranean was near settlement.

Alexandretta at Stake.

The territory at stake is the city of Alexandretta and a surrounding district with a total population of about 220,000. It lies between Turkey and Syria, with at least seven distinct nationalities and races. It is considered a melting pot of near eastern peoples.

The date of the plebiscite, to be conducted by a League of Nations committee, still is indefinite. There have been mounting casualties in the bitter preëlection strife.

If the vote favors the Arabs, the territory probably will continue for some time under French mandate. If the Turkish win, eventually it will be annexed by Turkey.

Since October, 1936, Turkey has demanded the creation of a separate state with a plebiscite to decide whether Alexandretta should be under Turkish or French rule. The French agreed.

Per Cent of Population.

About 39 per cent of the population of Alexandretta is of Turkish descent. French officials declared Turkey's present objections are inspired by fears Alexandretta's Turks are far from solid for annexation by Kamal Ataturk's government.

[In Ankara, capital of Turkey, officials denied French reports of heavy Turkish army concentrations on the frontier and disputed the view that the Alexandretta Turks' support was doubtful. They declared France, in disregard of league pledges, was persecuting Turkish populations to prevent a preponderant Turkish vote in the plebiscite and that thousands of Turkish natives of Alexandretta had returned their to vote.]

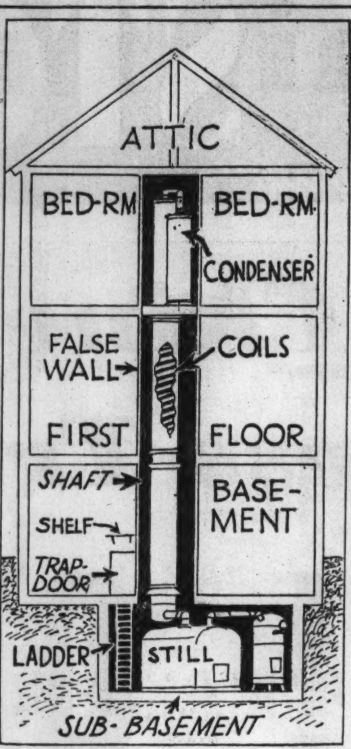
Registration for the election, halted at Turkey's request after 100 deaths in political street fights, will resume Monday under supervision of French troops.

Turkey regards Alexandretta as vital to her securtiy. It has a magnificent harbor, and there is oil—not only in the Sanjak's fields, but also in pipe lines and tank cars which bring it from Iraq to tankers which carry it to Europe.

FALL INJURIES KILL WOMAN, 79.

Mrs. Belle Smail, 79 years old, died in the County hospital yesterday of injuries incurred in a fall in her home, 3855 West End avenue.

Still Well Hidden



Drawing of arrangement of house at 4338 South Marshfield avenue where a 750 gallon still was so cleverly concealed that federal agents almost failed to find it.

AGENTS PUSHED UP SHELF BRACKET AND RAISED SECRET PANEL

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Disguised entrance to subbasement where still was.

Raiders from the federal alcohol tax unit were ready to give up in their search for a still in the home at 4338 South Marshfield avenue yesterday when one of them noticed the two parallel bedrooms were not of the same length. Boring through the wall of the one on the second floor, they found a brass column of the kind used to house a still's coils.

In the basement they noticed a shelf bracket which, when pushed up, opened a secret panel in the wall. Climbing through this opening they discovered a ladder to a 750 gallon still in the subbasement.

Mrs. Rose Chlibek, 37 years old, her son Frank, 19, her daughter, Josephine, 18, and her brother-in-law, Frank Sathulak, were arrested.

A TAXI DRIVER'S COLLIE WINS PET SHOW IN WALK

Lacks Blue Blood, but He Gets the Blue Ribbons.

(Bob Becker says the high cost of puppies is justified. See his "Mostly About Dogs" department in today's Graphic Section.)

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

Bishop, a taffy colored collie, is Chicago's own dog. He is without pedigree or title, an amateur. But he walked sedately around an outdoor judging ring yesterday at Lincoln park's pet show, the sun glinting on his shining coat, and walked off with two prizes.

Today his master, Allen Ryberg, 2824 Cambridge avenue, a taxicab driver, holds two blue ribbons that prove what he's known all along. Bishop's the smartest dog in town! Bishop's a champion!

Little Spitz Steals the Show.

While second prize went to a ponderous German shepherd belonging to Jack Metcalf, 506 Deming place, it took a snowy little Spitz dowager to win the plaudits of the spectators. Dressed in a pale pink afternoon dress, a sun bonnet dangling over her sharp left ear, she seated herself lightly and rode into the ring in a perambulator to claim third and fourth prizes. Her mistress, a proud little girl indeed, was Carol Rice, 625 Groveland Park avenue.

Buddy, owned by Virginia Carr, 608 Surf street, was acclaimed as the smallest dog in the show. Major, belonging to Douglas Reid, 826 Lakeside place, was awarded the prize for the longest ears.

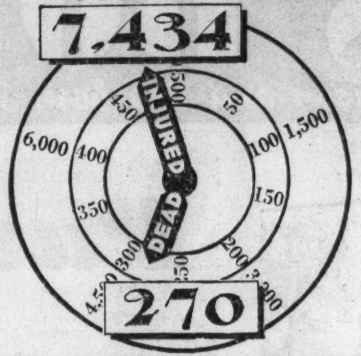
The whole show was a riot to the audience. Everybody enjoyed it, apparently, but the pets, who went through their paces obediently but without joy. They endured it while their tails were measured, their ears held erect, and their coats inspected for fleas. They paraded, heeled, sat, fetched, and rolled over to commands.

Pets Exert Selves to Please.

One shaggy little wire haired terrier labored for thirty minutes to please his master in the accomplishments test. He jumped, tugged, retrieved, and turned somersaults for the company, and then, exhausted, yelped defiantly at their laughter. Trixie, a Scotch shepherd, trotted briskly around the ring, only to be finally acclaimed for what she was—the oldest dog at the show. Thus unmasked, she lay down and slept.

It was not just a dog show. There were three hundred animals ,and am were 300 animals, and among them a fine array of gophers, squirrels, rabbits, and cats. There were snails, a woolly lamb with a pink ribbon around its neck, and a pair of wild sparrows in a gaily gilded cage.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1938 Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

WOMAN IS KILLED WHEN PICNIC BUS AND AUTO CRASH

A woman was killed and her husband and their three children were slightly injured last night in a head-on collision between their car and a chartered bus in U. S. highway 12, about two miles north of Lake Zurich. She was Mrs. Ethel Hinze, 31 years old, living near Wauconda.

About 25 passengers, mostly Chicago advertising men, were in the bus, but no one was hurt. They were returning from an advertising men's picnic at Bangs lake, Wauconda, at the time of the accident.

Those hurt in the Hinze car were Jess Hinze, 35; Ramona, 7; Alberta, 5, and Joan, 3. Police technically held Martin Everett, 33, of 2854 North Kostner avenue, the bus driver. He said Hinze drove into the bus.

Killed When Car Hits Pole.

Seemingly blinded by rain, William Traider lost control of his car yesterday at Ogden and Lawndale avenues, Lyons. It struck a pole, injuring Traider so severely that he died in the Berwyn hospital. Traider, who was 34 years old, lived at 8638 40th street, Lyons.

Henry Schuldt, 78 years old, 721 South State street, died in St. Luke's hospital early today of injuries suffered Friday night when he was struck by an automobile at Field drive and 11th street, near the Field museum. The driver was John .oyce, 61 years old, 6441 Greenview avenue, a warehouse owner.

Dies of Old Injury.

Edward Wetak, 26 years old, 1726 Hubbard street, died in the Lutheran Memorial hospital yesterday of injuries incurred last Sunday when he was struck by an automobile while riding a motorcycle at North avenue and Humboldt boulevard. Edward Zahorak, 2643 Armitage avenue, was the driver of the car.

John De Mar, 39 years old, a Chicago restaurant chain proprietor living at 1127 Farwell avenue, was injured when his car crashed into a Burlington railroad train and caught fire in Riggston, north of Winchester in Scott county. John Tichenor, 20, of Sullivan in Moultrie county, a hitchhiker riding with De Mar, was critically injured.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 352 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 270 were killed in Chicago, where 7,434 were injured in the same period.

U. S. GUARDS PACIFIC SALMON FISHING TRADE

Japanese Promise Help in Tense Situation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 4.—[Special.]—Although Japan has given assurances to the United States that it will stop its vessels from salmon fishing in Alaskan waters, the intense feeling aroused on the Pacific coast has not died down and the situation is being watched closely.

In the present state of international tension, instances of economic friction between any powers attain heightened importance, the state department believes. With a war in Asia already straining Japanese-American relations, the Alaskan fisheries situation, which has both fed and been fed by anti-Japanese feeling, is looked upon as a major problem in America's foreign relations.

On March 25 Japan assured the United States that it was suspending its salmon fishing survey in foreign waters and that it would not issue licenses for salmon fishing to its vessels in that area. If its vessels were found to be violating the arrangements by fishing for salmon Japan promised to take measures to stop the operations.

Doubt Worth of Promises.

American fishermen, who are none too certain of the sincerity of Japanese promises, have armed themselves or threatened to arm themselves and drive the Japs out of American waters with bullets.

The fisheries case can be traced back to 1930. Beginning that year and every year since then, there have been present in the Bristol Bay area of western Alaska during the salmon season, Japanese fishing vessels, made up of floating canneries and auxiliary vessels varying from small motor boats to Diesel powered trawlers.

As long as the activities of these vessels were confined to the taking of crabs which abound in the Bering sea they gave the American government no cause for concern. However, when indications pointed to Japanese salmon fishing, the American government was seriously concerned over perpetuation and protection of salmon resources.

50 Millions Yearly Periled.

In 1936 the Japanese government announced a three year fishing survey of the Bristol Bay area would be undertaken. The regular appearance of the Japanese survey vessels, coupled with the operations of the Japanese fishing fleet, aroused American fishermen in the area and the portion of the west coast dependent upon an industry which runs into 50 million dollars.

Japanese fishermen began to intercept the salmon run in Alaskan waters which threatened the salmon industry of the entire west coast fishing area. The dispute between the United States and Japan became a conflict between the American principle of conservation of natural resources and the Japanese technique of advancement to the origin of the runs of the fish.

By the use of floating canneries and mother ships, the Japanese were able to capture the red salmon of the Bristol bay area as the run of fish headed toward fresh waters where the salmon spawn. The Japanese fished with enormous nets which were set so as to diminish the run of fish heading toward inland waters.

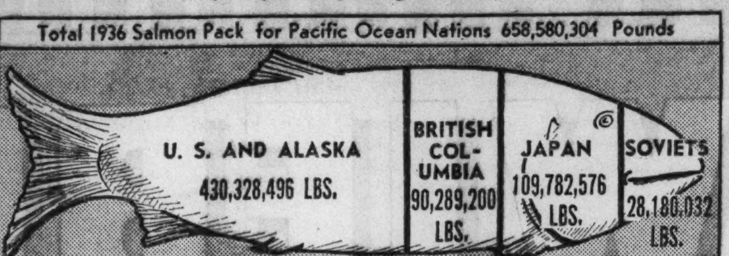
Use Forbidden Tackle.

Such gear is forbidden in Alaskan waters, but the bureau of fisheries had no control over its use outside the eight mile limit. The intensity of Japanese fishing, according to the bureau, would have depleted and eventually destroyed the supply of salmon.

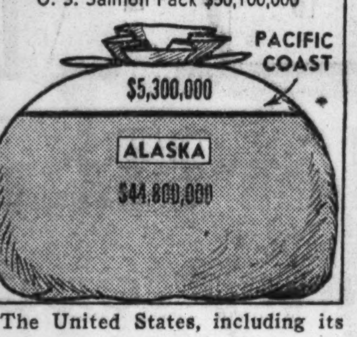
American fishermen and packers over a course of years have accepted congressional regulation of the fishing with the realization that their own interests were being protected. It was felt they would not accept further regulation to partly offset Japanese depredations without resorting to violence against the Japanese. For that reason the diplomatic negotiations, which culminated with the Japanese promise to refrain from salmon fishing, were begun a year ago.

Salmon Fishing Roils Waters

(Story in adjoining column.)



How nations divide packing of salmon caught in the Pacific ocean. Although Japan has agreed to stop salmon fishing in Alaska, where her methods have threatened the industry, tension between Japan and the United States is still strong over the situation. These maps and charts explain the situation.



The United States, including its Alaskan production, dominates the salmon industry.

TENEMENT FIRE KILLS WOMAN.

New York, June 4.—[U. P.]—Mrs. Esther Cohen, 46 years old, was killed, nine persons were injured and more than 30 men, women and children were carried down ladders by firemen in spectacular rescues today when fire destroyed a five story brick tenement.

TARGET OF BOMB PLOT LOCKED UP TO SAVE OTHERS

Because no effort was made to obtain the release of Oscar Strauss, 3250 Douglas boulevard, intended target of a dynamite plot, from a police cell yesterday, Capt. Louis Klatzco of the Fillmore street police station concluded that Strauss, known as Little Germany, is just a petty gambler, unimportant to the gambling fraternity. But he didn't let him go.

"Some one planted six sticks of dynamite under the hood of Strauss' automobile in an effort to kill him," Capt. Klatzco explained. "One stick would have been enough. If the explosion had occurred, twenty persons might have been killed, instead of just Strauss. It's because a score of other lives were endangered that we are holding Strauss.

"We may find out more about him and we intend to hold him for the showup in the detective bureau Sunday afternoon. He may be only a petty mugg, but some one had a wholesale idea about how to kill him. He shouldn't kick about staying in a cell. He's lucky to be alive."

FOREIGN WARS REVEAL FAULTS OF ARMY TANKS

U. S. Revises Tactics and Plans for New Guns.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 4.—[Special.]—Profiting from the lessons gathered by observation of the conflicts in Spain and China, the army general staff has revised its tank strategy, it was learned today.

New maneuvers for the cavalry of today have been tested within the last month at Fort Benning, Ga. The testing board has forwarded reports to Gen. Malin Craig, army chief of staf.

Changes in maneuvers for tanks were ordered when the Spanish and Sino-Japanese wars demonstrated that the armored caterpillars are highly vulnerable to anti-tank guns and their efficiency is affected by weather and terrain to a greater degree than had been considered previously.

As a result of studies of the two conflicts, the army also is preparing to add anti-tank gun units to its service branches. At present the army is without a single one of these weapons.

At the same time the navy is experimenting with a radical departure in hull design which may be employed in all vessels built under the naval expansion program.

Officials refused to discuss the nature of the experiments, but acknowledged that they are proceeding satisfactorily.

POLICE TRANSFER MAN HELD ON GIRL'S PLEA AS MOB PERILS HIM

Coatesville, Pa., June 4.—(AP)—Jim Ward, colored, held for questioning in connection with the molestation of a 19 year old college girl, was moved from the city hall by state police tonight when a mob of 2,000 persons gathered around the building. The mob, some of whom were armed with shotguns, marched to the city hall with cries of "Get him!" The girl, Marjorie Stern, said she had been molested last night by a colored man while she and her escort were in a parked automobile. The escort, George Horning, 20 years old, said the man menaced them with a pistol and later forced him from the car.

ARGUE DECISION IN RADIUM POISON CASE TOMORROW

The Illinois industrial commission will hear arguments tomorrow in the city hall at La Salle on the appeal of the Radium Dial company from an arbitrator's decision awarding damages to Mrs. Catherine Donohue, who suffered permanent injuries from radium poisoning. Mrs. Donohue, a former employé of the company at Ottawa, was granted $3,740, a life pension of $277 annually beginning June 1, 1940, and $2,500 for medical treatment. By agreement between her attorney, Leonard J. Grossman, and Arthur Magid, counsel for the company, the final decision in the case will govern claims of fourteen other women victims.

MARINE RESERVE CRIPPLED BY ACT OF COMMUNISTS

Strike Propaganda Keeps Sailors from Enlisting.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 4.—[Special.]—Advocates of a strong American merchant marine are concerned seriously over failure of American sailors and youth to enroll in the merchant marine naval reserve.

Last summer plans were announced for building the merchant marine reserve to 35,000 men and 5,000 officers Thus far, though there are 3,700 officers, only 79 men have enrolled.

This leaves the United States with by far the weakest merchant marine reserve among the maritime powers of the world. This is regarded as a cause for serious concern, because a reserve is as essential to the operation of a merchant fleet in emergency as it is to the operation of the army in war.

Communists Cry "Strikebreaker."

Government representatives, who have made inquiries on the water front, say that America's merchant sailors have been told over and over again by communists in their unions that they would be used as strikebreakers if they joined the naval reserve.

Navy recruiting officers are seeking to explode this argument. They are pointing out that Uncle Sam wants to enroll sailors purely for national defense purposes; to have them ready in time of war, when the navy would take over merchant ships.

Senate and house conferees on a bill to amend the 1936 merchant marine act were reported deadlocked on a provision to provide government training for merchant marine sailors.

Certain maritime unions have fought this proposal from the outset, on the ground that there already were too many sailors and that the training plan was designed to destroy the unions.

Balk Coast Guard Plan.

Joseph P. Kennedy, when he was chairman of the maritime commission, urged congress to authorize a plan whereby the coast guard would train 500 young Americans each year for service in the merchant marine.

Harry Lundeberg, secretary-treasurer of the sailors of the union, denounced the plan. He said the coast guard "would instill into them [the sailors] a certain spirit of loyalty calculated to outweigh any selfish interest." The training ships, he said, merely would turn out strikebreakers.

The house merchant marine committee, heeding the arguments of C. I. O. representatives, threw out the training plan. The senate commerce committee eliminated the language naming the coast guard, but provided that the maritime commission be authorized to set up a system of training in conjunction with "other governmental agencies."

That is one of the items in the bill now keeping the senate and house conferees from reaching an agreement. The conferees will meet again tomorrow.

WORLD WAR SPY LEAVES PRISON TO BECOME NUN

Marie Ducret, who entered prison in 1918 at the age of 22, walked out of Rennes prison accompanied by a sister from a convent at Ecommoy, where she will prepare to take her vows. A military tribunal condemned the girl to death, but her sentence was commuted to life imprisonment at hard labor.

REPORTED FLAWS IN 7 LOST NAVAL BOMBERS DENIED

Findings of Investigators to Be Made Public.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 4.—[Special.]—The secret investigation, which the navy has been conducting into its greatest peace time disaster since the blowing up of the Maine in Havana harbor—the series of losses of seven new navy bombers with the death of thirty-one flyers—enters its sixth month tomorrow.

Navy officials today said the investigation is in its last phase and will be made public shortly. The findings of the board of inquiry are being studied by the engineering division. It will be checked by the judge advocate general's office for form before it will be made public upon approval of Secretary of the Navy Swanson.

None of Planes Found.

The first of the lost planes crashed Jan. 5, and the last March 30. The planes had a total value of about $1,500,000. One was lost when it fell into the surf while rounding a cliff near Honolulu and two others were lost in fog. Mystery surrounds the loss of the other four. No trace has been found of the planes or their crews.

All the planes were lost in maneuvers during which the naval high command attempts to simulate service under wartime conditions. In proportion to the number of planes involved the losses were relatively small. More than 600 planes were engaged in the war games.

The navy is concerned in preventing future loss of life. To this end the investigation is being concentrated on the plane itself to see if the type has structural defects which escaped designers and test pilots.

Rumors Follow Losses.

The loss of the planes gave rise to rumors of a major scandal which the naval high command was attempting to hush. It was said that the American planes were structurally defective and that pilots were ordered out to their deaths in suicidal weather.

The investigation thus far has proved these rumors to be entirely groundless, a high official of the navy department told THE TRIBUNE. So far, he said, no fault has been found with either the design or structure of the eighteen ton bombers.

Pilots were not ordered out in impossible flying weather, he said, acknowledging that it was true that three of the ships were lost in bad weather but in each case fog settled suddenly.

In answer to rumors that exhausted pilots were ordered out, it was said that no pilot took the air until after he had been passed as fit to fly by a navy physician.

"It is true that the pilots were under a greater strain than they would have been during normal flights," the high official said. "But to prepare for war they must go through conditions approximating what they may be called upon to face in time of war."

Seven of 600 Lost.

The report that the maneuvers were ill planned was answered by the statement that if this were true the navy would have lost far more than seven out of 600 planes.

"There is no doubt that the American navy is more exacting on its flyers than any other navy of the world," the high official continued. "They are called upon to spend a greater number of hours in the air and fly greater distances. At the same time they have better planes and are given greater protection in every possible way than any other flyers.

"The record of the American navy stacks up against that of any other power.

450 Take Examination for Ward Superintendent

Four hundred and fifty applicants took a civil service examination for city ward superintendents yesterday at the Wells High school, 946 North Ashland avenue. It was the first such examination held in ten years. There are seventeen vacancies in the city's fifty wards.

FALL RESULTS IN DEATH.

Richard Underlin, 89 years old, 661 Madison street, died in the County hospital yesterday of an infection that developed after he fell and injured his right wrist on May 18.

BRITISH-U. S. PACT ON BATTLESHIPS, GUNS REPORTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 4.—An agreement is reported to have been reached between the United States and Great Britain that their new battleships will mount 16 inch guns and that the American ships will displace 45,000 tons to match Japan's supposed plans. The British will be content with 42,000 ton battleships.

These decisions have been reached after two and one-half months of discussion, Lieutenant Commander Kenneth Edwards, naval correspondent of the Sunday Times, says. The agreement will be announced in parliament on June 15, he says, unless questions force a prior announcement.

France will keep 35,000 ton vessels in the hope the race for big ships will be confined to the Pacific.

THE C. I. O.'S DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

Senator Wheeler's warning to his Democratic colleagues in the senate the other day came too late. He was discussing the current efforts of administration leaders to defeat in the primaries the Democratic members who have dared to oppose the President's will at any point. Mr. Wheeler spoke indignantly of the gross misuse of relief money to defeat Gillette of Iowa and others like him. Such men as Hopkins and Corcoran, who are playing this game, will destroy the Democratic party by their tactics, he said.

Mr. Wheeler erred only in using the future tense. The Democratic party is not going to be destroyed; it has been destroyed. Its principles have long ago been abandoned. Its program and even its tactics today are far closer to communism than they are to democracy. As Peter Molyneaux, the Democratic editor of the Texas Weekly, recently observed in a radio address, the Democratic party is today the prisoner of the extremists led by John Lewis and his C. I. O.

Mr. Molyneaux reached his conclusion upon analysis of the vote in the Pennsylvania primaries. The Lewis-C. I. O. candidates were defeated, to be sure, but they obtained something like 40 per cent of the Democratic vote. The total Republican vote was larger than the total Democratic vote by some 300,000. It is, therefore, as nearly certain as anything in politics can be that the Democrats cannot win without Lewis' support. By artful threats to withdraw from the Democratic ranks and form a party of his own Lewis has won for himself the power to impose his will upon the Democrats. He can make demands upon them which must be accepted if their party is to have a chance of success in November, for the balance of forces in Pennsylvania is paralleled to a greater or less degree in half a dozen critical northern states.

Lewis will not hesitate to use the power he possesses to force his will upon the party. When his tactical position was far weaker than it is today he forced the administration to give him the Wagner act and the National Labor Relations board, to say nothing of the two Guffey acts and their administration. As if to prove the administration's subservience to Lewis Mr. Farley committed the administration to support of the Lewis candidate for governor of Pennsylvania. Lewis' immediate goal is the wage and hour law; the administration is obediently putting on the pressure for this measure although it is bitterly opposed by southern Democrats. The administration would rather risk the antagonism of these men than oppose Lewis' desires. After the wage law Lewis will reach for new weapons to attack industry and new means of increasing his following and his war chest, and the administration will have to bow to his demands even though it is obvious that such measures can only deepen the depression.

Many of the Democratic veterans in congress, like Wheeler, resent this trend, but their protests, though earnest and ably presented, can have little effect. Whether the majority of Democrats like it or not, the course which their party has pursued since the summer of 1933 has rendered it increasingly subservient to radicals and revolutionaries. Destructive forces have been released which preclude any retreat from Moscow at this late date.

SENATOR HOLT'S DOG.

Senator Rush Holt of West Virginia is reported by a Washington news gatherer to have put a police dog on guard in his office at night. He has been annoyed by the interest some one unknown to him has shown in his papers.

The incident is plausible. We have heard from time to time of wire tapping in the Washington government offices, and espionage, though obnoxious to the normal American, is certain to find favor in a régime convinced that any means are justified to win political success. Senator Holt has dared to differ with the fuehrer and with various inspirations of the New Deal. An open seizure of his papers would be prevented or furnished by some reactionary judge, not yet removed in the interest of our progress to the more abundant life, and the only alternative is a little cautious rummaging among his papers. But Senator Holt was taking chances on losing a good dog.

A PACIFIST ALARM.

Although the pacifists in America have been a little chastened by the spectacle of European dictatorships overawing democratic peoples and declaring the end of democratic experiment, pacifist ideology, if we may use that suspicious term, operates about as usual. Thus a church conference in New York has passed a resolution condemning the "blackout" at the army maneuvers at Farmingdale, N. Y., on the ground that it instilled fear. A Brooklyn clergyman of another persuasion also protests and views the blackout as dramatic evidence of a rising spirit of militarism in the United States.

The blackout was a shutting off of all lights in the neighborhood during practice maneuvers of the army air force. It is about as purely defensive as anything conceivable. If it suggested "militarism" to the reverend gentleman it is because he thinks any organized preparation for defense against attack is militarism. Few pacifists are willing to swallow the doctrin of nonresistance when its full implications are put up to them, but all pacifists juggle the word militarism, as a term of opprobrium, to cover any measure of preparedness. The reverend gentleman here quoted would not perhaps go to the extent of refusing to turn out his lights in an actual enemy air raid, but when plans are made for a blackout by the army they become for him evidence of militarism. Pacifism in America does not favor nonresistance to attack—only that resistance shall be impromptu and inadequate. Any preparation is "militarism" in the pacifist lexicon.

THROUGH SOUTHERN EYES.

A southern lady, who in view of her trenchant pen is not inappropriately named Slay, contributes to the American Mercury observations garnered in a visit to "the north," more specifically New York, Philadelphia, and Boston. Mindful, no doubt, of William of Wykeham's apothegm that "manners makyth man," Mrs., or perhaps it is miss, Slay deals first with the condition of our manners and she finds them deplorable, which, by and large, they are.

"We have long known," says Miss or Mrs. Slay, "that northerners, though somewhat similar [to southerners] in physical appearance, are a race quite different from us; but their complete lack of social graces must be simply incredible to one that has not observed them in their habitat. Their life is so pathetically lacking in the small niceties and dignities that we take for granted that I sometimes wonder why northerners want to go on living at all. For one thing, northern men are not gentlemen. I am aware that that is a shockingly bald statement; but it is nevertheless a fact that northern men do not remove their hats in elevators, do not rise or even take their feet off their desks when ladies enter their offices, do not give ladies their seats in street cars, and are extremely careless about letting ladies precede them through doorways."

Miss or Mrs. Slay is not disposed to blame northern men altogether, for, much as it grieves her to say it, "the typical northern woman is hardly what a southerner thinks of as a lady. She is so assured, so competent, and so efficient that one cannot hold the men entirely responsible for unchivalrous conduct."

We leave these opinions to the mercy, if any, of Vox Pop. Our own view of her indictment of northern manners as disclosed in our public activities is that it is too mild. It is true she is on very thin ice when she assumes that the removing of hats in an elevator is in itself evidence that a man is not a gentleman. That is a matter of custom and the custom has changed. An Egyptian of unimpeachable gentility does not remove his hat even in the theater or the mosque. But as for giving up seats in buses or street cars she has only scratched the surface of our offending. She might have noticed, if her investigation had been more searching, that a woman or man obviously feeble, stricken with age or burdened with packages or in the care of a child will be permitted to stand while able bodied men, young and middle aged, to say nothing of young women, all in apparent enjoyment of health and strength, hold their seats.

This, indeed, is not to be a gentleman or a lady or even a decent human being. It too often happens and suggests a good deal of what is wrong in American life today.

On other counts in the southern indictment of northern manners Miss or Mrs. Slay will find a good deal of assent north of the Mason and Dixon line, though they are rather sweeping and indiscriminate. She says, for example, that the discourtesies of the men are the smallest part of the general unmannerliness. "Neither men nor women seem to have any regard for the sensibilities of other people." We have not space to quote her horrible examples. We are not surprised to find that she is impressed with our hurry, suggesting to her that it is partly the effect of climate, and partly an aspect of northern habits which have had results not altogether worthy of dispraise. We feel more in sympathy with her remarks on noise and would join any lynching party of outraged citizenry to do summary justice on the moronic tooter of motor horns, the sadist who opens his exhaust in the hours of repose, or any other maker of unnecessary noise. We are all for her pungent remarks on the New York subway, which reveals mankind in a state in which the bombing of cities is an appropriate and congenial exercise.

Only on one serious matter do we find ourselves in incorrigible dissent. Miss or Mrs. Slay seems to have been very incompetently shepherded, probably by a fellow southerner. She cites a lack of good cooking. We have encountered the mine run of cooking in the south and Miss or Mrs. Slay's condemnation leaves us unmoved. There is no myth more cherished in the south than that of southern cooking. There is good cooking in the south, in New Orleans for example. There are, too, oases in the desert. Our northern manners are often deplorable, but, no, Miss or Mrs. Slay, do not ask us to feed on the myth of southern cooking.

THE HIGHER EDUCATION.

At Princeton university presidents of the classes of '39, '40, and '41 have just been chosen. Next year's senior class elected Mr. Hobler, who was captain of the basketball team in his freshman year, a member of the "yearling baseball team," the varsity basketball team, and the "jay vee" baseball team. Also vice president of his class for the sophomore and junior years, and secretary of the undergraduate council.

Next year's junior class elected Mr. Raymond, a varsity football player. Next year's sophomores selected Mr. Robertson, who "won his freshman numerals in soccer, basketball, and baseball."

Wasn't it Socrates who ran all the way from Marathon to Athens to bring the news of victory? Mens sana in corpore sano.

Editorial of the Day

LIVE STOCK IN THE NEW SOUTH.

[West Point (Miss.) Times-Leader.]

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, whose antagonism to the south indicates that it has not yet realized that the war between the states ended in April, 1865, complains that it is the federal farm act that is turning the south to hogs, cows, and pastures. It is our natural advantages for live stock production—our long growing season, abundant rainfall, cheap land, our large sized families willing to work at anything honorable, the extermination of the cattle tick, etc. And one more thing—the increasing number of young southerners who are being trained for live stock farming through 4-H club work and through live stock projects in vocational agriculture.

HITLER GRABS RICHES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ZURICH, Switzerland.—The confiscation of property of persons charged with being "inimical to the Nazi state" is proceeding at a rapid pace in Germany's new province of Austria and, to a lesser extent, in Germany proper.

The confiscatory movement is so obvious that Germany's little neighbors, which are worried by Nazi propaganda, are beginning to hope that it will open the eyes of those who occasionally have been impressed by the Nazi assertion that Naziism is a bulwark against communism. Properties of Jews, aristocrats, bourgeois non-Nazi statesmen and officials, and of Catholic and Protestant organizations, disagreeing with the state regimentation of the church, are being confiscated in Adolf Hitler's new empire on a steadily increasing scale.

In Germany the expropriation campaign moves much more slowly than in Austria. Occasionally the official Gazette publishes notices of the confiscation of funds of persons accused of high treason, of persons deprived of German nationality, and of Catholic, Protestant, and other church associations accused of being "inimical to the state." Details about the confiscation of funds of Protestant pastors when they were arrested or their homes raided have never been announced officially.

The expropriation of Jews, who were compelled to sell their businesses for a song under Nazi pressure, goes on simultaneously and surreptitiously. Nazi authorities explain these forced sales "are the unavoidable consequence of the awakening of Germany which makes it impossible to allow Jews to remain important business factors." Technically speaking, these sales are not confiscations, but they amount to about the same.

After the conquest of Austria the Nazis dropped part of their mask. Vienna papers carried advertisments of firms announcing that they had "been taken over by the workers and employés." There were front page reports of the confiscation of the property of the famous Rothschild banking family. Americans attempted to visit friends living near the palace of Baron Louis Rothschild, who had been arrested by the Nazis. They had to apply to officers of the Schutz Staffel [hand picked guards] on duty in the Rothschild palace for permission to enter the nearby houses. While talking to the officers they saw baskets full of silver carried out of the palace.

This was in the first days of the conquest of Austria. The Rothschild property was not confiscated officially until weeks after these American visitors had seen Rothschild property being carted away from the palace.

The estates of the former imperial family of Hapsburg were seized because Archduke Otto, heir to the former Austrian throne, protested against Germany's invasion and conquest of his native country. A warant has been issued against him.

The Nazis also are trying to brand his brother, Archduke Felix, as a thief. They issued a warant for his arrest because Felix, who fled when the Germans entered Austria, took with him silver and table linen from the castle of his ancestors.

Nora Gregor, Viennese actress who spent several seasons in Hollywood and is now the wife of Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, has been informed that her property in Austria has been confiscated. She went to Switzerland with her husband and baby son shortly before the Nazis seized Austria. The Nazis published an announcement stating she had failed to pay a dressmaking bill of $500 and that "therefore all her property has been placed under the control of a state custodian."

The Starhemberg family asserts that the princess' property was seized because the Nazis were afraid it might be used by the family in an effort to help buy the release of Princess von Starhemberg, Nora's mother-in-law, who was arrested for "attempting to escape with her funds" after the Germans entered Austria.

According to German law, nobody can leave the country with more than $4 unless he or she obtains a state permit. The castles and vast holdings of the 70 year old princess have been taken over by the Nazis. Friends have seen her scrubbing stairs in a public building in Vienna under supervision of a Schutz Staffel man.

The Childs hospital in Vienna was seized. It was founded by Dr. A. Edelman, to whom William Childs of New York restaurant fame, donated large sums of money in gratitude for his medical services. Edelman used the money to create a research center and a hospital. When the Nazis came Edelman was removed from the hospital and the Nazis took it over.

Prof. Eugene Steinach, the 78 year old wizard of rejuvenation, left Austria two days before Hitler took it. The Nazis raided his home and his estates. They found $8,000 in a safe. They ruled this proved he was preparing to flee the country and seized his property.

Vienna papers announced that all Jewish-owned villas and week-end lodges near the Danube have been expropriated by the Nazis because Jews shall not "mar the week-end joys of their Aryan neighbors."

For "strategic reasons" the Jewish population along the Czech, Hungarian, and Serb borders of Austria is being evacuated from an area 25 miles deep along the frontier. What will happen to them is unknown. Most of their property is lost.

Nazi newspapers proudly boasted that former leaders of the Austrian government are under arrest or in the dreaded concentration camp of Dachau, near Munich. Most of them are stanch Catholics who had fought socialism, communism, as well as Naziism.

Persons threatened with arrest, poverty, and detention in concentration camps are committing suicide by the dozens in once gay Austria. A young doctor who killed his mother before ending his own life to save her from poverty and possible detention aroused the sympathy of many Viennese.

Jews are convinced that the compulsory registration of their holdings in Germany and abroad, prepares the way for a final Ghetto law that will place everything they own under strict government control, leading to gradual expropriation. Strangely enough, this new Nazi step has terrified non-Jewish and non-Nazi property owners in Germany almost more than the Jews.

"It means that the friends of the Nazis have succeeded in getting most of the Jewish property they wanted," a big property owner said. "The registration law puts the thumbscrews on the Jews, but it can't yield very much more. Then the men who have been profiting from the systematic expropriation of Jews will look for new fields to conquer and it will be the turn of the non-Nazi property owners to be branded as enemies of the state."

In Vienna young toughs of the Storm Troops are depriving the Jews of the last of their hopes. On Sunday, April 24, Viennese burghers, including Jewish families, were enjoying their Sunday morning stroll. Suddenly a gang of several hundred Storm Troopers swooped down on the crowd, pushing away those wearing Nazi or foreign badges and grabbing men, women, and children who had no badges because they were German or Austrian Jews. With fists and short crops, similar to the dogwhip carried by Julius Streicher, Germany No. 1 Jew baiter, they herded the Jews together. Everybody else fled, peering cautiously around the street corners.

The Jews were lined up like soldiers. They were ordered to recite in chorus, "Jew croak," the Nazi anti-Semitic battlecry, or "I am a Jewish swine." Then they were marched off—about 500 men, women, and children. From time to time the Storm Troops forced the Jews to do kneebending exercises—young and old. Those who did not bend deeply or quickly enough were kicked or punched. Then they were marched on.

This went on for about half an hour. Then the Nazi escorts gradually dropped back. The Jews scattered as fast as they could with the toughs charging after those who were slow.

"POLIO"—AN UNSOLVED PROBLEM.

WHAT we do not know about poliomyelitis—infantile paralysis—would fill an encyclopedia. We have heard about the malady for centuries, and a famous carving made about 1300 B. C. depicts the withered limb of an Egyptian priest, the aftermath of an attack.

Although we cannot identify the cause, physicians have learned much about the disorder through studying its behavior—the symptoms and the regions of the body attacked. All signs point to the fact that it is carried by a filtrable virus, as bacteria free secretions removed from the nasal passages of infected animals may transmit the disease.

Does it enter via the nose and throat? Evidently this area constitutes one doorway, but there is reason to believe that it may find its way to the nervous system from some place along the digestive canal. We are not even positive just how contagious it is. Health authorities, however, are taking a safe position in insisting on quarantine.

Although we cannot put our finger on the mode of spread, can we draw some lessons from the migratory habits of the ailment? A recent article by L. L. Lumsden notes that in 1934 the disorder appeared on the Pacific coast, although Oregon was strangely exempt. In 1935 New York, Massachusetts, most of the middle states, and Kentucky, Virginia, and North Carolina were visited. In 1936 Tennessee and Alabama showed a high preponderance. In 1937 the largest number of cases was found among residents of the Mississippi valley westward to the Rocky mountains. Deserving of consideration also is the fact that epidemics are encountered chiefly during the warm months, although occasional instances may arise in any season.

Viewing the entire question broadly the medical detective should suspect every possible cause until innocence has been proved. Many afflictions hitherto puzzling were found to be disseminated by animals or other living forms, such as insects, and the chances are that when the source of poliomyelitis finally is discovered we may be chagrined to learn that the vehicle of conveyance is some common pest—one that bites.

But whatever the origin, we know that it carries a powerful poison which may result in damage to the spinal cord so extensive as to leave the victim paralyzed, at least partially. Again, some investigators hold that there are a large number of cases which are so mild that no injury is suffered by the nervous system. The true character of the complaint may not be recognized at all. The child may be indisposed for only a day or two with mild symptoms of a cold or what seems to be indigestion.

The best remedy is blood from one who has recovered from the disease, or mixed serum from a large number of adults. If paralysis is detected the affected parts should be put at rest, so that muscle contractures will not occur. After the acute symptoms have subsided completely, massage and exercise may be begun.

There seems to be no doubt that the vaccines so far advocated are without value; in fact, they may be dangerous. Furthermore, conflicting observations have been reported as to the efficacy of spraying the nose with a solution of zinc. But both the physicians and the public are loathe to sit idly by and watch the progress of an epidemic from the side lines. There often is danger in doing too much, but it may be said for nasal spraying that if it does no good, if skilfully administered it will do no harm.

Thorough screening of every home is always in order, whether we can trace poliomyelitis to a fly bite or not, and on vacations children especially may apply some anti-bug lotion over all exposed portions of the body, such as the face, hands, arms, and legs.

From Across the Sea

BY W. A. O'CARROLL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia.—Since male bathers on Sydney beaches have defied an edict against wearing only trunks the municipal councils have started a campaign to prevent persons so garbed from parading the streets.

Women bathers have added to the councils' embarrassment by sporting the tabooed brassiere costumes on beaches and streets. Appeals have been made to the police for action, but they quote the offenses act, which provides: "Whosoever is guilty of any riotous, violent, or indecent behavior in any street or public place . . . shall be liable to a fine not exceeding £2, in default seven days' imprisonment."

As there is a clear definition of conduct that is "riotous" or "violent," no man wearing only trunks, or woman wearing trunks and a brassiere, who walks quietly along a street, could be so charged.

The definition of "immodest" likewise is full of pitfalls and fine shades. Proceeding on the literal wording of the act, the word "indecent" involves only some flagrant act of indecency. And there are degrees of nudity which constitute another difficulty.

It would appear that the only means of gratifying the wishes of the councils lies in amendment of the law. This course the state government would be reluctant to take in view of the ridicule and, what the Americans call, "gagging," it endured when a minister of the crown some time ago sought to fashion and enforce "a modest costume" for female bathers. The heartbreak of the municipal fathers is that Sydney should become "continental."

TERMS OF WILL.

Chicago, May 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We have been helping and supporting my wife's parents [mother and stepfather] for the last five years. Recently the stepfather died, leaving a will in which a lawyer is named executor. This will was drawn up by said lawyer free of charge, naming my wife [daughter] and me beneficiaries. The value of the estate will be less than $2,000 and [1] we fail to see why an executor is needed. Also, the mother is ready to swear that no power of executor was contemplated or given in making said will.

2. Can a new will be made?

3. The mother and stepfather were co-owners of the estate.

4. Can we be made co-owners? The stepfather has a son from a previous marriage living in Europe. He never helped in any way but [5] will get $200 as a remembrance. No such amount is stated in the will [6] leaving the matter with the executor, who could do as he likes. A. P. X.

1. You appear to be laboring under some misconception. We cannot see how you would be any better off if the will did not name an executor.
2. If the testator has died, then obviously it is too late for him to make a new will, but in general, if all parties interested in his estate agree, they can do anything they please.
3. You do not make clear whether they were joint tenants. If they were, the property would go to the survivor; if they were not, then one-half would pass under the will.
4. See 3.
5. The basis of this statement is not clear in view of your next statement.
6. We cannot advise to advantage without having the wording before us.

BANK LOAN.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I would like to know if a bank can attach a life insurance policy for a loan that was made to my father. My sister and I pay the premium and are named as beneficiaries.

2. Could the bank get a court judgment and order us to pay the loan?

3. Would it be better to cash in the life insurance policy? The account was [4] supposed to be settled several years ago when my father sold the mortgaged articles and gave the bank the money. However, now they have discovered there is a life insurance policy and they are trying to get it also. This is taking place in Oregon. J. E. D.

1. In general, a creditor's chances of reaching his debtor's insurance depend on whether the debtor has under the wording of the policy, the right to change the beneficiary.
2. In general, no.
3. Depends on facts that are not before us.
4. Supposed by whom? You do not give us the facts on this point.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LIFE ESTATE.

Chicago, May 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Would your legal department please render its unbiased opinion on the following questions? "A" signs a quit claim deed to all his property, reserving in himself and his wife a life estate for and during their lives.

1. What jurisdiction has he lost over this property?

2. Can he sell this property? [I should like the provisions contained in the answer to this question explained in full.]

3. If the person to whom this quit claim is conveyed dies before "A," leaving no will, does "A" lose his reservation of the life estate? There are no children involved, the person to whom this quit claim is conveyed not being related in any way. V. E.

1. He has lost the control of the remainder after his life estate, as you have stated.
2. Yes, as to his life estate; no, as to the remainder.
3. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PRESCRIPTION—DAMAGE.

Chicago, May 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Must a prescription be signed by a doctor to be legal?

2. Is a gas station attendant responsible if he breaks the [3] lens of your headlights on your car while changing bulbs? J. M. C.

1. Depends on what you mean by prescription and by legal. It would be punishable for a person who was not licensed as a physician to masquerade as one; on the other hand, we see no objection if a layman as such merely writes out a recipe or formula asking a druggist to prepare the mixture.
2. Depends on the facts as to negligence.
3. We assume that you mean lense.

SOURCES OF OUR LITTER.

Chicago, May 31.—Much of the untidiness of the city is due to the vast numbers of advertising papers, some as bulky as a Sunday newspaper, which are distributed each week all over Chicago, only to be kicked off steps and porches and blown by the wind along streets and parkways and piled up against buildings. Another source of these papers is many news stands where papers, wrappers, and string are scattered about without restraint.

Another source of trouble is the habit of many fruit stores using the sidewalk for business instead of their stores. West Chicago avenue is an illustration of this because the sidewalks have been narrowed to make possible the widening of the street pavement. Fruit and vegetable merchants have usurped half the sidewalk for the display of fruits, vegetables, fish, and chickens [live ones in crates], with the streets littered with wrappings and rubbish; passersby are compelled to walk single file at times.

While the city deserves severe criticism for its unwaranted neglect of street cleaning and garbage removal, yet many citizens are themselves to blame for throwing garbage, rubbish, and papers into the alleys without a pretense of garbage containers, and the wind and the small boy do the scattering. Stop much of the trouble at its source, and the problem is half solved. OBSERVER.

TO IOWA VOTERS.

Dubuque, Ia., May 30.—Senator Gillette of Iowa is a good Democrat and voted with the administration on all its major legislation except the bill to pack the Supreme court. In voting to defeat this legislation Senator Gillette acted according to the wishes of a majority of his constituents and in the interests of the people of Iowa and the nation.

The administration recently, through Harry Hopkins, has indorsed Mr. Wearin to succeed Senator Gillette. If the administration is infallible, no senators are necessary—not even Mr. Wearin.

Senator Gillette proved by his vote against packing the Supreme court that he is a real statesman and a patriot, and the people of Iowa should be certain that his sterling qualities are rewarded at the primary on June 6, so as to encourage intelligent and faithful public servants and discourage puppetism and rubber-stampism, which ultimately will convert America from a democracy to a dictatorship such as today afflicts Russia, Italy, and Germany. JOHN J. WEBER.

LOCKED PARKED CARS.

Chicago, May 30.—The automobile parking situation is growing worse every day, particularly in summer time, when cars are left on the streets overnight. I have no fault to find with the person parking his car on the streets day or night, but I don't think it is right for any man to put on the brakes, lock his car, and disappear, as it is absolutely impossible to move the car, thus leaving you without remedy except to stand still and wait for the owners of the locked cars to return. And when the cars are not locked they park them so close to each other that you are obliged to smash each other's cars in order to work your way out, if you can, from the entanglement of the rear and front bumpers, and it is also dangerous in case of fire.

It seems to me the motorists ought to look into this matter for their own safety, not locking their cars and not parking them so close to each other, otherwise the legislature will be called upon to pass a law prohibiting drivers from locking their cars while parking, and leave a space between cars of about four feet, so that you may pull out your car with safety.

If the person finds himself locked up so that he cannot move his car out unless he injures it, a suit for damages will be sustained against the persons guilty of locking their cars and close parking. WILLIAM CHONES.

OUT WITH THE POLITICIANS.

Chicago, May 28.—What we need in this country is another rebellion to put the politicians where they belong, and that's not in the driver's seat of the country. The entire New Deal tax program should be junked, the present incumbrance in the White House should be made to get out and let this country get to work.

Phooey on any one who thinks he is escaping when any government starts an attack on the rich. That usually proves a boomerang on the poor. F. G. B.

OUR EASY PAROLE LAW.

Chicago, May 17.—I am only one of many who think our easy Illinois parole law is entirely wrong. Note the latest case where the paroled moron again committed new atrocities. There are few cases where this does not happen.

To my idea these fellows are little more than wild animals, and should be caged as such. No woman or child, regardless of age, is safe when these criminals are at large. They should be sterilized when caught. EMILY SOLAMAN.

ELMHURST HEAD HAILS IDEALS OF SMALL COLLEGES

Dr. Lehmann Cites Value of Christian Education.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Dr. Timothy Lehmann.

When President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago calls for a return to metaphysics as a core of learning in education he touches the heart of the unique service offered for the maintenance of American democratic civilization by the four-year liberal arts college with its emphasis in Christian education.

Religion, which is the study of the laws of being and the laws of God, may be taught even apart from purely denominational and divisive elements, according to Dr. Timothy Lehmann, president of Elmhurst college and secretary of the Federation of Illinois Colleges. And we neglect it, he says, at our peril, as individuals whose spiritual well being makes up the nation.

Group Faces Problems.

The problem of the twenty-two church related colleges in Illinois and the hundreds in other states, is that of survival in the face of decreasing support and the pressure of the tax-supported secular institutions, the junior college from below, the state university from above. The question is one of justification in excellence, developing in new form the ideals which gave birth to these institutions in one of the great forward movements of the human spirit.

President Lehmann has seen the enrolment doubled at Elmhurst during the last ten years. The college is supported chiefly by the Evangelical and Reformed church. A hopeful outlook is indicated in the present campaign for an endowment fund of a million dollars and a general science hall.

Dr. Lehmann Tells Views.

Of the problem of the small colleges in general, Dr. Lehmann says:

"Not until we make the whole nation aware of the underlying cause of the confusion and turmoil, namely an indifference toward the vital requisites of a wholesome life, and then suggest in regard to education as well as economics that the essential unifying element is, after all, a commitment to the reality of the unseen and the validity of the spiritual life, can we hope to cope with the problems that now agitate us."

The story of Elmhurst begins with the civil war period, when the immigrant groups in the northwest set about providing ministers and teachers to preserve their religion and culture, just as the early settlers of New England did. A small private seminary was established at Waukegan early in the '60s and later moved to Elmhurst where it was named Melanchthon seminary. Another seminary begun in Evansville by the German Evangelical synod of the west was combined with Melanchthon in 1871 to form the college beginning.

Development of College.

In 1919 it was reorganized as a junior college and in 1923-'24 as a four year liberal arts college. In 1930 it became co-educational and in 1934 was accredited to the North Central association.

It still continues to prepare students for the Eden Theological seminary, but its emphasis is broadly religious rather than denominational. In this it has followed the course of colleges throughout the country. The present emphasis, however, here as elsewhere, is to get nearer to religion as the great saving factor in life.

The college stands in a thirty acre campus in the deep wooded section of Elmhurst. Its library was built as a memorial to the soldiers of the Evangelical synod who fell in the world war. Its gymnasium was in part given by alumni and by W. A. Wieboldt of Chicago. The attractive women's dormitory was remodeled in 1935 and now has 111 girls in residence. The enrollment is 288.

Prominent Alumni.

Community support of the college has grown during the depression period, but co-education has accounted in large part for the recent increase. Music, drama, with stagecraft taught in educational plays in the college theater, are features of college life. Chemistry is pointed to as one of the stronger courses. There are thirty-two members of the faculty.

Among the alumni of Elmhurst are Reinhold Niebuhr, professor of applied Christianity at Union Theological seminary, whose philosophy of religion has received wide attention; Richard Niebuhr, former president of the college and now associate professor of Christian ethics at the divinity school of Yale; Arthur J. Lueder, former postmaster of Chicago; W. Otto Birk, professor of English at the University of Colorado, and O. A. Henning, associate professor of modern language at the Missouri school of mines.

"In Thy Light Shall We See Light," is the inscription on the Elmhurst college seal.

[This is the seventh of a series of articles on liberal arts colleges of the middle west. Another will appear soon.]

Jacksonville, Ill., June 4.—[Special.]—Gift of another million dollars to MacMurray College for Women by James E. Modern is now available to all at fixed
..... Low Cost

MEDICINE HAS ADVANCED TREMENDOUSLY THE PAST fifty years. Its modern, scientific developments have become so highly specialized that it has grown beyond the ability of any individual physician to master it all. Tracing the cause of a stomach disorder, a headache or a pain in the knee, requires the services of several physicians, each one having special knowledge in some one department of modern medicine. The nation's health authorities declare that if fully applied, present medical knowledge could prevent over 200,000 deaths in this country each year. While it is true that these specialized developments have removed most of the guess-work from medical practice, they have also increased the cost until today only the well-to-do can afford to pay for adequate medical care. Medical services are one of the chief necessities of life, equally important to old and young, rich or poor. Public spirited physicians believe that costs should be reduced so that a wider distribution of these advanced services can be made.

THE EXPERIENCE OF A UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE proves that concentration of specialized medical knowledge through a group of well-trained physicians, supported by the latest scientific equipment under one roof and under one administration, will make available complete and fully responsible medical care at low cost. This effort is now in its sixth year, during which time fully 100,000 men, women and children have been examined and treated. By making X-ray facilities, medical laboratory tests and other diagnostic services also available to the public through family doctors, over 20,000 patients, referred by more than 4,000 physicians in private practice, were benefitted. What a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE has accomplished shows it can meet the definite need for modernization and organization in medical practice.

THERE ARE FIVE FLOORS OF MEDICAL EQUIPMENT, including one of the finest X-ray departments in the Middle West, complete medical laboratory facilities and a large staff of experienced and well trained physicians and surgeons with special knowledge in the different fields of medicine. There is nothing else like it in the country. It has a background of experience dating back to February, 1920, with medical care rendered to almost 300,000 individuals. The public, especially those interested in the advancement of this modern idea, are invited to visit our offices and personally inspect our facilities and services.

BEACHES OF CITY TO OPEN JUNE 15; PARKS' ON JULY 1

48 Swimming Pools Also Set for Hot Days.

Lake front beaches supervised by the city will be opened June 15 or as soon afterward as the weather permits, officials said yesterday. The park district will open its beaches on July 1, the same day that the three swimming pools in the forest preserves will be put in operation.

The park district also will operate forty-two outdoor swimming pools, while the city has in addition to twenty beaches three natatoriums, eighteen wading pools, and thirty-five playgrounds which are under the direction of the bureau of parks and recreation.

15 Million Go Swimming.

The total attendance at all park beaches last summer was 15,711,000. At the Wilson-Montrose beach the attendance was 3,170,250. This is the largest artificial beach in the country.

The Loyola beach has been enlarged since last summer with the aid of a 600 foot pier that serves as a sand trap and now has a maximum capacity of approximately 50,000. The attendance last year at the Oak street beach was 1,045,150; at Diversey, 1,491,300, and at North avenue, 2,218,850.

The Jackson park beach is the largest on the south side and had an attendance record in 1937 of 2,049,150. The Roosevelt beach at the foot of Roosevelt road has been designated as "Guest beach" because it is popular with guests in downtown hotels.

175 Life Guards Assigned.

There will be 175 trained life guards assigned to the beaches and about fifty more working at park district swimming pools, Harry O'Hare, supervisor of beaches, said. These life guards will be on duty from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m. all summer.

The bureau of recreation maintains three large beaches at 76th street, 79th street, and Touhy avenue.

Extensive improvements have been made during the winter on the forest preserve pools in anticipation of a heavy swimming season, according to Clayton F. Smith, president of the forest preserve board. The pools are Emmett Whealan, Milwaukee and Devon avenues; Cermak, 7500 Ogden avenue, Lyons, and Green Lake, 159th street and Torrence avenue. Attendance last year was 300,000.

Other recreational facilities in the preserves have been improved since last summer by various projects of the Works Progress administration, Smith said. More than 15,000,000 visitors are expected before next fall.

EX-UNION OFFICER SUED; WIFE LISTS 7 BANK ACCOUNTS

Seven bank accounts, a $100,000 flat building at 1610 Farwell avenue, $10,000 worth of furniture and mortgages totaling $24,900 were listed in a divorce suit filed yesterday in the Superior court as properties owned by Claude F. Peters, former official of the flat janitors' union. Mrs. Lillian Peters, 40 years old, the plaintif, charged cruelty. She said he struck her last May 23 and on Dec. 23, 1937.

In her bill she declared that for twenty years prior to their marriage in 1935 Peters drew $7,500 a year from the union. She said he owns a $10,000 summer home at Chetek, Wis., and has $3,000 in government bonds and $5,000 in other securities.

Peters was indicted and sentenced to the state penitentiary in 1922, along with nine other janitors' union officials, on charges of conspiracy to extort money. They were pardoned by Gov. Small. The charge was made that the union men injured the business and property of hotels and apartment houses.

SECRET RAKEOFF IN LEITER TRUST FUNDS CHARGED

Bank Asked to Tell How Assets Are Used.

Charges that the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company conducted interdepartmental transactions with assets of trusts established by the late Mrs. Mary M. Leiter and took secret commissions from these dealings were made yesterday in a hearing before Master in Chancery Harold Sullivan of the Circuit court.

Beneficiaries of the trusts are three grandsons of Mrs. Leiter and the late Levi Z. Leiter, pioneer Chicago merchant. The grandsons, Thomas Leiter of Washington, D. C.; Colin L. Campbell of Goleta, Cal., and Cecil J. A. Howard of London, England, are suing for an accounting of the funds and the removal of the bank as trustee, accusing the bank of gross misconduct, dereliction of duty, malfeasance, breach of trust, and juggling of the assets.

Three Trusts for $100,000.

Mrs. Leiter established three trusts, each for $100,000, shortly before her death in 1913 and the grandchildren assert that the total value of the trusts, with accumulated interest, should now be $650,000.

Frank F. Taylor, vice president and head of the trust department at the Continental bank, was called as a witness yesterday by Attorneys Denis E. Sullivan Jr. and Edmond Sullivan, representing the beneficiaries. Taylor said he did not know the specific contents of the trusts at present.

"Would you explain the position of the bank in not making an accounting?" Denis Sullivan asked. Attorneys Emmet J. McCarthy and Robert Hanley, counsel for the bank, objected to the question.

"The bank has had this money since 1913," Edmond Sullivan said, "and the beneficiaries want to know what has been done with it. We want to find out whether the bank has these assets. We claim the records would show secret commissions to the bank and the purchases of securities from the trust by the bank at prices below market."

Shows Record of Farm Loans.

Denis Sullivan then introduced ledger sheets of the farm loan department of the old Merchants Loan and Trust company, a predecessor of the Continental bank, which showed that funds of the Leiter trusts had been used for farm loans. There were four such loans, totaling $15,900, and the bank was credited with commissions from 1 to 2 per cent in the transactions.

Q. [by Denis Sullivan]—Are there any records to indicate that the beneficiaries were ever advised of these commissions? A [by Taylor]—None that I have seen.

Q.—Were the commissions credited to the trust accounts? A.—Not according to the records. I assume that the commissions might have been regarded as service charges for loans, and it was not considered a matter necessary to reveal to the beneficiaries.

Attorney Quotes Trust Officer.

H. J. Fairweather, a trust offcer for the Continental bank, was then called to the stand.

"In December, 1937, after this suit was filed, didn't you say that the records showed no purchase of securities from the bank itself for the trust?" Denis Sullivan asked.

"I couldn't have said that," the witness replied, "because I know the bank did that."

The hearing was continued to Tuesday at 2 p. m. It is being held in Master Sullivan's offices at 7 South Dearborn street.

Mrs. Leiter's will provided that the three Leiter grandchildren who are plaintiffs in the case, should receive a life income from the three trusts until the death of her daughter, the countess of Suffolk and Berks, when they are to inherit the principal.

Suspect Poison in Death of Young Movie Patron

Woodlawn police were seeking yesterday to identify a youth about 17 years old who was found dead Friday night in the Jeffery theater at 1952 East 61st street. Although death was believed to have been caused by epilepsy, the coroner's office ordered an analysis of the contents of a bottle found beside the body. There was some suspicion it contained poison. The boy was slim, 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed 130 pounds, and wore a gray striped suit, brown shirt, maroon tie, and glasses.

ARRAIGN MORAN GANG TOMORROW FOR FRAUD PLOT

George [Bugs] Moran, well known gangster of the prohibition era, and nine associates are to be arraigned tomorrow before Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court on indictments charging them with conspiracy to cash $500,000 in fraudulent checks of the American Express company.

The indictments were returned Friday. All the accused have been at liberty on bonds for several weeks, and as these bonds are higher than the $10,000 for each set by Judge Harrington on the indictments, the state's attorney's police said they would make no attempt to arrest them today.

Moran's alleged accomplices are Frank Parker, one time airplane bootlegger; Harvey Anderson, also an ex-bootlegger; Walter Nolan, Frank Ross, Mason Schlitz, Daniel Keller, Frank Quigley, Robert Sexton, and Margaret [Mitzi] Ribble.

INSTITUTE SHOWS IT'S NO HIGH HAT TEMPLE OF ART

Industrial Designers to Exhibit Work.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Here is a cheerful piece about a Chicago educational activity that is going forward quietly and is producing practical results.

That activity is the division of industrial design in the Art institute's art school.

"We feel," said Daniel Catton Rich, new director of the institute, "that our teachers of industrial design are not turning out learned superfluities who in these anxious days will face a heartbreaking ordeal in trying to find a job, but earnest, thoroughly trained young people who bring to American industry what American industry needs."

Few Graduates Out of Jobs.

"And the best proof," added Norman Rice, new dean of the art school, "that our graduates in industrial design are not superfluities is the fact that very few of them who have graduated in the last five or six years are today out of employment."

Then Emil Zettler, chief of the division of industrial design, added his testimony.

"Our graduate designers," said he, "are not the types who just dream designs that look attractive but are impractical and fantastic when submitted to the test of the shop. They are able to go on with the job they have sketched. They can carry it through the stages of fabrication and triumph over the practical shopman's favorite refrain, 'Why, Mister, it can't be done!' They win because they are able to produce detailed working designs."

Annual Show Opens Thursday.

The three Art institute officials stood amid hundreds of exhibits that are to go into the art school's annual show which opens next Thursday and will continue for a month. The exhibition will fill nine galleries in the east wing of the institute and the section of it devoted to industrial art will give Chicago manufacturers an extraordinary opportunity to study spirited designs of amazing variety.

For example: Pullman compartments for streamlined trains, casings for air conditioning units, store fronts, electric flatirons, movable desk lamps, bus stations, dishes, wall papers, wrapping papers, furniture, grills for doorways, teakettles, circular drinking bars for residences, fences, paper napkins, enclosures for humidifiers, stained glass, thermos bottles, stage designs, and so on. Scores of practicalities and adornments for home, office, and store.

And the designs are not the work of dabsters, but of gifted men and women who have given four years of their lives to comprehensive schooling under strict masters.

Design Swiping Disappearing.

"In European industrial centers," said Mr. Zettler, "such shows as the one the institute opens next Thursday are entered on a manufacturer's calendar of things not to be missed, and the exhibited designs often are sold out within two weeks. In this country until a few years ago the average manufacturer's idea—and he was candid about it—was that 'a design is something you swipe.' That kind of banditry is disappearing. When a manufacturer sees how an Art institute graduate designer takes 25 cents' worth of material and transforms it into a thoroughly practical and highly attractive $2 article he sees a bright light and revises his notion that the institute is a highbrow temple holding itself aloof from the practicalities of life and of business. We are not aloof. What we are trying to do is to get good art into the practicalities."

"The first aspiration of a student entering an art school is to be a painter or a sculptor. Well, if he is not a person of extraordinary gifts he is going to have a long, hard struggle before he makes a living from his painting or his sculpture. Hence I advise many of our young people to major in industrial art."

There are 600 students in the institute's day school, of whom 150 are studying industrial art. Twenty of the 150 will graduate this week and carry the message of good art into the stores and factories of Chicagoland.

PEBBLE GULPED IN PLAY CLAIMS LIFE OF INFANT

A small asphalt-covered stone no larger than a pea caused the death of Vincent Curatti Jr., 19 months old, according to the official report of Dr. Jacob Goodman, coroner's physician. Vincent died in the Evanston hospital yesterday as preparations were being made to remove the foreign body from the child's right bronchus.

Vincent began choking Friday morning when his mother was placing him in his high chair in the family home at 809 Elm street, Winnetka. She took the child to the corner drug store where efforts to remove the obstruction failed. Vincent Jr. was then taken to the hospital. A glass tube was inserted that the youngster might breathe and preparations were made for removal of the obstruction. Vincent's father told the coroner's jury Vincent was in the habit of picking thinks up, and physicians said the child evidently had swallowed the stone while playing with it. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

Uses Mirror to Steady Aim, Takes Own Life with Gun

An unidentified man who used a small mirror to steady his aim, shot himself to death early yesterday under the Kedzie avenue bridge over the Marquette park lagoon. His body was found later by passersby. He had removed all laundry marks from his clothing. He weighed around 200 pounds and was about 55 years old.

IRATE HUSBAND GAMBLES, LOSES, TRIES ROBBERY

Here is the story—as told to police last night—of a late dinner and an angry husband.

He is Harry Myers, 32 years old, 3933 North Whipple street, a WPA clerk. He returned home with his two weeks' pay of $47, but found dinner not ready. He stamped angrily out of the house, drove away in his car, and had a wild night losing all but 60 cents of his $47 at poker and in slot machines.

Afraid to return home with no pay, he bought a toy pistol with his 60 cents. Then he tried to hold up Harold J. Roth, a druggist, at 2459 North Laramie avenue. Roth chased him out, and Myers abandoned his car. It was traced to him, but, conscience stricken, he surrendered to Cragin police before they could arrest him.

Proposed Wholesale Food License Fees Reduced

The proposed new schedule of license fees for wholesale food merchants is lower than the schedule adopted last December, members of the council finance committee explained yesterday. The fees ordered in December were intended to yield $90,000 to $95,000 a year. Protests of the merchants brought a downward revision, the proposed new schedule being expected to yield between $70,000 and $75,000.

Tabulated Taxes for 1937 Reach Nearly 75 Million

Collections of 1937 taxes thus far tabulated total $74,986,670, Horace G. Lindheimer, county treasurer, reported yesterday. Of this sum, $14,526,013 is personal property taxes, and $60,460,657 real estate taxes. Thousands of payments mailed before the penalty deadline last Wednesday still are untabulated. Of the tax money collected $47,583,000 has been distributed to the governmental bodies.

RESEARCH GROUP TO REVISE JUNIOR COLLEGE COURSES

Will Make Curriculum Fit Needs of City.

A survey to determine what courses shall be included in the curriculum of Chicago public junior colleges is being conducted by the recently created department of occupational research of the board of education.

Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson, who announced the survey yesterday, said the curriculum will be revised to meet new needs of the city.

"There are about 4,300 students enrolled in the three junior colleges, Wright, Herzl, and Wilson," Dr. Johnson said. "About 25 per cent will go on to some senior college while the remainder will seek employment, according to present records.

"The question is, are courses being offered to these students that will make it possible for them to take their places in industry when they leave school?"

Dr. Johnson said the type of training offered in the junior colleges is known as terminal courses. The business and scientific terminal courses are under investigation by the research department.

In the business terminal course two divisions exist, a general business course and a secretarial course. The practicability of these courses and the possible need for courses in merchandising and banking are being investigated.

The need for training technicians in fields of engineering, chemistry, and nursing are being investigated in the scientific terminal courses, Superintendent Johnson said. Any specific training in a particular field will be supplemented by continued general academic education, he said.

About twenty years ago Cecelia Belson, then 45 years old, made her one public appearance and her finger prints were made a matter of police history. Yesterday those finger print records established the identity of an old woman, a notions peddler, who was found dead a week ago in her lonely room at 27 North Halsted street, and whose body lay unclaimed and unrecognized in the county morgue.

Cecelia Belson was indicted and tried in 1919 for conspiracy in the escape from the county jail of Joseph [Big Joe] Moran, her burglar sweetheart; Earl Dear and Lloyd Bopp, then under sentence of death for murder [they were executed after their recapture], and Frank McErlane, a burglar awaiting trial. McErlane later was to become a notorious gang chief and bootlegger accused of many murders. He has since died. The escape was sensational; the recapture of the prisoners came a few days later without bloodshed.

Moran is still in prison. The dead woman had been known as Mrs. Cecelia Delesdermier. She was acquitted in the trial.

JULIA PATTERSON AND MISS WILSON ARE JUNE BRIDES

Large Church Weddings Unite Couples.

BY JUDITH CASS.

Two early June weddings, both large church ceremonies, took place yesterday—one in Winnetka, the other in Chicago.

At 5 o'clock in the Winnetka Congregational church, Miss Leslie Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Karl Wilson of Winnetka, became the bride of Roger Sherman, son of Mrs. Roger Sherman and the late Mr. Sherman of Evanston. The Rev. Samuel D. Harkness read the service, and the families and bridal attendants went to the Wilson home afterward to drink a toast to the newlyweds.

Miss Patterson Married.

At 4:30 o'clock in St. Chrysostom's church, Miss Julia Patterson was married to Ralph W. Applegate. The Rev. Dudley S. Stark officiated, and after the ceremony the attendants, families, and a few intimate friends went to the Scott street apartment of the bride's mother, Mrs. Wayne Wills, to wish Mr. Applegate and his bride happiness.

White and gray were the colors used at the Wilson-Sherman wedding. The bride wore white marquisette and carried white tuber begonias. Her sister, Miss Eleanor Wilson, the maid of honor, and the other attendants wore gray marquisette and little thrown back veils tied on with daisies. They carried daisies and poppies.

James Sherman was his brother's best man. Mr. Sherman and his bride will live in Evanston.

Bride Wears Ivory Satin.

Colors at the Applegate-Patterson wedding were all ivory. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Jere Patterson, wore ivory satin, trimmed with ruching, and a long net train and veil. She carried stephanotis. Her bridesmaids wore ivory marquisette, trimmed with lace insertions, and carried madonna lilies. One lily trimmed their matching net hats. Mrs. Giuseppe Fantacci, matron of honor for her cousin, wore a gown of ivory made with a lace top and net skirt, with the same accessories as the bridesmaids.

Colin Campbell was Mr. Applegate's best man. After a honeymoon in Honolulu, Mr. Applegate and his bride will be at home at 1433 State parkway.

90 Offer Blood to Wife of Civil Service News Head

More than ninety men—policemen, firemen, and park district and post-office employés—stood in line at the Southtown hospital yesterday ready to give blood in a transfusion to Mrs. Eileen Reel, wife of Harvey A. Reel, publisher of the Civil Service News. Physicians found her husband's blood matched, however, and he was chosen. Mrs. Reel, who had undergone a serious operation, was reported much improved last night. The Reels live at 3936 60th street.

W. R. HALKET, 96, AND HIS WIFE, 95, WED 70 YEARS

William R. Halket, 96 years old, and his wife, Charlotte, 95, will observe their 70th wedding anniversary today in their home at 2830 North Racine avenue. No formal celebration such as the family parties held in the past is planned this year, although Mr. and Mrs. Halket are still fairly active.

Both were born in Glasgow, Scotland, and came here in 1899. Mr. Halket operated a livery business, but later turned to farming near Northbrook. He retired thirteen years ago. They have five children, ten grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren.

700 EX-MARINES OF MIDDLE WEST HOLD REUNION

Nearly seven hundred former marines from the Chicago area and the middle west attended the annual midwest reunion yesterday of former "leathernecks," sponsored by the Marine post of the American Legion, in the La Salle hotel.

Arthur J. Murphy, Chicago attorney and past commander of Marine post, who originated the reunion idea while commander several years ago, was the principal speaker at a banquet last night. The reunion is held each year on the Saturday nearest June 6, the date on which the 2d division, of which the Marine brigade was a unit, stopped the German advance in Belleau wood.

Among the guests at yesterday's events was Brig. Gen. Hiram Bearss.

JUDGE DEALS $200 FINE TO SOCIAL PINOCHLE CLUB

More than a hundred witnesses appeared in the court of Police Magistrate John J. Peters of Wilmette yesterday to tell of the strange goings on in the Social Pinochle club at 627 Ridge road in the suburb.

They were disappointed, however, when the proprietor of the club, John Bleser, 70 years old, pleaded guilty to possessing and selling liquor. Police Chief Cloyd C. McGuire informed the magistrate that he had questioned forty of the witnesses and they all said they went to the place to drink and not to meld aces.

Bleser was fined $200. A similar fine was assessed against Andrew Bartoli, owner of a confectionery store at 827 Ridge road, Wilmette, who admitted selling beer.

COLLAPSES FROM HUNGER 2D TIME; HOARDS HIS $900

Lake county authorities were struggling again last night with the problem of how to make Frank Sisek, 60 years old, 533 Market street, Waukegan, spend some of his ample funds for food enough to keep him alive.

Sisek collapsed on the street near his home last Monday and was taken to the Lake county general hospital. Physicians said there was nothing wrong with him except that he was suffering from hunger. They also reported that he had $900 sewed in his clothing. After being given a couple of meals Sisek was released.

Yesterday he collapsed a second time. The county general hospital refused to admit him again and he was taken to the St. Therese hospital in Waukegan where he will be charged for treatment. Sisek said that he had $2,000 in investments besides the $900.

R. R. Donnelley & Sons Company Plans Big Addition to the Lakeside Press

EVENTUALLY MAY OCCUPY NEARLY FULL CITY BLOCK

Site Is Purchased West of Present Plant.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Plans for a large addition to the R. R. Donnelley & Sons Co.'s Lakeside Press, eventually to cover an entire city block, were announced yesterday by Thomas E. Donnelley, chairman of the board of directors. The proposed addition will be in the block just west of the Lakeside Press building, already one of the world's largest printing and publishing plants. The site for the new building, recently acquired for approximately $400,000, is bounded by Prairie and Calumet avenues, East 21st street, and Cermak road.

Thomas E. Donnelley

The first public announcement of the contemplated expansion program, which will call for an initial expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars and eventually may run to one or two millions, was made by C. G. Littell, president of the Donnelley company, in a talk to his employés.

Outlines Tentative Plans.

Chairman Donnelley yesterday outlined the tentative plans. Engineers, he said, are making a study of how the block should be improved. As a start the Calumet avenue frontage recently acquired, with the exception of the five story fireproof building at the Cermak road corner, will be improved with a one or two story fireproof structure capable of carrying the heaviest presses.

This comprises 275 feet of frontage. In assembling the site for the new building the Donnelley company was unable to get possession of one lot, 50 by 178 feet, just north of the Cermak-Calumet corner. The five story building on the corner, Mr. Donnelley said, is too good a structure to demolish for many years. It was purchased from the American Book company for $200,000 cash. The building already is being used by the Donnelley company under lease.

Presses Get Bigger.

According to Donnelley, when the present eight story Lakeside Press building was built in the block bounded by Calumet avenue, East 21st street, the Illinois Central right of way, and Cermak road, the presses were installed on the fifth floor.

"Since then presses constantly have been getting bigger and heavier," he said, "until now we believe we should place our big rotary presses in a new building especially designed to carry such tremendous loads.

"Our tentative engineering studies call for installation of the big presses, both those now in the Lakeside Press building and others we have ordered or will buy later on, on the second floor of the new unit. We would then use the first floor for binding work and also for storage of unprinted stock.

"Not only are modern presses probably a half larger than the older models, but they are about a third speedier, which means more weight and more vibration."

Work May Start in Fall.

Donnelley said work probably would get under way on the first unit of the big addition early in the fall. The company, which employs about 4,000 men and women, has outgrown the large Lakeside Press building. In addition to printing telephone books for cities in all parts of the country, the Lakeside Press prints many nationally circulated magazines and publications of all sorts, as well as books.

The new building will be planned to harmonize architecturally with the Lakeside building, designed by the late Howard Van Doren Shaw, and one of the most outstanding and best known printing and publishing buildings in the world.

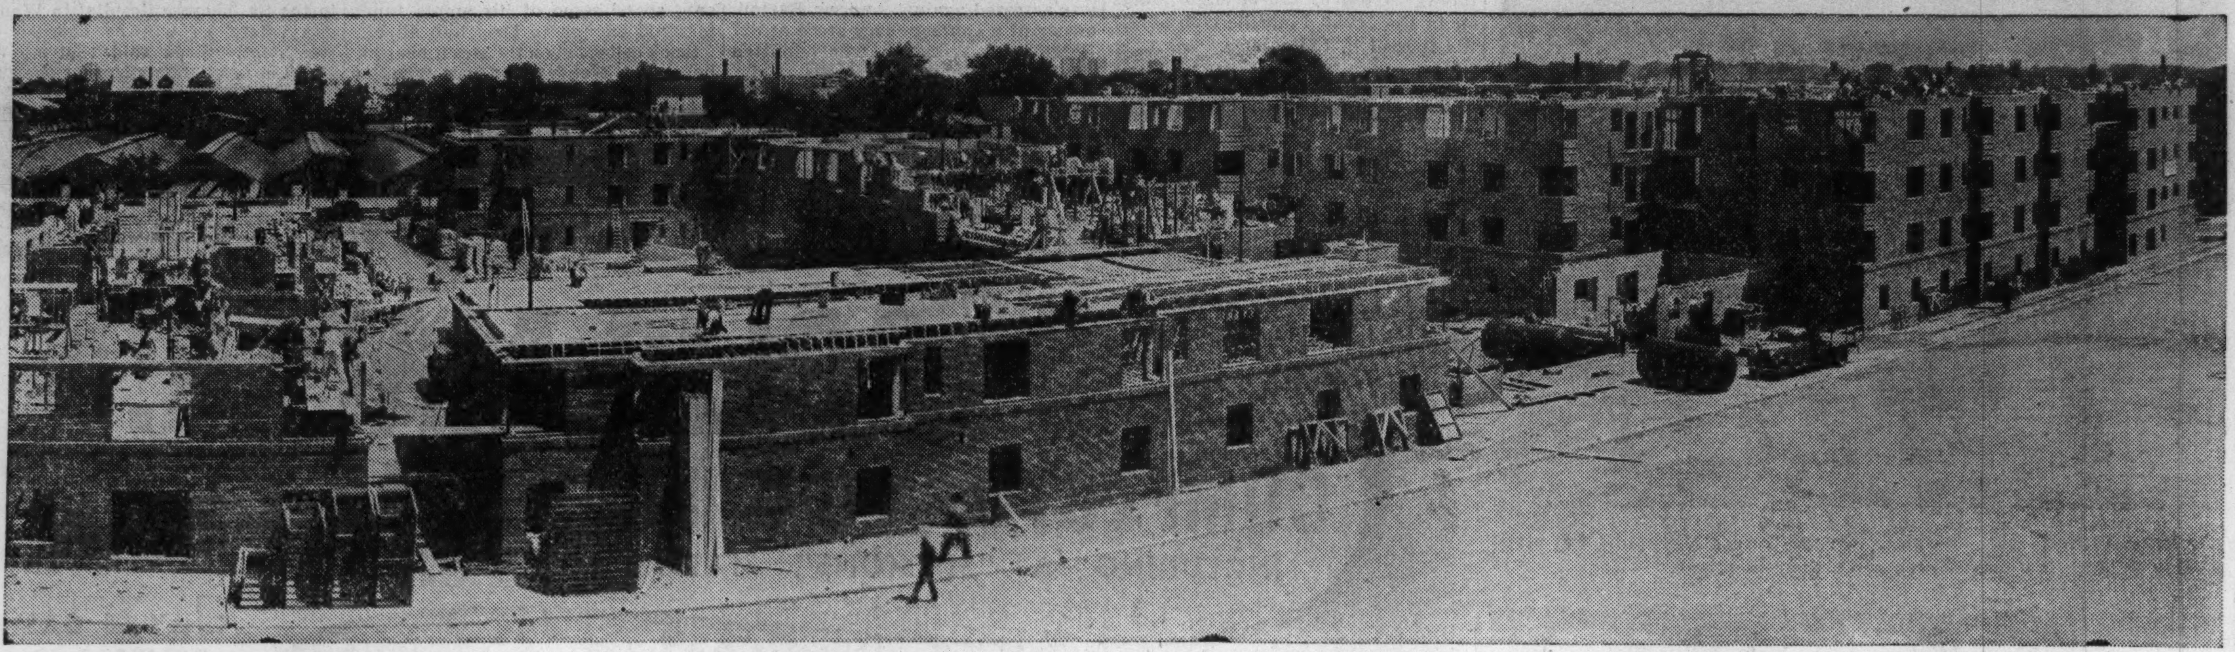
How Private Apartment Construction Moves



Speedy action has enabled the Granville-Hoyne Building corporation to break all recent construction records and get the big million dollar apartment project at the northwest corner of Granville and Hoyne avenues nearly half completed in ten weeks.

Ground was broken for the privately owned apartment project on March 23. Just ten weeks later this photograph was taken. Yesterday, three days after the picture was made, even more progress than is shown above had been made. Seven of the fourteen units are under roof; three are above the third floor level, and the four remaining buildings are up to the second floor.

Completion originally was scheduled for Oct. 1. Yesterday it was predicted that the entire group would be ready for occupancy a month earlier, or by Sept. 1. The above picture was taken from the roof of the Leander Stone Public school, just west of the project, and the reader is looking southeast. More details are given in another column on this page.

Rebuild, Replan, and Rezone, Chicago Realtor Recommends

Rebuild, replan and rezone Chicago, Arthur Kruggel, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, urged nearly one thousand realtors at the midseason housing and realty conference of the realty organization at the Palmer house last Thursday evening. The banquet, one of the largest ever held by the board, was the culmination of a symposium on housing held weekly at the board rooms, originated by Paul D. Angell, chairman of the house committee, who also planned the evening conference.

Arthur Kruggel.

"It is evident, even to the casual observer, that the irrational overexpansion of our cities is rapidly becoming a heavy economic and social burden upon the country as a whole," said Kruggel.

Called Worthy Goal.

"So it may be said that as far as Chicago is concerned, we must consider our situation from the standpoint of rebuilding so that we may replace slums and blighted areas and restore in their stead an attractive home environment.

"Could we find a more worthy goal toward which the real estate industry should strive? In this connection, I should like to quote from Dean Joseph H. Willits of the Wharton school of the University of Pennsylvania and executive director of the National Bureau of Economic Research of New York, who said:

"'An increasing proportion of real estate business activity in the future will probably be of a "replacement" rather than of a "new business" character, but this "replacement" demand offers not only an opportunity for a substantial revival of house construction but also a constructive chance for the rebuilding of our cities. With little rebuilding since 1929, the next twenty years may easily see the reconstruction of nearly half of our urban structures.'"

Suggests Legislation.

Kruggel suggested as one approach to the rebuilding problem the authorization by legislative act of private corporations which would have rights and powers in rebuilding, subject to state control, similar to public service corporations.

Other speakers at the big housing conference were Paul D. Angell, chairman; Mayor Kelly, who introduced Stewart McDonald, Federal Housing administrator, and Frank Lloyd Wright, architect.

The latter criticized federal housing which, he said, was prisonlike and resembled factories.

Work Started on Homes in West Suburbs

Work will start this week on the first three of a contemplated total of twenty-four residences in Western Springs and La Grange, according to N. M. Ruben, president of Homes, Inc. The new homes will have a price range of $7,000 to $10,000 and will occupy lots at least fifty feet wide, with some much wider.

Financing, it was said, has been arranged with long term loans and minimum down payments. All improvements will be installed, Ruben said and landscaping will be included in the selling price.

Last year Homes, Inc., announced that it would build twenty-four homes in La Grange and Western Springs. Yesterday Ruben said that all the homes contemplated had been built and that eighteen have been sold.

One of the unsold homes, designed by Irwin A. Sugarman, architect, is of Louisiana design, with garage attached and a porch reminiscent of the far south. This will be open this week-end for inspection at 706 South Ashland avenue, in La Grange.

Former Banking Quarters to Be Remodeled Into Bar

The corner section of the former banking quarters of the Irving State Savings bank, at the northeast corner of Sheridan and Irving Park, is being remodeled into a saloon to be known as the Baritz. A group headed by Charles C. Morrow comprise the Baritz corporation. The premises are being remodeled from plans by the Rosene-Burch associates. From the time the bank gave up this space in 1930 it has been occupied by the real estate offices of John J. Ready & Co. On May 1 this firm moved into remodeled quarters in the same building with an entrance at 4003 Sheridan road. The building is owned by the Gahan corporation.

Woman Sells Sixteen Flat Building in Agatite Ave.

The sixteen apartment building at 814-16 Agatite avenue was sold by Mary Barton to Bernard Federman for an undisclosed price. M. J. Wohl of Landau & Perlman was broker.

Beg Your Pardon

J. J. Robinson of Baird & Warner, Inc., represented the Dole estate in the recent sale of the property at 755-57 West Adams street. It was incorrectly reported in this department last Sunday that John A. Gessner represented all parties.

COAL MERCHANTS OPEN 'CLINIC' ON MODERN BASEMENTS

A permanent "clinic" on basement modernization, said to be the first of its kind in this country, has been opened for the use of Chicago home owners in the Bell building, 311 North Michigan avenue, by the Chicago Coal Merchants association. A display room on the first floor has been transformed into a two room basement, completely equipped with modern fixtures and decorations.

According to Frank J. Donovan, president of the coal group, the exhibit is the outgrowth of the association's $2,500 basement modernization contest. It provides, he said, a clearing house for all information on transforming the basement of any coal heated home into a livable part of the house.

PLAN BANQUET FOR REALTORS OF NORTH SIDE

One day before the sixth annual dinner-dance of the North Side Real Estate board, the new president of that organization, F. C. Enderlin, will be installed at the regular business meeting to be held at the New Lawrence hotel, Tuesday, June 14. Enderlin, head of Enderlin Realty, Inc., 6325 North Clark street, will succeed Harold V. Jacobs. Other officers to be inducted are Herbert N. Lustig, vice president, succeeding Paul E. Olson, and S. W. King, treasurer, to replace Lustig. Joseph L. Budlong is the board's new secretary, succeeding Harold V. Glos.

F. C. Enderlin.

The board's annual dinner-dance will be held at the Drake hotel on Wednesday evening, June 15, in the Gold Coast room. There will be no speeches, according to Michael J. Long, of Long-Kogen, Inc., chairman of the banquet committee.

SOUND FINANCING
is as important as sound construction
• Whether you are building or buying, a Prudential 20 year mortgage will give you the maximum security. Under this plan, interest will be met and principal reduced by uniform monthly payments amounting to as little as $6.60 per thousand. Expensive renewals ... the danger the loan may be called ... and the threat of stepped-up interest rates will be eliminated. And best of all, your home will be debt-free in 20 years.

PRIVATE HOUSING PROJECT SETS A SPEED RECORD

Big Flats Are Half Done in Ten Weeks.

(Picture in adjoining colunm.)

While the federal housing project contemplated for 37th street and South Park way is, after several years of conversation, still in the architects' hands, and the other three big local government housing projects are not yet entirely completed, Chicago's first and largest apartment group to get under way in several years is nearly half finished in ten weeks' time. This is the million dollar group of fourteen buildings at the northwest corner of Granville and Hoyne avenue, owned by the Granville-Hoyne Building corporation, and known as the Granville Garden apartments.

Ground was broken on March 23, 1938. A photograph taken a few days ago, just ten weeks after the first shovel work, disclosed approximately half of the construction work completed.

Four Hundred Men Working.

Scheduled for Oct. 1 occupancy, Stephen G. Cohn of Dovenmuehle, Inc., which negotiated a three-quarters of a million dollar loan on the project, yesterday predicted that the 196 suites in the fourteen buildings will be ready for tenants about Sept. 1. He expects seven of the buildings will be completed in August.

More than 400 men are working and the result of their activity is shown in having seven of the 14 units already under roof, three others above the third floor level and work on the remaining four up to the second floor.

The Greenway Construction company, general contractors, and Rissman & Hirschfeld, architects, are erecting the Granville Garden apartments under triple supervision. Dovenmuehle, Inc., is paying out the loan; the Bankers' Life company of Des Moines, purchaser of the mortgage, and the Federal Housing administration, which insured the mortgage, are watching the progress.

Second Project to Start Soon.

Chicago's second big privately owned housing project, the $1,640,000 Winnemac Gardens, to contain 237 apartments, at the northwest corner of Hoyne and Foster avenues, opposite Winnemac park, is expected to be under way by the middle of this month.

According to John F. Butcher, president of the Winnemac Gardens corporation, working plans are nearly finished and bids will be received this week. This is an even larger project than the Granville Garden apartments. A million dollar mortgage made by Irvin Jacobs & Co. through the National Life Insurance company, Montpelier, Vt., is said to be the largest loan under section 207 of the revised national housing act to be negotiated in Chicago and probably the biggest made to date in the middle west.

Greatest Collection of Chinese Treasures Chicago Has Ever Seen!
Over 3,000 Individual and Few-of-a-Kind Items! Only a Few Shown!

Every person who can read a newspaper knows what's happening in China! We don't have to tell you about the blockades and the scarcity of all shipments. It seems unfortunate that this should occur when there is a greater demand than ever for Chinese art objects. THAT'S WHY WE CONSIDER THIS PURCHASE FROM AMERICA'S LARGEST IMPORTER ONE OF THE MOST UNUSUAL EVENTS THAT'S EVER HAPPENED TO GOLDBLATT'S! In scope it is the most complete sale of its type we have ever had! A decorator could buy half a hundred delightful bowls . . . a collector could find dozens of objects, from an oxblood temple jar of the Ming dynasty to a pair of mellow ivory Foo dogs two hundred years old! Even if you don't plan to buy, we urge you to see this rare exhibit. Our entire purchase was exactly half price. But you'll find that a few individual pieces save you less than half, while the majority of them save you MUCH MORE.

BRITISH GOLFERS WIN WALKER CUP, 7 MATCHES TO 4

AMERICAN TEAM LOSES 5 OF 8 IN SINGLES PLAY

Yates, Fischer and Ward Triumph.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, June 4.—[U. P.]—This ancient cradle of golf rocked wildly tonight to the celebration of Great Britain's first victory over the United States in the tenth playing of Walker cup competition. The series ended today with the British players ahead 7 to 4, one match having been halved.

In hotels, pubs, and locker rooms in the Royal and Ancient club, and in the weatherbeaten little shops that border the first fairway of the old course, toasts were drunk to the under-dog home team which broke the Americans' long string of triumphs.

Given no more than an outside chance when play for the cup started, the young British team gained a 2 to 1 lead in the foursomes yesterday, and then hung grimly to it in the eight singles engagements today. One after another five of America's ace amateurs fell today while three were keeping the invading side from utter rout.

Goodman Is Beaten.

Johnny Goodman of Omaha, one-time United States open champion and present American amateur champion, was soundly whipped, 5 and 4, by Hector Thomson of Scotland, last year's British titleholder. Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, runnerup to Goodman in last year's American title chase, was beaten, 1 up, by Cecil Ewing of Ireland, who was runnerup to Charley Yates of Atlanta in last week's British amateur. Freddie Haas of New Orleans, one of America's more promising players, was trounced, 5 and 4, by Alex Kyle of Scotland. Gordon Peters, also of Scotland, scored an even more convincing triumph for the home forces. He beat Reynolds Smith of Dallas, 9 and 8. And Charles Stowe of England scored a fifth victory for his side, beating Chuck Kocsis, up-coming youngster from Detroit, 3 and 1.

The Americans who won were Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, Marvin [Bud] Ward of Olympia, Wash., and Yates. Fischer beat Leonard Crawley of England, 3 and 2. Ward beat Frank Pennink, the English native champion, 12 and 11. Yates topped James Bruen Jr. of Ireland, 2 and 1.

British Protect Lead.

The British held a margin of two to one after yesterday's Scotch foursome play and by the time the eighth match had passed the morning turn an indication of the upset victory had been given. The British then were leading in four matches, the Americans in three, and one was even. More pronounced was the British margin at the eighteen hole mark. Here they held a lead in five matches. This advantage was pressed at the afternoon turn, although Ward had already won his match.

The issue was decided when Kyle beat Haas. Then Ewing, an Irishman who earned a place on the team by having been runner-up in the amateur, strengthened the margin by beating Billows.

Cup Is Presented.

Scenes of wild enthusiasm marked the presentation of the Walker cup to the victorious British in front of the clubhouse.

The cup was presented by Hal Pierce, vice president of the United States Golf association, to Lieut. Col. P. G. M. Skene, representing the Royal and Ancient Golf club.

"We are glad to see your smiling faces," Pierce said. "Although we manufactured the cup, we are glad to let you keep it occasionally."

Skene then presented the cup to John Beck, captain of the British team amid terrific cheers. Beck thanked the American team for a fine fight.

"It was a great match," he said, "and, of course, we are delighted at the result."

Ouimet Addresses Crowd.

Francis Ouimet, nonplaying captain of the United States side, told Beck that "All good things must come to an end. The American people are delighted that this team, the finest British team we ever played, won the cup."

The crowd then yelled for Yates. Speaking over a microphone Yates said, "Brother Peters taught me a song." He referred to Gordon Peters of Scotland, member of the victorious team. Yates then called Peters up to the platform and they sang "Wee Deoch Doris."

Yates clearly earned his victory. He had an outward 33, three under par, and came home in par 37 for a 70. He was outdriven by Bruen, but always was inside Bruen with his seconds. In the afternoon Yates again outclassed Bruen with his seconds.

Goodman Off Form.

Goodman's morning game was a travesty of the form which has won him two major championships. He was repeatedly short or too long and

New York, June 4.—[Special.]—Southern California won the sixty-second championship of the intercollegiate A. A. A. A. in a drizzle at Randalls Island stadium today to capture its eighth team title. The Trojans rolled up 47½ points, almost double the total of the runner-up, Michigan State, which had 24.

California's seven-man team scored 22½ points for third place while the East's best, Pitt's defending champions, were fourth with 20½. Then came Manhattan, 15; Harvard, 12; Princeton, 10½; N. Y. U., 10; Rhode Island State, 9, and Columbia, 8½.

Rain pattered down so steadily that the mere handful of spectators was under a continual shower-bath. Yet in spite of the wretched conditions performances were extraordinarily fine until near the end when the track became heavy and water logged.

Three Records Fall.

Three marks were broken and two tied. The records—Howard Borck of Manhattan with a 4:13.9 mile, Joe Moclair of Manhattan with a 9:21.2 two miles, and Delos Thurber of Southern California with a high jump of 6 feet 6⅝ inches. The tied records—Harvey Woodstra of Michigan State with :14.4 in the high hurdles and John Woodruff of Pitt with a :47 quarter mile.

The championship repeaters were Woodruff, doubling again in the 440 and 880 for the first such double since Ted Meredith in 1915 and 1916, and Irving Folwartshny of Rhode Island State in the hammer throw.

The champions who failed to repeat were Ben Johnson, Columbia, fourth in the 100—he scratched in the 220; Howard Welch, Cornell, sixth in the 2 miles; Ham Hucker, Cornell, eliminated in a low hurdles heat; Ed Burke, Marquette, unplaced in the high jump; Pittsburgh, fourth in the final team standings.

East Wins Most Titles.

Southern California with men in ten events, placed men in all ten, although it won only two titles and tied for a third. The Atlantic seaboard won 10½ of the 15 individual championships. Coast coleges have won fifteen of the last sixteen team crowns for which they competed.

The double winners were Woodruff in the 440 and 880, and Woodstra in both hurdles.

Woodruff and Borck vied for the distinction of being the outstanding performer. Woodruff tied once again the quarter mile record he holds jointly with Bill Carr, then ran a superb 1:52.5 half mile. But in the last of these he was pressed by Borck and beat him by only a stride. Woodruff had defeated Borck a year ago so there would be nothing unusual in

MOUNTAIN RIDGE TAKES LINCOLN FIELDS HANDICAP

BY FRENCH LANE.

Lady Luck smiled again at Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Milky Way Farm stable race horses at Lincoln Fields yesterday afternoon.

In a blanket finish between three horses that was so close it looked like a dead heat, Mrs. Mars' 3 year old old Mountain Ridge was declared the winner of the $5,000 Steger handicap by the camera eye.

In second place in the stirring finish was Leading Article, sprint champion of the south, owned by Dr. B. F. Woodson of Dallas. Warren Wright's Cross Bow II., winner of the Crete handicap last Monday afternoon, was third.

It was the first stake race victory that has gone to the formidable Milky Way Farm stable since its 3 year old Tiger won the Arkansas Derby at Hot Springs early last April.

Luck—All of It Bad.

All sorts of bad luck befell the stable after that triumph. Tiger fell lame and missed his engagement in the Kentucky Derby. The Milky Way 2 year olds, some of them tops in the country, became ill with a coughing epidemic and have not been able to get to the post. Older horses fell into the doldrums and were not able to accomplish anything. So it isn't any wonder that the Milky Way trainer, Bob McGarvey, and the jocky, Alfred Robertson, who rode Mountain Ridge, hired themselves an orchestra and celebrated last night.

Mountain Ridge had to be stout hearted to win. He was fifth and badly outrun by Preëminent, Leading Article, Cross Bow II., and King's Blue in the early stages. He had to lose ground by moving to the outside when the stretch run started. Then it was that he showed his finest speed. One by one of those in front of him succumbed to his rush. In the final lunge at the line of finish he poked his nose in front.

Preëminent Fades.

Mucho Gusto, which finished fourth, rushed from last place into contention in the late stages, but he had started his drive too late. Once soundly conquered by Cross Bow II. at the head of the stretch, Preëminent had nothing left. He dropped back until he finally finished eighth. Chigre, a Kentucky colt, was last.

Mountain Ridge ran the seven furlongs in 1:26, splendid time when the off track is taken into consideration. In the betting he paid $13.40 to win, $6.40 to place, and $4.80 to show. Leading Article paid $15.40 to place and $8.20 to show. Cross Bow II.'s show price was $4.40.

It was an exciting afternoon for the 15,000 fans who visited the track. The longest priced winner of the Chicago season, Dunnamany at $178.40 for a $2 ticket, rolled home the winner of the South Side claiming handicap at a mile.

Also, racegoers took a look at the best 2 year old that has raced here so far this season, Yale O'Nine, from

Pasteurized Wins $46,530 Belmont Stake

New York, June 4.—[Special.]—The dogged run of a game and tired colt carried him so wide through Belmont Park's stretch today that a claim of foul was lodged, but Mrs. W. Plunket Stewart's Pasteurized survived this hazard as well as the challenge leveled by William du Pont Jr.'s Dauber. At the end of the long mile and a half of the Belmont stakes Pasteurized was a half length in front of Dauber, with Cravat a length back in third place.

Cravat was on the rail, having saved much ground, but the other two were past the middle of the track, mainly as the result of Pasteurized going wide. Dauber was on the outside of Pasteurized.

Stewards Reject Foul Claim.

The claim of foul was lodged when Mrs. Stewart was leading in her horse, accompanied by C. V. Whitney and August Belmont II. Operations were suspended, photographers put up their cameras and all waited in the tan bark unsaddling enclosure while the stewards considered and then rejected the claim of foul on behalf of Dauber.

Mr. Belmont then presented the famous trophy, known as the August Belmont trophy, a memorial to the man who founded Belmont Park.

Winner an 8 to 1 Shot.

The winner, a Florida campaigned 3 year old who disappointed in the south, was an 8 to 1 shot in the field of six, and ran through a drizzling rain to be caught in the smart time of 2:29 2-5. This performance, while not as fast as the record smashing mile and a half in 2:28 3-5 by War Admiral last year, was nevertheless faster than the majority of Belmont winners.

It showed that Pasteurized is a first class colt, and made more confusing than ever the already mixed situation prevailing as to three year old honors. Dauber, as the result of placing in the Santa Anita and Kentucky derbies, and victory in the Preakness went into the test a heavy favorite at 1 to 3 with the crowd of more than 20,000.

All in at 126 Pounds.

All the six starters shouldered 126 pounds, scale weight. Dauber simply wasn't good enough. While he doubtless was carried wide it did not appear that this interfered with his winning chance.

While the Belmont grossed $46,530, according to an official announcement, no one seemed to know just what the value was to the winner. The bookkeeper announced $34,530.

There was a long delay at the post, provoked mainly by Jolly Tar and Dauber, but the start was even when it came. Gentle Savage was urged out at once to the lead, but before the first turn was reached Magic Hour was close aboard and going along head and head.

Pasteurized Moves Up.

These two led until midway of the back stretch when Gentle Savage faltered. A moment or two later Pasteurized was sent up on the outside. Gentle Savage retired, but Magic Hour hung on a little longer, now with Pasteurized alongside. When they

A's 3 Homers Beat Sox, 9-4; 10th in Row

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 4.—The White Sox, who a year ago were in the midst of a ten game winning streak, today ran their current losing streak to ten defeats. The Philadelphia Athletics loosed a home run attack against Ted Lyons and Frank Gabler to triumph 9 to 4.

George Caster, who started the Sox on their downward slide May 26, presided at the torturous ceremonies today. He yielded fifteen hits, but three in the third, which got the Sox off to a 2 to 0 lead, were the only ones made when he appeared to be bearing down. With the foregoing exception, George had the bleached Chicago heroes well in hand at all times.

Big Bob Blasts 'Em.

Bob Johnson, Earl Brucker, and Bill Werber led the Philadelphia attack. Bob made his eighth homer off Lyons with one on in the fourth to tie the score, contributed a single toward Ted's demise in the fifth, and smashed his ninth homer off Gabler in the sixth.

Brucker had a double, a triple and two singles before being struck out by Bill Cox, third Sox pitcher, in the eighth. Werber knocked his fourth homer, two singles and drew a pass. Each member of the hero trio scored two runs and Johnson batted in four, a game total which Joe Kuhel reached for his season total in the eighth inning.

Manager Dykes, distraught over the turn of events, but courageous withal, started the same old futile lineup. His philosophy is that his prizes can't possibly be as helpless as they look.

They're Still Fighting.

The team's high spirits continued. They still have a very entertaining mind reader traveling with them and life off the field is infinitely more jolly than any suffering fan can imagine. Then too the boys today witnessed another cheering rise in their runs per game average for the term of the toboggan ride. For nine games the average was 1.556. For ten games its up to 1.800. The hit average soared, too. There were fifty-six hits in nine games for an average of 6.222 per game. The fifteen hits today lifted the average to 7.100.

The first two of the Sox's amazing total of 15 hits, a single and a double,

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs fashioned a handsome first inning yesterday and then took it easy until an official 5 to 1 victory had been achieved over the Phillies. The robust opening inning shoved the Cubs up within a half game of the champion Giants, who succumbed to the influence of the Reds in Cincinnati.

The early blasting which wrecked the Phils, Claude Passeau among them, was a mixture of wildness and extra base hitting. Passeau made his contribution to the decisive four run affair by dispensing two passes. Gabby Hartnett and Joe Marty, who was restored to action after almost three weeks on the bench, did the rest of the work. Hartnett ripped off a two bagger worth a pair of runs. The other pair was recorded on homer No. 5, which Marty planted in the left field bleacher. Bill Jurges and Augie Galan took care of the run scored later on Passeau.

Hartnett Out of Action.

What hitting the Phils accomplished, and there wasn't much of it, was against Larry [Lefty] French, who in the course of his six hit job tossed in five strikeouts. For the first five innings he kept the situation so well in hand that there were only two Phil hits. In the sixth he struck a snag of three hits, the most potent being by Tuck Stainback, the Cub alumnus. Out of this batch the humble folks from the east cooked up a run. It was French's fourth triumph of the season, leaving him one shy of the .500 mark.

Hartnett's first inning double was just one of many things in which he was involved. In his second appearance he singled and in his next drew a pass. He showed up in the seventh for the fourth time and Passeau plunked him on the left wrist with a pitched ball, and that was enough to make him quit. The damage, according to Dr. John F. Davis, club physician, was limited to a bruise which may keep the old fellow idle for a couple of days.

That Profitable First.

The preliminaries to the Cubs' four run activities in the first inning were passes to Herman and Galan with one out. Demaree forced Galan and happily for the Cubs Umpire Uncle Moran thought Demaree had arrived at first in time to avoid a double play. Hartnett let three wide pitches float past, but the next looked so good he pounced on it for a two bagger to right center, Herman and Demaree scoring. Then Marty, after two strikes, drilled his No. 5 homer into the left center field bleacher for the other pair of runs. Collins followed with a single, but Jurges fanned.

Arnovich was the first Phil to arrive safely at first. He walked to open the second, but a double play ball and a fly made short work of the gift. French slipped another pass to the Phils in the third, and they helped themselves to their first hit. After Jurges had thrown out Young, the pass went to Corbett. Passeau was expunged on a popup handled by Jurges. Mueller bounced a single past Hack and in a burst of enthusiasm, or something, Corbett dashed for third. By the time he reached the bag Galan had thrown the ball back to Hack, and the inning ended.

Another Run in Fourth.

Except for a pass and a single, the latter bearing Hartnett's autograph, Passeau wasn't disturbed in the second and third. In the fourth, however, he ran into difficulties which the Cubs straightened out into a Feller Wild; Taken Out in Fourth Inning.

Washington, D. C., June 4.—(AP)—The league leading Cleveland Indians walloped the Washington Senators, 11 to 4, today. Let down without a hit during the first three innings, the Indians pounded Elon Hogsett in the fourth for eight runs.

Bob Feller—who started for the Indians—became wild as the game progressed and was removed in the fourth with nobody out. Dennis Galehouse finished, hurling good ball.

The Senators tried Weaver, Kelley, and finally Rookie Joe Krakauskas—who pitched the last three innings, yielding no hits and fanning three. Score:

RED SOX, 5; TIGERS, 3.

Boston, Mass., June 4.—(AP)—Those old reliables, Lefty Grove and Jimmy Foxx, were just about the whole show today as the Red Sox trounced the Detroit Tigers, 5 to 3.

Grove, although he yielded ten hits, blanked the Tigers for eight innings and fanned nine in getting his ninth victory against one defeat.

Foxx, driving in four of the Red Sox's five runs, hits his twelfth and thirteenth homers of the year off Tommy Bridges, and added a single. His first homer came in the first with two on. His second came in the third with the bases empty. Score:

Carleton Tries Luck Against Phillies Today

The pitching plan for the second game of the series today is Tex Carleton for the Cubs and Hugh Mulcahy for the hapless Phillies.

Joe Marty's homer in the first inning yesterday was his first since May 17 in New York. The long wait between the two four base blows is easily explained. He was on the bench from May 18 until yesterday when Manager Charley Grimm gave up on the Carl Reynolds experiment.

* * *

French had an argument with Umpire Parker about a pitched ball when Mueller walked in the eighth. After this had quieted down French's first pitch to the next batter was called a strike. French politely tipped his hat. The ump tore out to the mound to announce that his dignity had been shattered, but after a moment's conversation came back laughing.

French's last five starts look impressive on a run basis. In those five games he pitched forty-two innings and allowed only eight runs, the highest in any game being two.

run. Jurges led off with a single to right and skipped down to second on French's sacrifice. Hack was awarded a pass, and a healthy fly launched by Herman was pulled in by Arnovich. Galan got the desired result by singling to center, Jurges scoring. This bit of fun was stopped by three strikes served to Demaree.

The Phils' attack in the fourth and fifth was made up of a single by Arnovich, but they had some real fun for themselves in the sixth. They exploded three hits, and, although they scored only once on this attack, they didn't complain. Passeau started it with a single to left. Mueller took a cat nap and upon awaking was informed a third strike had drifted past. Martin banged a single through short. Then Stainback hit a two bagger to the wall in left center, Passeau scoring. Arnovich was thrown out by French, and Atwood fanned.

Double Play Halts Fun.

Young caused some confusion for Passeau in the Cubs' sixth. The first happening was a walk which French accepted. Hack tapped to Passeau, who turned around and threw to second. The throw was good enough, but Young, instead of getting the ball and then stepping on the bag, did the act in reverse. The throw slipped off the tip of his glove and nobody was retired. Nothing came of this because Herman grounded into a double play started by Mueller and Galan tapped to Passeau.

Passeau was on the fire again in the seventh. With one out he let go the pitch that landed on Hartnett's left wrist. Hartnett went away for inspection, and O'Dea took his place. Marty's effort was fly to Stainback. Collins tapped a slow roller in front of the plate and Passeau was so long getting to the point of making a throw that Collins beat it for a hit. Besides this the throw was wild, Collins going to second and O'Dea to third. Passeau got out of this by passing Jurges and fanning French.

Arnovich Hits in Ninth.

All the Phils could show for their last three innings of swinging against French was one pass and one hit. He dropped three of them in a row in the seventh and began the eighth by retiring Walters, who batted for Passeau. Mueller then walked but was forced by Martin and Hack tossed out Stainback. The hit was a single to center by Arnovich to open the ninth. He still was on first base when the game ended.

Sox Get Two Chances to End String Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 4. — The White Sox will play their first manufactured double-header of the year here tomorrow. Monty Stratton and Johnny Whitehead will pitch for the Sox; Ed Smith and Lynn Nelson for the Athletics.

Manager Jimmy Dykes announced after the game that Joe Kuhel would be impounded by the bench brigade tomorrow. Rip Radcliff will play first and perhaps hit a ball or two in the pinches.

Connie Mack was back at his place on the Athletics' bench today. He suffered an attack of lumbago in Chicago the day the Sox losing streak started—May 26—and had not directed the team from the bench until today.

Authors traveling with the Sox were happy to some extent when they arrived at Shibe park today, despite the rigors of looking at the White Sox losing streak. They got their first ride on the new elevator to the Alpine press box.

The game was played under black skies. The threat of rain became more fearful when it became known the Yanks-Browns game a hundred miles away had been rained out.

The Philly fans, steamed up by the recent lambasting the A's gave the Yanks, have generously patronized the advance sale for tomorrow's double-header.

POLICE TEAMS TO OPEN DRILLS FOR TITLE SERIES

The police teams of the north and south sides which will meet for the baseball championship of the department July 3, 4, and 10 in Wrigley field and Comiskey park will start intensive training tomorrow.

Both were taken to a hospital after receiving first aid in the club house.

served no purpose in the first inning. Berger opened the game with a single to left. After Hayes had bounced into a double play, Steinbacher smacked the first of his doubles. Then Kreevich lined to Lodigiani.

The Athletics also wasted a single and a double in their first inning. Werber singled with two out and stopped at third on Brucker's double to left. Then Owen tossed out Johnson.

Walker opened the second with a single, took second on Kuhel's out and stole third. Then Owen fouled to Brucker and Sewell bounced to Ambler.

Sox Take Lead.

Lyons launched a power rally in the third. Ted got his first hit of the season, a double to center, and moved up on Berger's sacrifice. Brucker dropped Hayes' high foul for an error, whereupon Jackie flied to Johnson, Lyons scoring. Steinbacher came through with his second double and scored on Kreevich's single. Mike stole second, but Walker bounced to Ambler.

The Athletics tied the score on some merry thumping in the fourth. With one out, Brucker delivered his second extra baser, a triple to left center, and scored ahead of Johnson when Bob rammed an enormous homer into the stands in left center. Chapman singled, but Lodigiani and Ambler supplied easy outs.

After Lyons had fanned, Berger had singled and Hayes bounced into a double play for the second time to complete the Sox fifth, the Athletics got very busy in their half, taking a 4 to 2 lead and driving out Lyons with the bases loaded.

The End of Lyons.

With one out, Moses singled to left and stole second. Siebert supplied the second out with a fly to Steinbacher, but Werber singled to center, scoring Moses, and went on to second when Kreevich fumbled the ball. Brucker delivered his third hit, a single to center, scoring Werber. Johnson singled to left, Brucker stopping at second. Lyons walked Chapman, loading the bases, whereupon Gabler went in and struck out Lodigiani.

The Sox indulged in a characteristic fadeout in the sixth. Kreevich singled with one out and stopped at second on Walker's single. Then Kuhel whiffed and Owen fouled to Werber.

Moses doubled past Kreevich with two out in the sixth to get the shelling of Gabler under way. Siebert singled to center, scoring Moses. Werber smashed his homer into the upper deck of the left field grandstand, scoring Siebert. Brucker singled to center, his fourth straight hit, whereupon Johnson crashed out his second homer of the game, scoring Brucker. Chapman struck out.

Trying Right to the End.

Hopelessly licked, the Sox got their swallowed Adams' apples back in place for a brief spell in the eighth. Kreevich tripled with one out, and after Walker had bounced to Werber, scored on Kuhel's single to left. Owen singled to right, but Sewell flied to Chapman.

Still relaxed, the Sox added their fourth run in the ninth. A pinch single by Rip Radcliff and Hayes were factors.

De Kalb, Ill., June 4.—[Special.]—De Kalb Teachers defeated Macomb Teachers 5 to 4 today. Singer of De Kalb, the winning pitcher, also was the hitting star, getting a single in ninth with bases loaded. It was Macomb's first defeat in the Little 19 conference.

Claude Madsen, late of the Mills, will play left field for the Coals, replacing Harris Roedigher, who suffered a broken right ankle in Monday's first game.

Notre Dame broke a 3 to 3 tie in the eighth when Larry Doyle got to first on Dismeier's error and Johnny Braddock put him on third with his third single. A wild pitch by Henrich scored Doyle, putting Braddock on third. After Chet Sullivan popped out Al Kovzelove bounced a single over second base, scoring Braddock. Score:

BENSWANGER TO SEEK TRAINING SITE FOR PIRATES

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 4.—(AP)—President William E. Benswanger of the Pittsburgh Pirates will fly to Florida next Thursday to inspect several possible spring training sites.

The Pirates have been training in California, and a decision on whether the club will move to Florida next season will depend upon Benswanger's observations during his trip, the club announced. He will visit Orlando first.

The Pirates have received invitations from a number of Florida cities, as well as communities in other southern states. Bids also were received from Tucson, Ariz., Austin, Tex., and Santa Barbara, Cal.

Club officials disclosed today that, at the request of the Brooklyn club, they have consented to let the Pirate-Dodger game of Tuesday, June 21, in Brooklyn, be played at night instead of in the afternoon. The Pirates will play two night games this year—the second one in Cincinnati, Sept. 8.

HUBBELL ROUTED BY REDS; GIANTS LOSE AGAIN, 11-2

Weaver Holds Champions to Five Hits.

Cincinnati, O., June 4.—(AP)—Not even Carl Hubbell, the old meal ticket, could stop the Giants' losing landslide today, and New York had its National league lead cut to a half game by dropping an 11 to 2 decision to the Reds.

The Reds landed on Hubbell early, piling up seven runs in the first four innings and then coasting in behind big Jim Weaver's five hit hurling to stretch the Giants' losing streak to five straight. It was the second loss of the season against six victories for Hubbell, who was removed at the end of the third inning.

With the help of Ival Goodman's 13th homer of the season and Ernie Lombardi's fifth, Weaver had enough lead to loosen up in the late innings, when the Giants scored both their runs. One of these was Mel Ott's ninth homer.

PIRATES, 4; DODGERS, 3.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 4. — (AP) — A tough break for Freddy Fitzsimmons proved a lucky one for the Pirates today, and Pittsburgh beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4 to 3, in 11 innings.

After holding the Pirates to six hits and two unearned runs for eight innings, Fitzsimmons strained a ligament in his arm in fielding a ball in the eighth and had to retire with the Dodgers leading, 3 to 2.

His relief, Vito Tamulis and Tot Pressnell, both contributed to the tying run in the ninth and then Pressnell yielded the winning run in the eleventh when Lee Handley singled with two out and two on base.

Home runs accounted for four of the Card runs, Don Padgett getting his second in two days and Ducky Medwick hitting one in the eighth with two on. Fletcher and Di Maggio hit homers for Boston. Score:

MOUNTAIN RIDGE TAKES LINCOLN FIELDS HANDICAP

Yale o' Nine Wins Calumet by $1\frac{1}{2}$ Lengths.

Thomas D. Taggart's French Lick Springs stable, which won the Calumet purse from a band of the most highly regarded juveniles in Chicago.

Dunnamany was shipped to Lincoln Fields from New York a few days ago by his owner, Mrs. G. H. Emick, although he had not made a start in a race since he left the Tropical Park track in Florida early in April. He is a big chestnut son of Trojan-Gallia. He won two races in fifteen endeavors last year and this was the first he had scored in three starts this year.

He stole through on the inside to take the lead at the head of the stretch, then went along and drew steadily away to win by more than a length from the favorite, Sir Midas. Rough Diamond was third. The time was 1:41 2-5. Jocky Charley Rollins was in the saddle on Dunnamany.

Yale O'Nine's Third Straight.

Taggart's colt, Yale O'Nine—that's the year Taggart was graduated from Yale—rang up his third straight when he won the Calumet. He won like a champion because he was outrun and badly pinched back during the first half of the five furlong struggle.

Jocky Bobby Dotter skillfully piloted him to the outside, then made his drive around the outside of the early leaders. It did not take the son of Peter Hastings-Nursie long to fly to the front. He conquered Doubt Not from Warren Wright's stable by a length and a half. Bala Ormont was third.

The French Lick Springs colt carried top weight of 118 pounds. The victory served to make him an outstanding candidate for the 2 year old stakes that are to be run in Chicago later this season. He ran the five furlongs over the track that was slow at the time in 1:01 1-5. He had been slightly neglected in the betting, paying $14.40 for a $2 ticket.

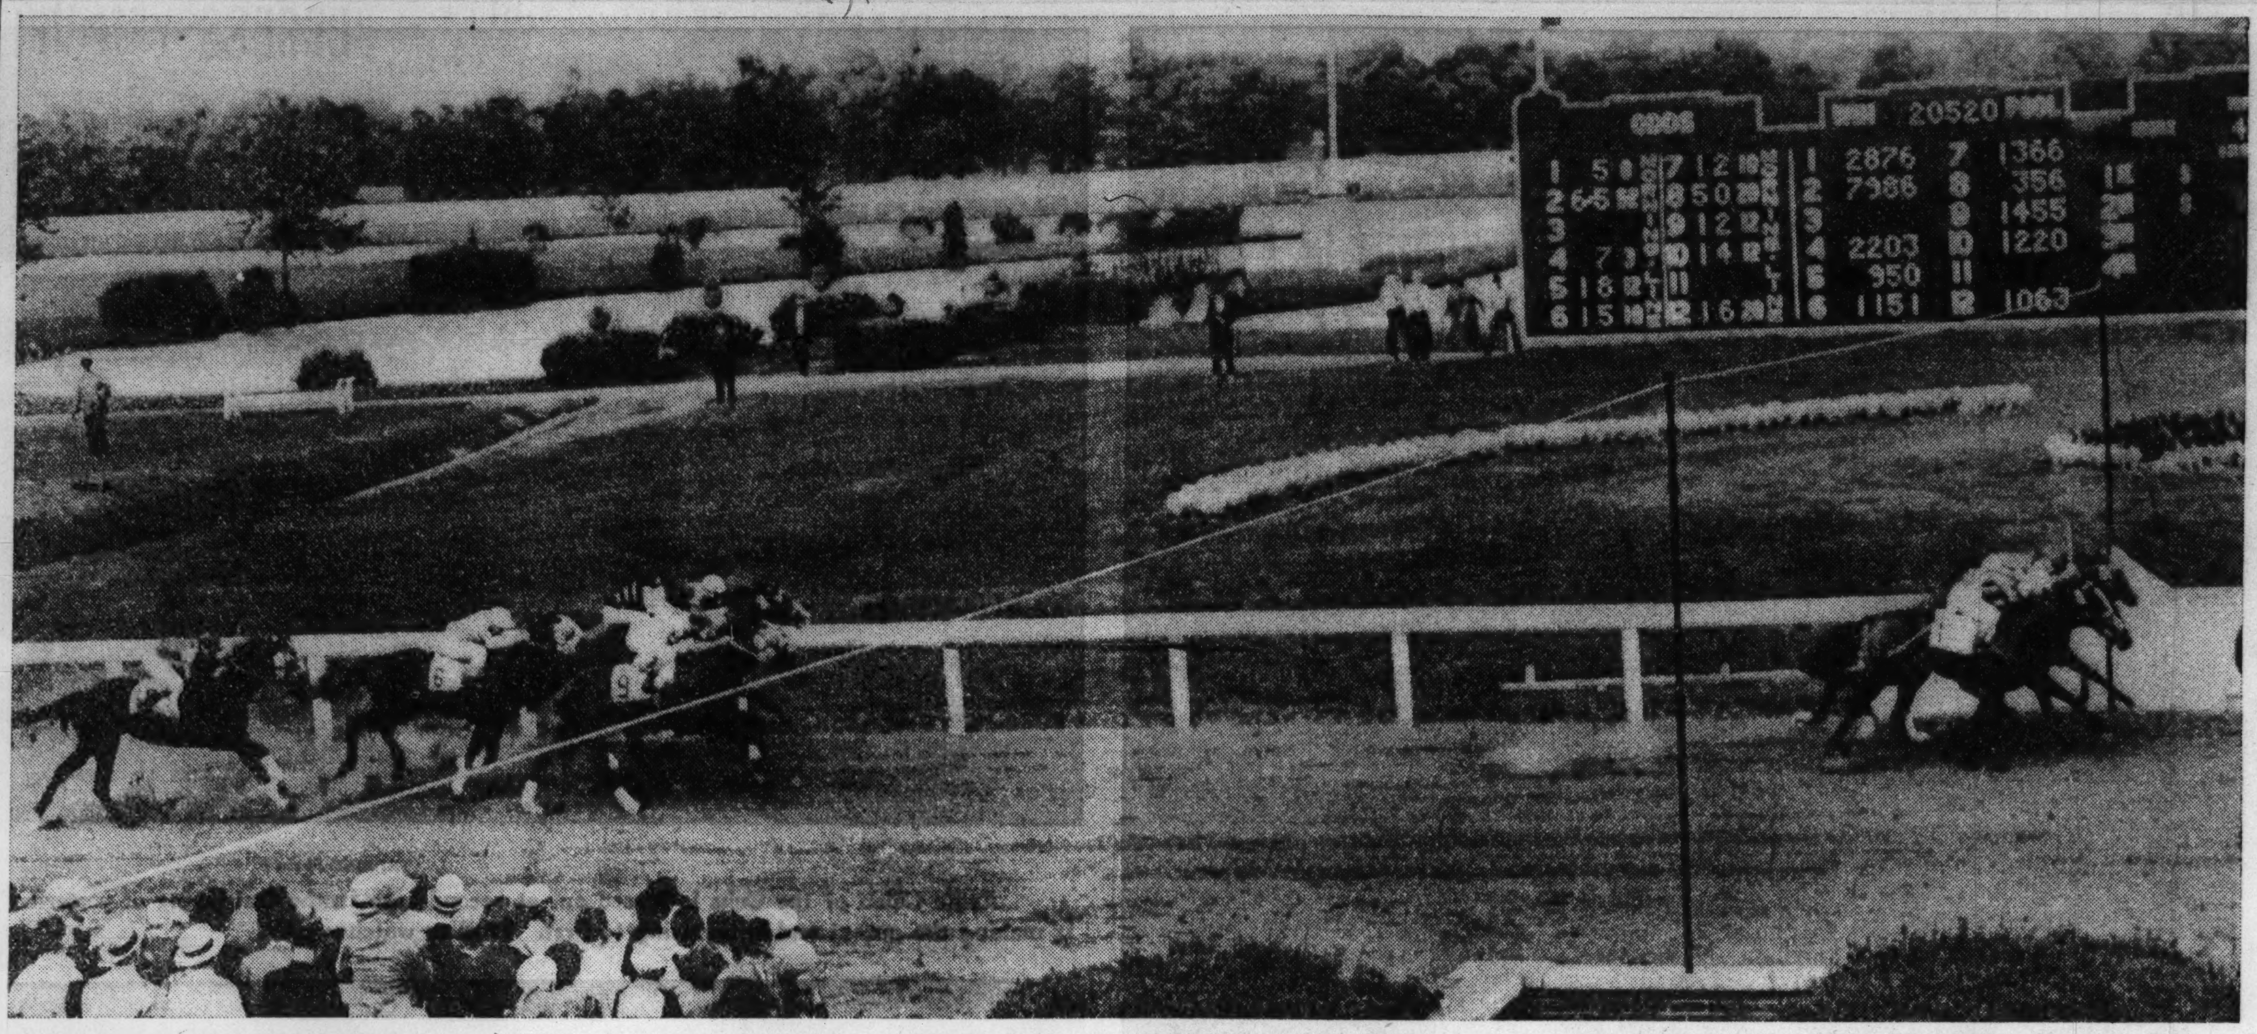
HERE'S A PUZZLE FOR THE JUDGES AT LINCOLN FIELDS



Here's the finish of the $5,000 Steger handicap which was run yesterday at Lincoln Fields. The judges were forced to call on the camera eye before they could decide on the winner. The photo showed that Mountain Ridge (on the outside) was first, Leading Article (in middle) was second, and Cross Bow II. (on rail) was third. The winner is from Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Milky Way stable. Mountain Ridge was outrun in the early stages and lost ground going to the outside as the stretch run started. Then he moved up with a rush and dropped his nose in front at the finish.

Winner trained by H. Wells. Went to post at 2:16. At post 2 minutes. Start good from Babr gate. Won driving, place same.

YALE O'NINE, away well but shuffled back slightly immediately after the start, was kept on the inside until the final three-sixteenths and brought out with some difficulty, closed fast when straight and was going away. DOUBT NOT, rushed into command, increased his advantage while under steady hold on the stretch turn, raced greenly under pressure the final eighth and failed to hold the winner but may improve off the effort. BALA ORMONT, away slowly and badly outrun early, saved ground to the stretch where, after coming out, she closed with determination in a good performance. WAFER, away slowly after delaying the start, was taken under a light hold while bearing over and after being rushed to the leaders, did not respond when urged and weakened in the last three-sixteenths. WISKOVER raced wide throughout. VIRAGIN quit.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

WILDA, racing in good form and steadied when outrun, swung to the outside entering the stretch, rallied strongly to urging after straightening out and, disposing of BOSTON SOUND, came away to win with something left. BOSTON SOUND, rank at the post but away well, was rated close to the early leaders while racing wide, took command soon after reaching the stretch and held on well but was no match for the winner. ONA BOY dropped far out of it, did not rally until the last three-sixteenths and then passed only tired horses.

SANCTITY, taken out after a quarter and clear thereafter, bettered his position gradually, wore down MACAWLEE without need of strong pressure and, drawing out into a good lead, won easily. MACAWLEE was rated under a snug hold for three-eighths, rapidly increased her advantage on the stretch turn and held on well to the last sixteenth before faltering. MASTER TIME was under stout urging after reaching the last five-sixteenths, closed well and was getting to MACAWLEE.

FLYING LILL raced wide until clear, was steadied on the stretch turn, stood a drive gamely, but just lasted. LAYOVER, on the inside for three-eighths, closed resolutely after coming out and might have got up in another stride. VANSCOUT, well rated, made a bid when called upon in the final quarter, but weakened near the end.

Here's Dope! These Recipes Stop Skeeters

BY BOB BECKER.

If there were no insect pests in the woods fishing and camping would be much simpler than it is, since there would be no need to worry about mosquito proof tents, no need to carry spray guns filled with insect killing liquids, and no occasion for the fisherman, canoeist, and camper to carry around bottles of mosquito repellants in their outdoor clothes. But just as sure as June arrives on the fisherman's calendar, mosquitoes, black flies, and other biting insects make their appearance and one has to get out the insect repelling dopes to battle with them. We have fought these pests individually and collectivel, from Amazonian forests in Brazil to Alaska, so we have tried many different kinds of mixtures that will keep flies and mosquitoes at a distance.

Here Are Recipes.

There are many good mosquito dopes on sale in the sporting goods stores. Some are dark and heavy containing pine tar. Others are light, rather bland and contain no tar. You'll find mixtures with a heavy base which you put on the skin like an ointment and others which have an oil for a base. We have tried dozens of them and also have made up our own mixtures for use in the north country. If you like to experiment a little with new dopes we offer some recipes.

Your druggist can make up the mixture which you can try:

1. Olive or castor oil [for a base]	1 ounce
Pine tar	1 ounce
Camphor	½ ounce
Citronella	½ ounce
Sassafras oil	1 dram

Here are two oils [citronella and sassafras] combined with pine tar and camphor. We like the camphor because it is soothing to the skin, although it evaporates quickly.

No Pine Tar in This.

2. If you don't like the odor of pine tar you can make up a dope without it. Here is the recipe:

Olive oil or castor oil [for a base]	1 ounce
Citronella	1 ounce
Camphor	1 dram
Sassafras oil	2 drams
Bergamot	2 drams

Oil of cedar is a good repelant. The only fault with oil of cedar is that it's rather strong and may irritate the skin. Oil of lavendar [genuine, not synthetic] is bland and very effective, but rather expensive. We prefer it to oil of cedar because of its efficiency and we have made up several mixtures to include this oil. Other ingredients we have mixed with citronella are creosote and pennyroyal. During the last few years we have used castor oil instead of olive oil as a base for the repellants because it is thicker and is in itself repugnant to most insects.

were at the far turn Dauber, Cravat and Jolly Tar made their bids.

Dauber and Cravat were the two strongest, and soon left Jolly Tar behind. Magic Hour had also dropped behind. This left Pasteurized to swing into the stretch on top, with Dauber to the outside, and challenging hard. Cravat got through along the rail, saving ground, and moved up with a strong threat.

Farther out Pasteurized was under the whip to stay in front and Dauber was being urged just as hard to get to him. As the stretch drive wore on, Pasteurized went wide. This did not happen until Dauber had been abreast of him for a few moments. Dauber could not make good those moments.

After he was held safe Pasteurized began to bear out. At the finish Dauber not only wasn't gaining but was slowly dropping behind. The fractional time for the race follows: :24 1-5, :49 2-5, 1:14, 1:38 3-5, 2:04, and 2:29 2-5. The track was fast.

Trainer George Odom was congratulated, but he also suffered his disappointment on the day. In the $14,330 National Stallion stakes, Odom sent out Marshall Field's Pont Neuf to be the favorite at 3 to 2. Pont Neuf came home fourth in a field of five.

The winner was Donita M. from the Longchamps farm. Greentree stable's Third Degree was second, and Sage stable's first time starter, Entracte, was third. The winner received $11,330.

Jimmy, whose surname of Adamcik has been legally changed to Adamick, will be making his Chicago debut, but a reputation of having scored 43 knockouts in 53 professional starts precedes him.

K. O.'s Ettore in Fourth.

Adamick, born of Slavic parents on a farm 18 miles east of Midland, Mich., 24 years ago, registered a four round knockout over Al Ettore in Philadelphia in his latest appearance May 25. Jimmy weighed 190½ pounds on that occasion.

Trammell carried 183½ pounds when he lost in ten rounds to Tiger Jack Fox in Pittsburgh April 11. Trammell, however, is 6 feet 4 inches tall, thus placing Adamick at a disadvantage in height and reach, inasmuch as Jimmy stands only 6 feet.

Previously Wins Six Straight.

Before the Fox encounter Trammell won six straight. He whipped Andre Lenglet March 1 and Obie Walker Jan. 18 in St. Louis; Lorenzo Pack, Madison Square Garden, Dec. 13; Willie Reddish, Philadelphia, Nov. 18; Marty Gallagher, Pittsburgh, Nov. 15; Big Jim Thompson, Pittsburgh, Aug. 23.

The Petroskey brothers, Tony and Pete, will appear in two of the contests on the Marigold card. Tony, welterweight, is paired with Verne Patterson, and Pete, middleweight, with Billy Celebron.

In his last three fights in Marigold Tony whipped Remo Fernandez Jan. 24 and again April 25, and knocked out Johnny Barbara April 18. Patterson, who was knocked out by Billy Celebron March 28, came back to stop Frankie Sagilio in two rounds May 23.

2 Receptions Planned for Irish Boxers

Because of the large percentage of Irish in Chicago, it has been decided by officials of the C. Y. O. to have two receptions for the amateur boxing champions of Ireland who will clash with the C. Y. O. boxers in the annual C. Y. O. milk fund show in Soldiers' field on July 13.

At first plans were made to have one reception for the Irish boxers in Garfield park. Since that announcement made last Thursday, hundreds of telephone calls have been received at the C. Y. O. offices from residents of the south and southwest sections of the city, asking for a reception on the south side.

The first reception will be held on the west side on Friday night, July 8 in Garfield park, Hamlin avenue and Madison street. The other reception will be the following night in Ogden park, 65th street and Racine avenue.

Both welcomings to the Irish boxers will include a parade of automobiles, the Irish boxers riding in open cars, floats, bands, boy scouts and sea scouts.

TOO MANY FISH SPOIL THE SPORT IN ILLINOIS LAKES

Springfield, Ill., June 4.—(AP)—Plenty of fish—the dream of most fishermen—has hampered the sport in many Illinois lakes.

The state board of natural resources and conservation has started a fish census to determine in what lakes overstocking, resulting in severe competition for food, is responsible for undersized fish.

One conservation group is en route from Sterling on the laboratory boat Anax to the lakes and lagoons of Cook county to promote fish management practices. A second is engaged in investigations designed to improve conditions throughout the state.

U. S. OPEN GOLF TITLE BATTLE TO START THURSDAY

Chicago Sends Twenty to Denver Tourney.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

American golf's biggest show, the forty-second national open tournament, will be held Thursday, Friday, and Saturday at the Cherry Hills club of Denver, Colo., with a field of 140 professionals and thirty amateurs, the pick of their respective sections throughout the country, competing.

The national open title is the most valuable in the game. For several winters past the game's leading professionals have turned strolling players for the gold in the so-called grapevine circuits. A young pro may win two or three of these tournaments, but the check he receives constitutes the only genuine return for his triumph. Victory in the national open carries an intrinsic value which dwarfs a dozen chamber of commerce titles.

Mental Pressure Is Heavy.

Thus the three day battle in Denver should be as much of a struggle as any of its predecessors. It has been said that while the open contains much of the finest golf ever played, it more than often produces some of the worst shots in the history of the game. These sour swings are the result of a mental pressure comparable to that found in world series baseball and championship football contests.

The field which starts play Thursday morning will be playing a strange course, for this is the farthest west the open ever has come. Golfers used to the roomier courses of the east may find the small greens and narrow fairways of the Cherry Hills club something of a problem, not to mention the atmospheric changes natural in the higher altitude.

Guldahl Heads Field.

Head man in the field is Ralph Guldahl, the Texas born pro who registered from Chicago when he won the 1937 open in Detroit with a world record score of 281, but who now registers from Madison, N. J. Guldahl passed up the Kansas City open in order to go on to Denver for practice at Cherry Hills.

If Guldahl should come through again, he will be the first player to make a successful title defense since Bobby Jones accomplished the feat in 1929 and 1930. The open is such a fiercely fought tournament that Guldahl's chances against the field will not be truly evident until the show enters its final thirty-six holes on Saturday.

Guldahl may well reckon with the three men who followed him home at Detroit last year. Sam Snead, the West Virginia prodigy who finished runnerup in his first attempt at the open, is a definite threat. Bobby Cruickshank, the little Scot who turned up in third place, plays his best golf in the open year in and year out. Fourth in the 1937 field was the man who is feared in every tournament, and with reason. He is Harry Cooper of Chicago, rated golf's perfect swinger.

Has 166 Other Competitors.

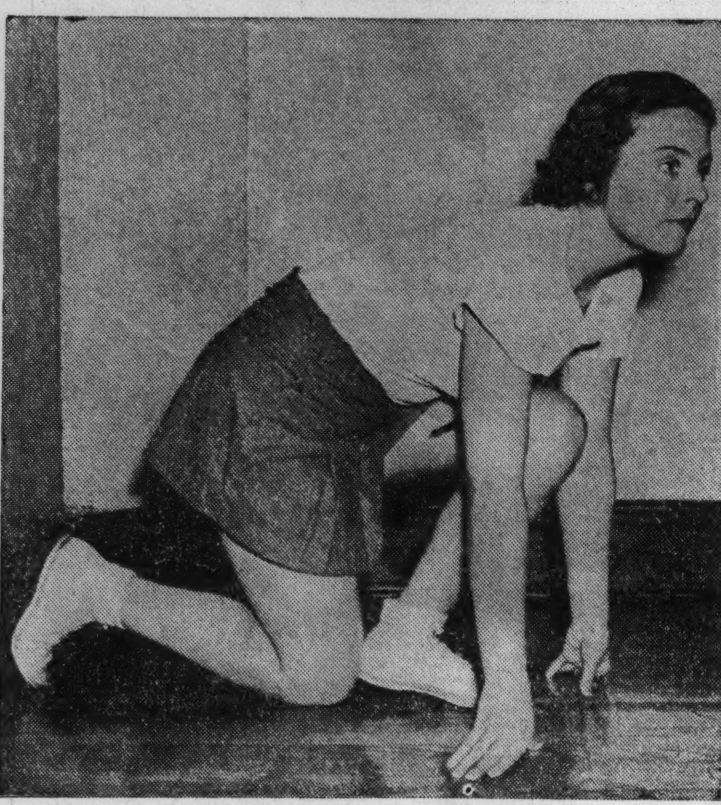
The champion's task would be comparatively simple if it were a question of arguing it out with this threesome, but he has 166 other competitors, some of whom have held the title before and would not be averse to an encore. These include Gene Sarazen, Billy Burke, Olin Dutra, Willie MacFarlane, Tommy Armour, Tony Manero, Paul Runyan, Byron Nelson, Denny Shute, and Victor Ghezzi.

Add to these such names as Horton Smith, Jimmy Thomson, Dick Metz, Henry Picard, Ky Laffoon, Johnny Revolta, Jimmy Hines, Harold McSpaden, Jimmy Demaret, and Lawson Little, and it will be seen that Guldahl faces a busy three days.

Chicago will have its usual strong delegation to the open, with a detail of twenty players—seventeen professionals and three amateurs. Three of these—Lawson Little of San Francisco, Willie Goggin of San Bruno, Cal., and Western Amateur Champion Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis.—are outsiders, but chose the Chicago district in which to qualify.

Cooper, Revolta, Stupple, and Laffoon were exempt from sectional qualifications because they finished within the first thirty last year. Chicagoans also will be interested in the play of Arthur Doering Jr., Chicago student at Stanford university, who qualified in San Francisco, and Jack Westland of Everett, Wash., former Chicago district and western amateur titleholder, who led the trials in Seattle.

She's Northwestern's Only Co-ed Letter Winner



Emily Potts of Northwestern is the school's only co-ed letter winner this year. She has earned 1,500 points in the Woman's Athletic association and with them a major N. She completed the four year course in three and one-half years. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

She can't beat Northwestern's men at sports, but on the tennis courts Miss Potts runs feminine opponents ragged.

Revolta and Cooper Tie in $5,000 Open

Kansas City, Mo., June 4.—(AP)—Johnny Revolta of Evanston scored a 68, five under par, late today to tie Harry Cooper for the lead in Kansas City 54 hole $5,000 open golf tournament.

Needing birdies on the last two holes to tie Cooper, who twice sank eagles, Revolta holed an eight-footer on the final green for a 32, four under par, after going out in 36.

Earlier Cooper, wild off the tee but deadly on recovery shots and putts, had combined two 34s.

Hillcrest's par took a thorough beating despite the upsetting events of yesterday, when lightning killed two spectators and caused cancellation of the first 18 holes. The final 36 will be played tomorrow.

Twenty-one of the approximately 120 entrants scored par or better. Jimmy Demaret, Houston, Tex., had 69. Horton Smith, Tony Penna, Floyd Mangrum, and Willie Goggin shot 70. Leo Mallory, Darien, Conn.; Gene Sarazen, and Warren Reipen, St. Joseph, Mo., professional, were bunched at 71.

BUTLER GETS 4 IN NINTH; BEATS WABASH, 7 TO 2

Crawfordsville, Ind., June 4.—[Special.]—Butler university's baseball team defeated Wabash college this afternoon, 7 to 2, in a game that was close until the visitors scored four runs in the ninth on a hit, a walk, and three errors.

Walter Davis, first Wabash pitcher, went out in the sixth with two runs in and two on bases. Hawkins held Butler scoreless while he pitched. Butler's four final runs were made off Hester, who worked the last two innings. Burdette, Butler second baseman, first man up in the game, hit a home run on the second ball pitched by Davis. Score:

Butler	100 002 004—7	10	1
Wabash	000 002 000—2	5	4

Batteries: Butler—Blackaby and Kubal. Wabash—Davis, Hawkins, Hester and Marcianik.

EMILY POTTS NO BICEPS GIRL, BUT WINS PURPLE N

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

When her opponents are women, Miss Emily Potts, Northwestern university's champion woman athlete, can't lose. She runs them ragged on the tennis court, splashes circles around them in a swimming pool, and spends half her time waiting for them to catch up on the golf course. But let her opponents be men, and Miss Potts is a dub.

For Emily, say her classmates, has brains. And beauty. Not in the efficient, ruddy, wholesome way of female athletes. But in the gracious, curved, and glowing way of a pretty girl. Her hair is chestnut and it curls. Her eyes are clear blue, and her skin golden. She is 21 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, and weighs 127 pounds. She may be muscular, but you'd never know it.

Earns a Major N.

In the three and one-half years it has taken Emily to finish a four-year course at Northwestern, she has earned 1,500 points in the Woman's Athletic association, and with them, a major N. A purple N is the highest symbol of athletic attainment that can be achieved at Northwestern, and Emily is the only co-ed this year to wear one.

Emily has been winning points, really, since she was 7 years old and the neighbor boys chose her captain of their sandlot baseball team. Next they let her shoot marbles with them. Since then she's won every medal she tried for in athletics. At 8, she glided out on an ice rink in her little blue kilts to carry off an award in THE TRIBUNE'S Silver Skates Speed Derby. She was the youngest and smallest contestant in her division that day, and cried bitterly afterwards because she was a girl, and had to wear a skirt.

Stars in Sports at Austin.

She starred in athletics at Austin High school, and has made varsity teams in volley ball, basketball, baseball, hocky, soccer. She plays badminton, pingpong, and rides horseback. She likes to dance, and has earned part of her college expenses teaching eighth graders dancing. After she has found a job as an instructor in physical education, she hopes to continue her study of the modern dance.

Miss Potts does not throw the discus, put the shot, or break records in track. She is not at all a Helen Stephens, or a Babe Didrickson.

Not a Biceps Girl.

"Emily's no biceps girl" is the way one of her Alpha Xi sorority sisters explained her, "and no la-de-la, either. She's popular and clever and amusing, and is just good at things she tries."

Northwestern's N girl has no special training rules. She lives with her mother, Mrs. Mabel Potts, and an older brother, Charles, at 5806 Ridge avenue. She frowns on diet fads, dates often, sleeps only six hours a night during the week, and catches up on Sunday. She smokes occasionally at sorority meetings, and drinks a cocktail only when she has to.

BRITISH GOLFERS BEAT AMERICANS; WIN WALKER CUP

Series Ends, 7 to 4, with One Even.

putted erratically while Thomson, rated Britain's greatest club swinger, was steady throughout. Goodman rallied in the afternoon, when he went out in 34, but he had spotted Thomson too many holes.

Fischer and Crawley were level at the morning turn but Crawley turned on the heat coming in to go four up. Then Fischer found his putting form. He had leveled the match when they reached the afternoon turn and with a brilliant burst of scoring on the early incoming holes he clinched the match.

Kocsis was nervous in the morning round but drew up level with the Englishman passing the afternoon turn. He took the lead at the twenty-eighth hole but two bad 6s, due to finding a trap and 3-putting cost him the match.

Ward Scores 67.

Ward had a 67 in the morning round, equaling the professional record for the St. Andrews old course and bettering the amateur record. The mark will not be recognized since it was made in match play. Ward crushed his opponent with sound golf in the afternoon.

Smith was shaky this morning and his opponents got the breaks. On one hole, for instance, Peters' pitch hit a spectators' umbrella and bounced down to the green instead of going over it. Peters had an outward 34 this afternoon to be dormie 9 and ran out the match when they halved the twenty-eighth in birdie threes.

Haas putted poorly and was frequently in traps in the morning round but improved his scoring coming in to be only 1 down at luncheon time. Kyle, who had been 3 up at the morning turn, was again 3 up at the afternoon turn, thanks to a sub-par 36, and coasted in to win.

Smokers' Test showed Vintage Tobacco was easier on your breath

WHITE OWLS are definitely easier on your breath—scientific tests proved it. And there's a good reason why, too. Every White Owl always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not artificial factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls.

Switch to White Owls today and taste the rich Vintage tobacco . . . then notice how quickly your breath clears.

THE METALLIC NOSE KNOWS

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten popular brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

CATHOLIC MEET FRIDAY

Notre Dame, Ind., June 4.—[Special.]—National Catholic high school track champions will be crowned here Friday and Saturday in the fifth annual running of the Notre Dame National Catholic prep meet.

West Catholic High of Philadelphia, which has won the four previous meets, already has won the Philadelphia city crown, and is the favorite.

Hold Preliminaries Friday.

Preliminaries in eight events will be run Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock [central daylight time]. The 100 and 220 yard dashes and the 120 and 220 yard hurdles will go through trials leading to the finals and the fields in the shot put, discus, javelin, and broad jump will be cut to eight finalists.

Finals in all events will be held Saturday. The shot put and pole vault, in which no preliminaries will be held, will start at 2:30 o'clock [central daylight time], with the track events starting half an hour later with the running of the 120 yard hurdles. There will be sixteen final events, including two sections each of the 440 yard dash and the 880 yard run.

Standards Established.

In an effort to keep the amount of strain on any individual entrant to a minimum the committee in charge of the meet, headed by Coach John P. Nicholson of Notre Dame, has established a set of standards which must be met in competition before the national contest. This will cut the entry list but it will prevent unnecessary trials. No boy will be permitted to participate in more than three events, excluding the half mile relay.

LAKE SHORE A. C. ENTERS SIX IN A. A. U. SWIM

Six entries, headed by that of 14 year old Bobbie Nicholson, who holds several titles, have been sent in by Walter Player, swimming coach of the Lake Shore A. C, for the Central A. A. The girl star is entered in the 440 and 220 yard free style events for women. Other Lake Shore swimmers who will compete for one or two of the twelve titles are Harold Henning, 40 yard free style and 100 yard back stroke; Miller Anderson Jr., low board diving; Bobbie Amundsen, 100 and 220 yard free style; Bob Peshek, 100 and 220 yard free style, and Frank Havlicek, 100 yard breast stroke.

Entries will close tomorrow with Jack Mahoney, club athletic director. Approximately fifty swimmers will compete.

MIDGET AUTOS RACE TONIGHT IN NINE EVENTS

Harry MacQuinn will lead a field of thirty-two midget car drivers onto the Riverview speedway tonight in a nine race program which will start at 8:30 o'clock.

MacQuinn's last appearance was in the Indianapolis 500 mile race where he finished seventh. The Milwaukee pilot also competed in the 1937 Indianapolis race and took tenth place prize money.

Among those who will compete against MacQuinn, the favorite, are Shorty Sorenson, Wally Zale, Johnny Zale, Ted Duncan, Harry Lewis, Marshall Lewis, Cowboy O'Rourke, Frank Beeder, Everett Rice, Myron Fohr, and Carl Trauman.

MARQUETTE IS HOST FRIDAY IN CENTRAL TRACK

Milwaukee, Wis., June 4.—[Special.]—Shifting from the I. C. 4-A games on Randalls Island in New York City, the national track picture will move to the central states next week-end with the thirteenth annual central collegiate track meet to be held in the Marquette university stadium next Friday afternoon and night.

Most of the great varsity performers from the Alleghanies to the Rockies and many from the south and southwest will participate in the games at Marquette and then proceed to the national collegiate events in Minneapolis June 17-18.

Games Founded in 1926.

Athletic Director Conrad M. Jennings of Marquette, in charge of the central meet, has predicted one of the greatest fields in the history of the games, founded by himself, Knute Rockne of Notre Dame, and Ralph Young of Michigan State in 1926, when the Big Ten barred all except member schools from its meet.

The central program originally was scheduled for June 3, and when it was postponed a week Indiana university, the 1937 team champion, automatically yielded its title. The Hoosiers previously were committed to a dual meet with Ohio State in Columbus June 11.

Two Teams Rated Highly.

As a result a wide open battle for the team championship and the K. K. Rockne memorial trophy is anticipated. Wisconsin, which was second in the Western conference meet and will be represented by a full squad here, and Notre Dame, 1938 central indoor winner, will be the favorites.

Among the other teams entered are Illinois, Iowa, Chicago, Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Michigan State, Butler, Howard Payne [Brownwood, Tex.], Tennessee, Drake, Western State, Bradley Tech, Earlham, Marquette, Beloit, Lawrence, Iowa Teachers, Yankton, Illinois Normal, Augustana, Macomb [Ill.] Teachers, De Kalb [Ill.] Teachers, and Milwaukee Teachers.

Southern California Captures I.C.-4 A Track Title 8th Time the result were it not that, a little more than an hour before, Borck had shattered the oldest record in the I. C. 4-A book, the 4:14.4 mile that John Paul Jones posted a quarter of a century ago.

Borck Wins by 20 Yards.

That was a world mark when it was run and yet Borck broke it in the first major mile race of his career.

For the first quarter the field was closely bunched, then at 660 yards Alex Northrop of Harvard, the favorite, came up from thirteenth to take the lead. He whipped out ahead of Pete Bradley of Princeton and Borck. Borck passed Bradley and, catching Northrop in the backstretch of the last lap, opened up a margin of twenty yards.

Moclair, a dark horse, sprinted in the last 150 yards of the two miles to leave Ken Waite of Michigan State and break Jimmy Reid's nine year record by eight-tenths of a second.

100 Yard Dash Is Close.

The 100 yard dash was so close, with Adrian Talley of Southern California and Wilbur Greer of Michigan State in a near dead heat that the officials had to announce Talley the winner only if motion pictures substantiated the decision. This was a test that saw Johnson fade badly toward the end. The time was 9.9 seconds.

In the high hurdles Harvey Woodstra of Michigan State won by two yards from Jim Humphrey of Southern California. His time, 14.4 seconds, equaled Earl Thompson's intercollegiate record that was made in 1920 and then stood as a world mark for more than a decade. Woodstra also came back for a double by taking the low hurdles in :23.8.

Pole Vault Disappointing.

The field events saw the leaders hold the places they earned in Friday's qualifying trials with only two, Howard Brill of N. Y. U. in the shot put and Nick Vukmanic of Penn State in the javelin throw improving on their previous performances. Brill did 51 feet 3¼ inches and Vukmanic 217 feet 6⅞ inches.

Thurber in the high jump cleared 6 feet 6⅝ inches in the rain to eclipse by a half inch George Spitz's old figure.

Bud Day and Ken Dills, new Trojan pole vault twins, were approximately a foot under their best in being tied by Bill Harding of Yale and R. Fuller Patterson of Princeton at 13 feet 6 inches. Anson Perina of Princeton also surprised by winning the broad jump from Arnold Nutting nad Guy Manuel, two 25 footers from California.

16 POUND SHOT PUT—Won by Howard Brill, New York university, 51 ft. 3¼ in.; Francis Ryan, Columbia, 50 ft. 2 in., second; Edward Swenson, Boston college, 49 ft. 8⅝ in., third; Robert Fisher, Southern California, 48 ft. 1⅛ in., fourth; John Bazyk, Pittsburgh, 48 ft. 1¼ in., fifth.

ONE MILE RUN—Won by Edgar Borck, Manhattan; Alexander C. Northrop, Harvard, second; Donald Smith, Maine, third; Peter D. Bradley, Princeton, fourth; Edmund V. Mezitt, Cornell, fifth. Time, 4:13.9. [Time betters intercollegiate A. A. A. A. record of 4:14.4 set by John Paul Jones of Cornell, 1913.]

Cowell, Maine, fifth. Time, 14.4 [equals intercollegiate A. A. A. A. record set by Earl Thompson, Dartmouth, in 1920].

LOYOLA, DE PAUL FIVES TO PLAY IN DOUBLE-HEADERS

First negotiations to assure Chicago collegiate basketball double-headers during the winter were announced yesterday by Judge John A. Sbarbaro, who revealed that De Paul and the University of Iowa fives will be on the opening card Dec. 19.

Judge Sbarbaro, who is sponsoring the collegiate double-headers with Arthur Morse, said that the games will be played in the 132d armory, Madison and Rockwell streets, and that he has assurances that Loyola and De Paul will play on each schedule, meeting leading college teams from all parts of the country.

Morse returned from Iowa City late last week with a verbal agreement for the Iowa-De Paul game and is now dickering with several other central states schools for a representative opponent for Loyola. He has bids out to Santa Clara, Southern Methodist, George Washington university, North Dakota, Bradley and other schools.

New York, June 4.—[Special.]—The College Track Coaches' Association of America voted today to return the dates of the intercollegiate A. A. A. A. track and field meet to the last Friday and Saturday in May instead of the first June week-end, in effect for the first time this year.

John J. Magee of Bowdoin was named president, succeeding Jack Ryder of Boston college. Carl Merner of Columbia was elected vice president and Harry Hillman of Dartmouth continued as secretary-treasurer.

HOLD FINALS IN PARK DISTRICT ARCHERY TODAY

Finals in the Robin Hood archery tournament of the Chicago park district will be held this afternoon in Hutchinson field in Grant park.

One hundred and eighty archers remaining after city-wide preliminary contests will compete in four divisions—men, women, boys, and girls.

Finals will begin at 1 o'clock and end at 6 o'clock.

Big 10, Pacific Coast Threaten Track Marks

A mile under 4 minutes 10 seconds. A 15 foot pole vault. A 6 foot 8 inch high jump. A shot put of 53 feet and a 100 yard dash in :09.4 seconds. These are some of the prospective performances which will take place when All-Star teams of the Pacific coast and Big Ten conference clash in the second annual dual track meet in Dyche stadium at Northwestern, June 25. Each conference has selected its three best men in each event for the meet.

World Marks Threatened.

World marks in half a dozen events will be threatened when these two great squads come together. Three records fell and a fourth was tied in the recent Pacific coast conference meet when the western team was selected. Two records went into the discard and a half dozen more escaped by the narrowest of margins in the Big Ten meet in which the midwestern team was picked.

One of the best races of the day is anticipated in the mile run which will bring together Charles Fenske of Wisconsin, who won the event in the Big Ten meet in 4:10.9, and Edson Burrows of Stanford, who set a new Pacific Coast conference mark of 4:17.

Watson Seeks Three Titles.

Bill Watson, Michigan's all-around colored star, will seek titles in the broad jump, shot put and discus, events which he won in the conference meet. His tosses of 53 feet 11¾ inches in the shot put and 24 feet 11 inch leap in the broad jump exceeded the marks made in the Pacific coast meet.

Pete Zagar of Stanford won the discus event in the coast meet with a throw of 155 feet 5 inches. Watson's throw with which he won the event in the Big Ten meet was 154 feet 8½ inches.

20 MILE RACE TOPS HAMMOND PROGRAM TODAY

Track records are expected to be lowered this afternoon in the Hammond speedway when banked track champions of three states compete in a seven race auto program starting at 2:30 p. m.

The twenty mile feature event is expected to be a wide open affair, with such stars as Petri Alberti, Slim Rutherford, Buzz Mendenhall, Jimmy Wilburn, Everett Rice, Elbert Booker, and Don Mack competing.

Wilburn, west coast banked track champion, and Buzz Mendenhall of Ohio, title holder, will make their first appearance in the Hammond oval. Wilburn is unbeaten in his last four starts in feature races. He captured the main events at Fort Wayne, Winchester, Jungle Park, and Greenville.

Besides the twenty mile event there will be four qualifying heats, a handicap race between the two fastest cars, and a consolation race. Time trials will start at 11:30 a. m.

Snyder to Race in Fair Grounds Opener Sunday

Jimmy Snyder of Chicago, who led the field until the 375 mile mark in the Indianapolis 500 mile race on Memorial day and then was forced out through motor breakage, will compete next Sunday on the Fair Grounds speedway, 87th street and River road, when Promoter Carl Stockholm stages his first auto race card of the season. Snyder will drive a car owned by Paul Weirick of Los Angeles. This car was driven for two years by Rex Mays, who had little difficulty in winning the bulk of the prize money awarded by Stockholm at the old Roby track and the Fair Grounds.

The entry of Ronnie Householder was received by Stockholm yesterday, a starter who will push the Chicagoan every inch of the way if they run to the form they displayed in the Indianapolis race. Householder qualified for the race in the fastest 25 mile test ever recorded on the track. Along with Householder's entry yesterday came one with the signature of Mauri Rose. Rose also suffered motor trouble in the Indianapolis race, but in 1936 was the National A. A. U. champion.

Other noted racing figures who will face the starter next Sunday will be Chet Miller, third at Indianapolis; Ted Horn, fourth in the same race; Chet Gardner, fifth, and Frank Wearne, tenth. Frank Beeder, holder of the Fair Grounds track record, and Frank Brisko, Chicago veteran, will also compete in the opening program of the Chicago standard car racing season.

FRANCIS, RICE SET NOTRE DAME TRACK RECORDS

Notre Dame, Ind., June 4.—[Special.]—Two Notre Dame records were established and another tied in an exhibition for commencement guests today. The exhibition also served as a tuneup for next week's central collegiate meet in Milwaukee.

John Francis, Chicago senior, set a new Notre Dame mark for the 1,000 yard run, missing the world record by one second when he covered the distance in 2:11.

Greg Rice, national two mile champion and 1939 captain elect, ran the mile and a half in 6 minutes 44 seconds, 2 seconds off the world record. Bill Clifford, Gary senior, tied the Notre Dame record of 9.6 seconds for the 100 yard dash. It was the third time in his career that he has made the time.

American Co-eds Meet Cepak Girls' Nine Tonight

The American Co-eds will play the Billy Cepak Bloomer Girls in one of three softball games tonight in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. The Eddie McCabe Girls meet the Collins Red Wings and J. B. Wallers encounter the 18th Ward Indians.

Earlier this year, Skipper Nye had raced the 22 foot sloop in Havana, Cuba, and Nassau, Bahamas, winning three championships out of four. Gale was built for him in California last December.

Alert IV. R. Class Victor.

In the R class of Belmont harbor, Dr. T. J. Morris' entry, Alert IV., was the victor. It covered the twelve mile course in 2:04:38. Calypso, Dr. Hollis Potter's sloop, former flagship of the club, was second. Calypso led the fleet the first time around the triangular course, but finally was beaten by one minute and two seconds.

Hubert C. Ellis' eagle class sloop, Aquila, defeated four other 30 foot craft. It was timed in 2:24:34. George Daiseg's and Joseph Richter's Tumlaren class racer, Friendship, won in its class with 1:45:55.

Racing and cruising divisions of the Jackson Park Yacht club's fleet also raced yesterday off Jackson park harbor. Altara, Robert A. Hess' entry, won the star class event. Fleet Captain Carson Hoover's cutter, Eslyn, beat Vice Commodore Clyde Larish's cutter, Wind Song, by 22 seconds on corrected time.

Safara Wins in Universal Class.

Safara, the Hanson-Barnard syndicate R class sloop, won in the universal class, and Shamrock, John P. O'Rourke's 8 meter sloop, won in the large racing class.

The large racing and cruising windjammers of the Jackson Park Yacht club will meet today for the first of the new handicap series. A non-series race will be held for all racing classes of the Chicago Yacht club off Belmont harbor, starting at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Summaries:

LIGHT BOX CARS GIVE RAILS HOPE OF VAST SAVING

Advantages of New Type Are Told.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Pointing the way to a potential huge saving in railroad operating costs, 200 lightweight railroad box cars have just rolled off the assembly line of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company's plant at Michigan City, Wallace N. Barker, vice president, disclosed yesterday.

These new cars weigh but 35,300 pounds each, as compared with the 48,200 pounds for the present average box car of corresponding capacity, representing a saving of about 6 tons in dead weight. The Pullman-Standard company hopes to distribute these cars as widely as possible among the American railroads to acquaint them with the advantages of lightweight construction, Barker said.

Savings by the use of lightweight cars come through relief from the necessity of dragging around unnecessary dead weight. Further, weight saved in the construction of the cars can be used to increase train carrying capacity, which means adding to revenues without increasing operating costs.

Considered by Rail Heads.

These and other newly developed lightweight freight cars are being considered by some railroad presidents as offering one way to help them solve their financial problems. Estimates have been made that savings of as much as $100,000,000 a year could be achieved if all freight cars were of lightweight construction.

Lightweight passenger cars have demonstrated their efficiency, railroad men say. Now the railroads are looking to the time when they can replace their present outmoded freight equipment with the lighter cars constructed of new high tensile alloy steels. These new steels, which are of moderate cost, have been placed on the market within the last four or five years.

If the railroads could take $100,600,000 annually from their operating costs, they would be taking a broad step toward a return to solvency. Also, they would be in much better position to meet competition from trucks using the highways.

Costs of New Steel Reduced.

It is only in the last few years that there have been developed, through the coöperation of steel, car building and railroad company engineers and metallurgists, high tensile steels sufficiently low in cost to make possible their use in railroad car construction. High tensile steels of high alloy content have been available for years but the cost has been prohibitive for railroad use.

High tensile steels are stronger than ordinary open hearth steels. Consequently not as much is needed to attain a given strength as would be required if the ordinary steel were used. It is said that generally speaking a weight saving of 20 per cent can be had through the use of the new high tensile, low alloy steels.

Pullman-Standard last summer brought out its 35,300 pound box car, which is of welded construction. Since then the car has been put through severe impact tests under the supervision of the Association of American Railroads. The car passed the tests satisfactorily.

Cars Formerly 47,700 Pounds.

The Pullman car contrasts with the 47,700 pound car approved by the railroads' association in 1918; with a 44,200 pound car as approved by the association in 1932, and with the 43,300 pound association box car of 1937.

The Mount Vernon Car company last year built a box car of high tensile steels but of riveted construction which weighs 36,400 pounds. The Burlington railroad last year built in its own shops 1,000 freight cars which weigh 43,600 pounds, and is building 600 more this year. Although the weight savings in these cars is not especially great, high tensile steels are used in part of the framework in such a way as to increase greatly the carrying capacity in terms of cubic content.

It has been estimated that for each ton of dead weight eliminated there is a saving in operating cost to the railroad of about $18 a year. Thus, by use of one of the new Pullman cars, which is about 6 tons lighter than the average box car, the potential saving would be about $108 annually.

730,000 Box Cars in Use.

There are some 730,000 standard sized box cars and on a basis of the reduced weight of the Pullman car there is a potential saving of some $78,000,000 a year. The saving in operating cost would come from reduced fuel bills and from less wear and tear of equipment and tracks.

Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington railroad, addressing the American Railway Engineering association in Chicago some time ago, made an interesting comment.

"The possibilities of lighter weight equipment are intriguing," he said. "In 1934 approximately 400 billion ton miles were made in handling freight and passenger cars, exclusive of the loads they carried. If, as is quite possible, these cars should be reduced one fourth in weight, it would require 100 billion less ton miles to handle the business. At one mill per ton mile that amounts to 100 million dollars a year."

Some Other Possibilities.

When consideration is given to increased carrying capacity through the use of lighter weight cars there are also some intriguing figures, even though the estimates are based on ideal results and not on what might be obtained in actual practice.

For example, consider an 80 car

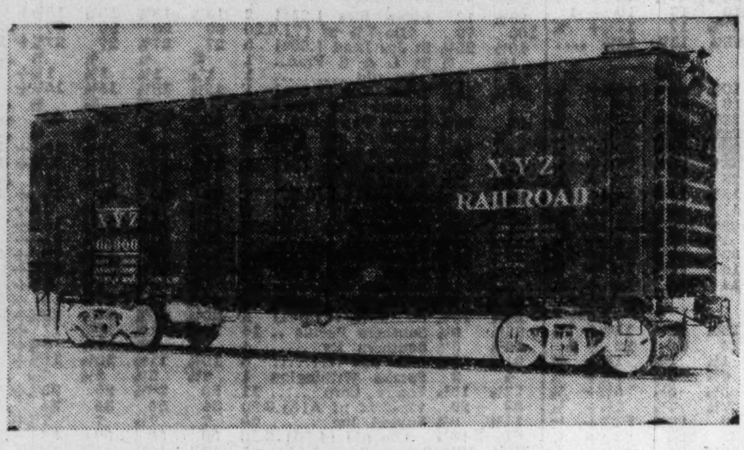
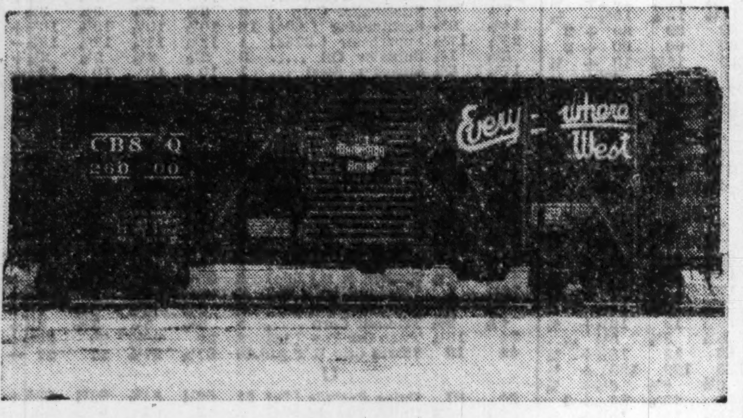
Less Weight—Greater Capacity



New lightweight freight car of welded high tensile steel construction built by the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company. It is about six tons lighter than present standard freight cars. The lighter construction reduces dead weight which railroads must haul and increases revenue freight carrying capacity.



New improved freight car built by the Burlington railroad in its own shops. Through use of lightweight steels the weight of the car is reduced moderately from present cars, but an increase of about 24.4 per cent in the cubic foot carrying capacity is obtained.

Plan National Convention for Little Business

Pushing its fight to eliminate government competition and interference with private business, the National Small Business Men's association has completed plans for a national meeting of its members in Pittsburgh in September, De Witt M. Emery, president of the association, said yesterday.

Emery, who is president of the Monroe Letterhead corporation of Youngstown, O., stopped in Chicago en route to Des Moines, where he will address the Iowa Bankers' association tomorrow. He conferred with C. A. Gable, Illinois director of the association, who has set up temporary headquarters for the organization here at the Congress hotel.

Expects 2,000 Delegates.

Emery said that he expects 2,000 delegates at the Pittsburgh meeting, which will run from Sept. 13 to 16. The delegates, he said, will not be handpicked, but will be selected by the local chapters throughout the country.

The organization was launched by Emery in November last year when he communicated his ideas for such an association to 200 business men chosen at random. The responses to his letter encouraged him to start the national organization which now has chapters in thirty-two states.

It was the activity of his organization, Emery says, that inspired Secretary of Commerce Roper's "small business men's conference" held in Washington, D. C., last February. Intended as an administrative backfire against the National Small Business Men's association, the Washington conference got out of administration control. Since then many delegates to the conference have affiliated with Emery's organization.

Goal of Organization.

"Our single goal is to make the influence of small business felt in national affairs," he explained yesterday. "We want to get across to the working man that when government persecutes business it is not only hurting business men but the wage earner as well."

After his Iowa address Emery will make a swing through the west. He will speak at the meetings in California in the week of June 5-11, which has been designated by Gov. Frank Merriam as "small business men's week."

FACTORY LABOR EARNINGS DIP DURING APRIL

New York, June 4.—(AP)—Weekly earnings of workers in twenty-five manufacturing industries averaged $23.52 in April, compared with $23.63 in March, and $28.29 in April, 1937, the national industrial conference board announced today.

Continued decline in manufacturing activity for the month, was indicated in a drop of 2.7 per cent in man hours worked, resulting from a decline of 1.8 per cent in number of workers employed and of 0.9 per cent in the average work week, the board said. April earnings by groups, compared as follows:

	1938.	1937.	Per cent drop.
Male	$24.72	$29.88	17.3
Female	14.56	17.42	16.4
Unskilled	19.52	23.44	16.7
Skilled & semi-skilled.	26.08	32.16	18.9

U. S. Agency Lends Nearly Quarter Billion on Cotton

New York, June 4.—[Special.]—The Commodity Credit corporation through June 2, had made advances on 5,377,044 bales of cotton from the 1937 crop, it was announced here today through the New York Cotton exchange. The loans aggregated $234,858,524 and they averaged 8.39 cents a pound. The total repossessions by borrowing growers to May 30 amounted to 161,958 bales.

SHANGHAI'S DOLLAR FALLS TO NEW LOW AS RESULT OF WARFARE

The Shanghai dollar reached a new low quotation of 21.38 cents in foreign exchange transactions in New York yesterday. The decline from the preceding day amounted to about one-fifth of a cent. The currency has depreciated about 25 per cent in value since March.

China's foreign trade has dwindled greatly because of disruption of its transportation and production facilities as the result of the undeclared war with Japan.

Major European currencies appreciated moderately in relation to the dollar, the British pound closing ⅛ cent higher at $4.94¾. The franc was unchanged and other currencies made small gains.

BANK CLEARINGS VOLUME BELOW WEEK, YEAR AGO

Bank clearings in Chicago for the week ended yesterday, which included the Memorial day holiday, showed declines from a week and a year ago, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The total was $271,700,000, compared with $279,100,000 the preceding week and $283,800,000 in the corresponding 1937 week.

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank's report on debits to individual accounts [checks cashed] for the 7th reserve district, usually issued on Saturdays, will not be published until tomorrow.

The daily record of clearings in Chicago follows:

Date—	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	*	*
Tuesday	44,300,000	5,300,000
Wednesday	52,000,000	5,200,000

Saturday	58,800,000	8,200,000
Total for week	271,700,000	36,100,000
Correspon. last yr.	283,800,000	31,100,000

The New York Clearing House association reported member bank clearings for the week ended yesterday were $2,854,141,610, compared with $2,798,932,344 in the preceding week.

STOCK EXCHANGE ELECTION TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Members of the Chicago Stock exchange will hold their annual election tomorrow to select a chairman and members of board of governors. The election is a formality because the regular slate picked by the nominating committee is unopposed. Arthur M. Betts, senior partner of Alfred L. Baker & Co., is the nominee for chairman.

The new board, which holds its first meeting Tuesday, will name the president of the exchange. Under the new organization the president will be paid a salary and will be chief administrative officer of the exchange. T. R. Benson, who has been serving as chairman since the reorganization earlier this year, is prominently mentioned for the job.

JOB INSURANCE PAYMENTS DUE EVERY 3 MONTHS

Springfield, Ill., June 4.—[U. P.]—Martin P. Durkin, state labor director, today called attention of Illinois employers to the fact that contributions under the unemployment compensation law are due quarterly, not monthly, and that the next contribution is payable in July.

"An erroneous impression has been created that unemployment compensation payments are due monthly," he said. "This is incorrect. Contributions are payable every three months."

Approximately 29,000 employers, who employ eight or more workers, will make payments next month. Benefits will be paid beginning July 1, 1939.

INDUSTRY LAGS; PREPARES FOR QUIET SUMMER

Chief Indexes Show Further Downturn.

American industry moved at a lagging gait last week, with most of the principal statistical yardsticks showing a downturn and indicating that the nation's factories and trade channels are preparing for a quiet summer.

Automobile production fell, steel and cotton mill activity slackened, many dividends were cut or omitted, plant shutdowns increased, bank loans to business fell still further, and news from Washington considered unfavorable to business developed as members of congress rushed to bring the session to an end and get home for election campaigns.

Capital Market Revives.

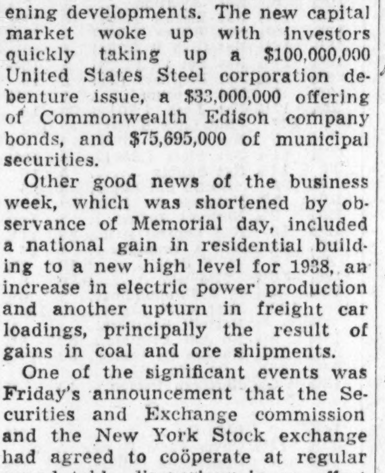
However, there were several heartening developments. The new capital market woke up with investors quickly taking up a $100,000,000 United States Steel corporation debenture issue, a $33,000,000 offering of Commonwealth Edison company bonds, and $75,695,000 of municipal securities.

Other good news of the business week, which was shortened by observance of Memorial day, included a national gain in residential building to a new high level for 1938, an increase in electric power production and another upturn in freight car loadings, principally the result of gains in coal and ore shipments.

One of the significant events was Friday's announcement that the Securities and Exchange commission and the New York Stock exchange had agreed to coöperate at regular round table discussions in an effort to solve various problems.

SEC To End "Crackdowns."

William O. Douglas, SEC chairman, indicated that the old crackdown policy of the commission has been abandoned. He added another note encouraging to business men when he issued a statement saying privately owned utilities could do much to attract new capital by recapitalizing and expressed the opinion that the controversy over government interference with the privately owned utilities would be settled soon. He said the problem has moved beyond the talk state into the action stage.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last five weeks, as reflected in the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, and also shows the trend in the corresponding weeks of 1937. (1929-'30 equal 100.)

The advent of June brought forecasts of continued declines in most phases of industry. The Standard Statistics company predicted that all leading indexes except that for electric power production and building contracts will fall below the May level.

Predicts Lower Steel Output.

It commented that steel activity will be "appreciably lower" than in May and less than 40 per cent of the high rate of June, 1937, and estimated auto production at 190,000 units, or a little more than a third as much as a year ago. Car loadings will show a decline from May, contrary to the seasonal trend, the forecast added.

It said "business is facing the dullest summer in several years, and operations in a number of industries probably will not be much above the levels prevailing at the low point of the last depression."

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity dropped to a new 1938 low at 65.8 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. A week earlier the index stood at 66.8, and in the corresponding week of 1937 it was 106.4. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on the latest data, compared as follows:

	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Composite index	*65.8	66.8	106.4
Automobile production	*30.2	37.1	102.6
Steel mill activity	37.1	38.9	91.5
Cotton mfg. activity	76.9	80.0	130.0
Elect. pow. production	104.4	103.8	119.0
Residential building	†54.8	51.9	66.4
Total carloadings	57.7	56.4	81.5

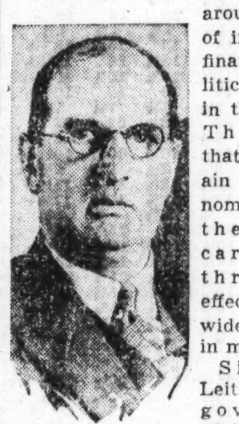
Austrian Debt Stand of Nazis Stirs British

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 4.—Nazi attempts to repudiate Austrian external loans aroused a howl of indignation in financial and political circles here in the last week. The suggestion that Great Britain take economic reprisals if the Germans carry their threats into effect is being widely discussed in market circles.



Sir Frederick Leith Ross.

Sir Frederick Leith Ross, the government's chief economic adviser who has been handling the British case in Berlin, has returned to London. He sent a report to Whitehall on the trend of the negotiations and an official statement from there announced that the conferences between the two governments would be resumed after the Whitsuntide holidays, probably in London.

Difficulties Are Admitted.

The statement did not minimize the difficulties in the way of a settlement and frankly admitted that "it has not yet been possible to reconcile the views of the two delegations."

Despite official assurances to the contrary, rumors circulated in market quarters in London during the week of the possibility of complete default on the German external debt, including the Dawes and Young loans, in the event the Austrian loan negotiations break down.

The main question arising from the resumed Anglo-German talks is whether any steps can be taken by the British government to induce Germany to change her mind, and failing that to collect on the loans through some form of clearing house.

Total of $10,000,000 Needed.

The sum needed for interest on the British portions of the German Dawes and Young loans is around $6,500,000 and for the Austrian loans about $3,500,000.

Talk of application of a clearing system against Germany arises mainly from the fact that such a measure actually was enacted by the British parliament when the reich government decided to default on the German 7 per cent and 5½ per cent loans of 1934. Though the measure became a law it never was implemented, because the disputes were adjusted by conclusion of the Anglo-German payments agreement. But the clearing act remains on the statute books and there is nothing to prevent its being brought into force if the occasion demands.

In Strong Position.

Economically, market circles contend, the fact that Great Britain has an unfavorable trade balance with Germany and Austria puts this country in a strong bargaining position in the debt negotiations.

From what is now Reichsfuehrer Hitler's "greater Germany," Great Britain imported $194,375,000 worth of goods in 1937 and exported only $152,210,000 worth. Thus the weapon of exchange clearing appears a powerful one in the British hands.

The German argument that Austria is now only a province and the reich government consequently is not responsible for her foreign indebtedness raised bitter criticisms here.

BUTTER PRICES DROP TO THREE YEAR LOW DESPITE U. S. BUYING

Butter prices fell yesterday to the lowest levels in three years, but recovered slightly on the stimulus of government buying. Fancy cash qualities dropped ¼ cent a pound before the Federal Surplus Commodity corporation stepped in to buy 118,125 pounds of extras in a range of 24¾ to 25 cents a pound. Government purchases in eastern markets totaled 101,871 pounds.

During the last week the government has purchased about 1,166,000 pounds in the Chicago and New York markets, bringing total purchases since mid-February to approximately 13,000,000 pounds.

Despite the heavy government buying for distribution to relief clients butter prices have continued to sink into new lows in almost every week since February.

Future contracts on the Chicago Mercantile exchange calling for delivery of storage standards in November broke $72 a car lot, slumping to a new low since August, 1935, at 25 cents a pound, but recovered slightly to close at 25⅛ cents. Fresh standards for June delivery were offered at 24 cents a pound, the year's low, without attracting any buyers.

The Chicago egg market was steady, and October futures on the Mercantile exchange advanced ⅛ cent to 22¾ cents before profit taking developed. The close was 22⅝ cents, up ⅝ cent over last Saturday's close.

SWIFT TO APPEAL 'DESIST' ORDER OF SEC. WALLACE

Swift & Co. will appeal the order issued Friday by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace directing the company to cease certain trade practices, it was indicated yesterday. The order charged Swift & Co. with "discriminatory credit, discount, and weight practices" in the sale of its products.

Answering the citation the company asserted it was impossible to grant the same credit terms to all customers and to maintain uniform price differentials between various classes of buyers because of competitive conditions and the varying credit risks involved.

Final decision on an appeal will be made in a few days, representatives of the company said. The packing and stockyards act, under which Wallace acted, provides for review of the administrative rulings by the United States Court of Appeals.

Chicago Steel Mills Will Begin Week at 23½% Rate

Steel ingot production will begin tomorrow in the Chicago district at 23½ per cent of capacity, a rise of ½ point from a week ago, but 8½ points lower than a month ago, according to preliminary mill schedules announced yesterday. The Pittsburgh district will begin operations at 17 per cent of theoretical ingot capacity, according to a report by Dow-Jones & Co. The average rate at Pittsburgh last week was 18 per cent.

Chicago Pork Dinner Costs Most in Nation

Pork dinners in Chicago and nearby suburban towns, consisting of chops or roast loin, now are relatively the highest in the country, a review of live stock and meat markets at the principal packing and distributing points disclosed yesterday. Recent advances in live costs of hogs and wholesale prices of fresh pork here, while declines were registered in other parts of the country, resulted in the disparity of prices to consumers.

Butcher shops in New York, Boston, and Philadelphia bought top pork loins wholesale late last week from 50 cents to $1.50 per hundred pounds cheaper than shop owners here could get the same cuts, whereas a week ago pork moved into Chicago stores steady to $1.00 lower than in the east. A month ago pork cost $2.00 to $2.50 less here than in the principal consuming points in the east.

Best Pork Loins Higher.

Best 8 to 10 pound loins sold wholesale here at $21.00 to $22.00 per hundred pounds at the close of the week, mostly $3.00 over the prices prevailing a month ago. The close for the same cut at New York was $19.50 to $22.00, off 50 cents for the week and 50 cents to $1.00 lower than a month ago. Philadelphia butcher shop owners bought at $20.00 to $22.00 late in the week, compared with $22.00 to $23.00 a week ago and $20.00 to $21.00 a month ago. The Boston price was $20.50 to $21.00, $1.00 under a week ago and steady to 50 cents lower than a month ago.

Despite the higher cost of pork meals in Chicago, this meat was not out of line in relation to other food prices here, live stock men pointed out yesterday.

The housewife turning from pork will not find much relief for her budget in other meats during the next few days, judging from the trend of costs and production at the Chicago stock yards last week.

Cattle Receipts Small.

The week's receipts of cattle were smallest of the year, and the average price reached a new high for 1938. Slaughtering of sheep and lambs reached the smallest volume for any week in two years. The average price was highest of the year, with two exceptions.

New crop lambs closed mostly 75 cents to $1.00 per hundred pounds higher for the week, although some, considering quality and sorting, were $1.25 to $1.50 and more higher. Yearling stock, prior to June 1 classed as shorn lambs, rose 50 cents in value.

Most steers and yearlings finished steady to 25 cents higher, the week's average at $9.25 showing 35 cents gain. Corn fed beef cows and hefers were steady to 15 cents higher, grassy kinds closing 25 cents lower. Calves declined 50 to 75 cents.

The higher trend of the market for hogs was reversed late in the week, and part of the recent advances in live costs was erased. At the close of the week most sales showed losses of 10 to 20 cents, compared with a week ago.

THRIFTY SHOWN FOLLY OF PUMP PRIMING SCHEME

BankDepositorsJam Protest Meeting.

BY HOWARD WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 4.—Nine thousand bank depositors and life insurance policy holders from the mountains and valleys of this thrifty Mormon state jammed the big tabernacle here tonight at the closing session of the Utah Bankers' association annual convention. Other thousands, unable to gain admittance, packed the public square outside to hear the program relayed by loud speakers.

Merle Thorpe warns on changing policies.

The occasion was a protest meeting against the federal government's extravagant financial program, organized by bankers from the cities and villages of Utah under the direction of Orval W. Adams, executive vice president of the Mormon controled Utah State National bank and president of the American Bankers' association.

Assail "Priming" Program.

Tonight's massmeeting was the climax of two days of bitter attacks on the administration's lending and spending program and its unfriendly attitude toward industry and capital. Speaker after speaker during these two days referred to the administration program as a movement toward Fascism and national bankruptcy.

The Utah bankers' convention has made banking history in several respects. It is the first time that a bankers' association, state or national has called in the rank and file of depositors to participate in its meetings. It is the first time that such an association has abandoned discretionary consideration for politics and vehemently expressed in public the criticism which practically all bankers voice privately concerning the administration's financial policies.

Adams Declares Independence.

It also marks a final declaration of independence on the part of Adams, whose forthright utterances many of the big city bankers for three years have been quietly trying to soften for fear they would lead to retaliation by Washington politicians. Adams for years has been the leader of the small town "grass roots" bankers within the association.

The thousands of bank depositors and life insurance policyholders applauded enthusiastically the signing of Deanna Durbin, movie actress, who was brought here as a special attraction. It was the first time Hollywood had ever invaded Brigham Young's great tabernacle. They applauded no less enthusiastically Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, deputized by the Utah bankers to express their fears and summarize their reasoning to the frugal Utah citizens.

"Revolution Under Way."

"Great national currents—political, social, and economic—are sweeping away the landmarks of 150 years," said Thorpe. "A revolution is under

STOCKS RESPOND TO GOVERNMENT SPENDING LURE

Week-End Trading Most Active in Month.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 4.—Renewed talk of inflation coupled with passage of the "pump priming" bill by the senate and week-end short covering sent stocks higher today in the busiest Saturday for a month. Gains for leaders in the industrial group ranged to 2 points or more in a market turnover of 306,930 shares.

Rails and utilities were less prominent and held to narrow ranges. Best gains of 1 to 3 points in the industrials were made in the first hour, but closing prices found them near the best.

Principal causes for the bullish sentiment, according to traders, were the approaching close of the congressional session and the senate's passage last night of the $3,723,000,000 relief—or pump priming—bill.

Gold Mining Shares Rise.

This sentiment had a direct effect on gold mining shares, which moved into new high ground on considerable volume. Airplane issues also benefited from the day's movement.

The early trading was moderately active, but eased to a slow pace after the middle of the session. Prices, however, held at about the day's best levels because of a distinct absence of selling. Steels and electrical shares were especially prominent in a display of regained strength.

There was practically nothing in business news today to account for the market's strength. Second quarter results by this time are so well known that they have been discounted largely.

United States Steel opened ⅝ higher and closed with a net gain of 1¼ points. Bethlehem common improved 1¾ and the preferred jumped 3½ points. Republic gained a fraction.

Motor Group Is Strong.

Motor issues were strong but not particularly active. General Motors was up 1⅛ and Chrysler advanced 1⅜. Merchandising shares, such as Sears-Roebuck, up 1⅝, and Montgomery Ward, up 1⅛, displayed a firm tendency.

International Harvester rose 1¼ points, J. I. Case 1¾, and Caterpillar Tractor 1½. Chemicals were strong, with du Pont gaining 2⅜ points and Allied Chemical 2⅞ points.

Douglas set the pace in aviation shares with an advance of 1½ points in good volume. Boeing, Consolidated, and North American rose fractionally.

Westinghouse Electric common rose 1⅝ and the inactive preferred gained 2 points on a small trade. General Electric advanced 1 point.

In the mining shares fractional gains were made by Anaconda, Kennecott, Homestake, McIntyre Porcupine, and Phelps Dodge. International Nickel was active and rose one point. American Smelting closed 1⅝ points higher.

CHICAGO STOCKS STRONGER, BUT TRADING IS DULL

Chicago stocks were dull yesterday at slightly higher prices. Volume fell to 15,000 shares, of which 9,600 were Commonwealth Edison rights.

Commonwealth Edison capital stock sold ¼ lower at 25. The rights closed at 27 cents. Middle West stock gained ¼ at 6. Mickelberry was ⅛ higher at 2⅜. Peter Fox Brewing gained ¼ at 10½.

The turnover for last week was 240,000 shares, compared with 78,000 in the preceding week and 108,000 in the corresponding week of 1937. Most of the increase was accounted for by transactions in Commonwealth Edison rights.

INDUSTRY LAGS; PREPARING FOR QUIET SUMMER

Chief Lines Show Further Recession Last Week.

summer, steel production last week fell 2.9 points compared with the preceding week, the output rate being 26.1 per cent of capacity.

Copper Company Shuts Down.

Among the companies announcing shutdowns was Kennecott Copper company, the nation's biggest producer of the metal. The company's mines will close on June 15 and will remain idle at least a month, officials said.

Another bit of gloomy news was an estimate that the total of dividends and bond interest payments to be disbursed to investors in June will be far below the amount distributed a year ago. The June total was set at $495,704,000, compared with $585,765,954 last June. A big drop in prospective dividends more than offset a predicted increase in bond interest payments.

Bank clearings declined for the twenty-ninth consecutive week, and member banks of the federal reserve system in their weekly report showed a further drop in loans to business.

Rail Revenues Tumble.

A compilation made public during the week showed that the April revenues of class 1 railroads tumbled to $9,236,818 from $48,357,724 a year earlier.

News from abroad included announcement that the international rubber regulation committee in London will cut export quotas in an effort to reduce stocks and raise prices.

The stock and bond markets weakened and then recovered to show slight improvement on the week.

Attracting interest in investment circles was the announcement that the federal treasury this month will refund $1,214,000,000 of treasury notes maturing in June and September. It will make public tomorrow the details as to the type of security which will be offered in exchange for the notes.

Clear Decks for Borrowing.

Secretary Morgenthau explained that the September maturities will be refunded to "clear the decks" in event it is necessary to borrow new money for the federal spending program.

The $3,617,905,000 spending, lending and "pump priming" bill was approved by the senate on Friday after efforts to bar the use of relief fund for political purposes were defeated. The bill was sent to conference with the house on senate amendments adding $500,000,000 to the bill. Earlier President Roosevelt had demanded power to rule pump priming expenditures. This brought a warning from Senator Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.] that the people face crushing taxes. The senator also said 14 million persons now are jobless.

The government reorganization bill, known as the dictator bill and closely watched by business, finally was shelved for the present session, but President Roosevelt was promised that it will be revived in 1939.

Two Federal Prosecutions.

The government opened its anti-trust case against the Aluminum Company of America, and the New York inquiry into the alleged looting of seven investment trusts continued to bring disclosures of unusual changes in portfolios.

Oil company officials expressed hopes that the way will be cleared for better coöperation between government and the industry following the week's developments in Madison, Wis., in the price fixing case, which recently brought convictions of several companies and their executives. Federal Judge P. T. Stone on Thursday accepted no contest pleas of thirteen companies and eleven officials and fined them a total of $360,000 and costs. On motion of the government twenty-seven of the original defendants were dismissed.

FARM PROBLEM IS SIMILAR TO THAT IN 1933

Markets Overwhelmed with Surpluses.

Washington, D. C., June 4.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration today faces a farm and commodity market problem similar in many respects to that which it set out to solve in 1933. As was the case after bumper harvests in 1931 and 1932, the nation's farm markets are overwhelmed with surpluses.

Factors responsible for present large supplies include last year's record production of agricultural products, a slackened industrial demand for raw products, loss of mass buying power resulting from urban unemployment, and a narrowing world market for American farm products.

Commodity prices are falling, as in the early years of the previous depression. Today their level is the lowest since May, 1934. The decline has amounted to about 30 per cent during the last year.

Predict Fall in Income.

Agriculture department economists predict that cash farm income this year, including approximately one billion dollars of federal benefits and subsidies, will be at least a billion less than 1937's $8,550,000,000.

Conditions with respect to the major farm commodities:

COTTON—Indications are that the new crop will move into a market already burdened with a record-breaking world surplus of 25,000,000 bales, partly the result of last year's record harvest of nearly 19,000,000 bales in the United States.

The surplus of American cotton alone is expected to be at least 13,000,000 bales—equal to the record surplus in 1932 and sufficient to supply normal domestic and export demands a whole year. The government either owns or holds a mortgage on 7,000,00 bales of this surplus.

Record Crop Indicated.

WHEAT—Present prospects point to the largest wheat crop on record in the United States this year. Such a crop, added to a surplus of 200,000,000 bushels from last year, would give the nation a surplus of at least 450,000,000 bushels compared with the 1932 record of 378,000,000 bushels.

Foreign trade experts of the agricultural department hold out hope of an export market for about 50,000,000 bushels. This would compare with 80,000,000 bushels of 1937 wheat shipped abroad so far this season.

CORN—Officials forecast a surplus of 300,000,000 bushels of 1937 corn when the new crop starts to market this fall. This would be 30 per cent larger than normal, and a near normal crop this year would add to it.

Surpluses in Other Crops.

Surpluses exist in most other crops. This is especially true of tobacco, rice, wool, peanuts, and cottonseed oil.

In so far as cotton, corn, and tobacco are concerned the administration is attempting to curtail this year's production through provisions of the new farm law congress passed in February. The control program is expected to hold the cotton yield to about 12,500,000 bales, a reduction of about 6,500,000 below last year's. A similar program probably will be invoked in 1939 and 1940 if necessary to eliminate the present surpluses. Marketing quotas will tend to prevent farmers from selling any 1938 cotton except that grown on federally allotted acreage. Sales in excess of quotas will be subject to a penalty of 2 cents a pound.

Asked to Cut Plantings.

Corn farmers in the commercial corn belt of the midwest were asked to reduce this year's plantings about 18 per cent—a request which many farmers protested. Even if most farmers coöperate, there is a possibility, officials say, that the crop will be large. This would make it necessary, they say, to propose marketing quotas, under which farmers could be required to store a part of their grain. A similar program to curtail the 1939 crop is expected.

The wheat surplus problem promises to become the most acute. If present crop prospects are borne out growers will be asked to limit plantings for the 1939 crop to between 45,000,000 and 50,000,000 acres. Wheat farmers seeded 80,000,000 acres for the 1938 crop. The proposed planting for next year would be the smallest wheat acreage since before the world war.

Seek Prop for Prices.

The administration will make loans to farmers on cotton, corn, wheat, and possibly several other crops in an effort to put a prop under prices. Officials say these loans will enable farmers to hold their crops and avert a price-demoralizing rush to market.

The wheat loan program, which probably will be inaugurated late this month or early in July, may tend to discourage exports of this grain. The farm law provides that the loan rate shall be not less than approximately 60 cents a bushel. It is quite probable, agriculture department officials say, that such a rate would tend to peg domestic prices above world prices and thus retard exports.

The cotton and corn loans probably will be in line with the 1937 loans on these commodities. Last year's basic loan rates were 9 cents a pound for cotton and 50 cents a bushel for corn.

Tobacco sales will be restricted under marketing quotas.

Marketing programs which prohibit interstate shipment of low grades of potatoes are being established to control surplus of this commodity.

High Speed Diesel-Electric Line Is Proposed in East

Washington, D. C., June 4.—(AP)—Roy Greene, Pittsburgh electrical engineer, asked the interstate commerce commission today for authority to operate high speed Diesel electric railway trains between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg, Pa. He proposed to build a line in the unused right of way and tunnels of the South Pennsylvania railroad.

WHEAT MOUNTS ON CROP DAMAGE, INFLATION TALK

Kansas Grain Shows Effect of Black Rust.

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the July delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$ .72	$ .70⅜	$1.06⅝
Corn	.57⅛	.57⅝	1.19⅛
Oats	.27⅛	.26⅝	.39¾
Rye	.51⅜	.50⅝	.88½
Soy beans	.85	.85	1.52¼

Continued unfavorable comments on the winter wheat crop from the southwest, combined with inflation talk inspired by passage of the "pump priming" bill by the senate on Friday, lifted wheat prices about 2 cents a bushel on American exchanges yesterday. Closing trades were at the top.

Houses with southwestern connections were fairly large buyers of September wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade, and aggressive selling was lacking. Sentiment was more friendly to the buying side than has been the case in recent weeks, although a majority of brokers believe this season's wheat crop will exceed requirements even if the estimated southwestern yield is reduced 50,000,000 bushels or more.

Kansas Reports Rust Damage.

First threshing returns from the Anthony, Kas., territory said winter wheat was yielding six to seven bushels per acre. The grain tested thirty-nine to forty-three pounds per bushel, the abnormally light weight indicating that the crop had been damaged by black rust.

Professional speculators were inclined to act with caution yesterday because of the holiday in European markets. The Liverpool and Rotterdam markets will not reopen until Tuesday. Export sales of North American wheat were reported to be very small. Buenos Aires wheat futures advanced ⅝ to 1⅛ cents a bushel.

Confirmation was made yesterday of sales of 350,000 barrels of new crop flour by southwestern mills on Friday to two chain bakeries. This was said to be the first of this type of business of any consequence so far this season.

Expect More Flour Sales.

The sales were regarded by the trade as a forerunner of additional business. Uncertainty as to the government wheat loan price is said to have been a factor in curtailing purchases of flour recently and has also resulted in decreased interest in the future market. However, commission houses said yesterday that the public showed a disposition to operate on a somewhat larger scale than recently.

Activity in wheat detracted somewhat from operations in other grains. Corn futures held within narrow price limits and closed fractionally lower as compared with Friday. Rye advanced about 1 cent a bushel in sympathy with wheat. Oats were ½ cent higher.

TOM GIRDLER WARNS ABOUT EXTREMES OF LEFT WING PLANNERS

Cleveland, O., June 4.—(AP)—Tom Girdler, chairman of Republic Steel corporation, today said that "we actually have not begun to see the extremes to which left wing planners would go if given a free hand." In an address to alumni of Case School of Applied Science, Girdler said:

"We saw a sample of it the other day when a congressman introduced a bill to provide for the nationalization of the steel industry. That bill at present is getting no serious consideration, but I am told . . . that it would get at least 100 votes if by any chance it were to be offered now."

"Whether we like it or not, the power of the federal government to interfere with and regulate industry in ways undreamed of a few years ago now is firmly established by law and decisions of the Supreme court. There is no mistaking that the country stands at the crossroads. It can take the path that leads to the shackling of industrial liberty and the destruction of private enterprise, or it can take the path which permits private enterprise to function and the free flow of capital to resume. I am convinced that is the path America will choose."

FARMERS GET INCREASED CASH FOR LIVE STOCK

Payments to farmers for live stock at the Chicago stock yards last month aggregated $20,184,000, an increase of $81,000, or 0.4 per cent over the May payments a year ago. This money was paid for 707,787 cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep, or 19.3 per cent more animals than during the corresponding month in 1937.

Increased farm returns from meat animals was due to the larger receipts and the heavier average weight of hogs. The hog average was the heaviest on record for May. The average price per hundred pounds for hogs, $8.20, showed a decline of $2.60 from a year ago. The steer average was $8.75, against $11.20 a year ago. Lambs averaged $7.85, or $3 lower.

The 317,740 hogs were valued at $6,561,000, an increase of 13.0 per cent, or $756,000, over May last year. Receipts showed an increase of 92,871 head, or 41.3 per cent. Cattle receipts increased 10.2 per cent, but the value at $12,279,000 was down 1.8 per cent. Sheep and lambs increased 2.1 per cent in numbers, but the value of $1,344,000 fell 24.5 per cent.

TRUST REPORTED 'LOOTED' SHOWS SIX MONTH LOSS

Associated Gas Profits Lower in Year.

Burco, Inc., an investment trust controled by Canadians and one of several such firms whose portfolios allegedly were "looted" through juggling of holdings, yesterday reported a net loss of $356,733 for the six months ended March 31. It had net loss of $375,511 on the sale of securities on the basis of average cost.

In the corresponding period a year earlier the trust reported net profit of $180,440, including profit of $180,406 on the sale of securities.

Depreciation Is $384,215.

Securities owned were carried in the balance sheet as of last March 31 at a cost of $1,387,483, with an unrealized depreciation of $384,215. A year earlier securities costing $1,773,892 had an unrealized appreciation of $163,599.

Last April the New York Curb exchange suspended dealings in the stocks and warants of Burco, Inc., because of "unexplained changes" in its portfolio, and later the state and various other government agencies began an inquiry. Control of the trust had been sold by its American sponsors a short time before to a Canadian group. The present management is said to have joined in the investigation.

Associated Gas Earns Less.

Associated Gas and Electric corporation reported for the twelve months ended April 30 net income of $34,871,702, before interest and preferred dividends of underlying companies, compared with $36,747,715 in the preceding twelve months.

Market Street Railway company, a Standard Gas and Electric affiliate which operates in San Francisco had a net loss of $309,775 in the twelve months ended April 30, compared with a net income of $123,644 in the preceding period.

ROPER SUGGESTS WORLD PARLEY ON ECONOMICS

Durham, N. C., June 4.—(AP)—Daniel C. Roper, secretary of commerce, suggested today a world-wide economic conference "in which nations would coöperate for the equitable distribution of the basic raw materials of the world." He made the suggestion in an address before a luncheon of trustees and alumni of Duke university, attending commencement exercises.

"Representative democracy," he said, "can survive only through vigorous, affirmative assertion of the will to survive . Government everywhere is in a ferment of change, and if we are to save our system, there must be positive defense of it, against enemies within and without, by those who believe in it.

"May we not associate with these endeavors needed study of other nations, their civilizations and objectives? Effective to this end would be a world-wide economic conference in which nations would coöperate for the equitable distribution of the basic raw materials of the world. This would serve to arrest the fear of economic insecurity and contribute to the peace and happiness of all."

Reports Rail Employment at Low Level Since 1920

Washington, D. C., June 4.—[Special.]—The interstate commerce commission reported today that employment on class one railways was 0.9 per cent less on May 15 than on April 15, representing the lowest level since 1920. The number employed on May 15 was 904,897, a decline of about 8,000 since the same date in the preceding month. The decline has been continuous each month for the last twelve months. The decrease covering all classifications since May, 1937, was 21.57 per cent.

Ford Asks Court to Dismiss Federal Labor Board Ruling

Covington, Ky., June 4.—(AP)—Frederick H. Wood, general counsel for the Ford Motor company, filed a motion in the Sixth United States Circuit Court of Appeals here today asking for a "confessed judgment" of the firm's original petition to set aside the National Labor Relations board's ruling that the company violated the Wagner act. The motion contended that the board had failed to answer Ford's allegations in the petition.

FIGHT FOR FAIR TAX LAW URGED BY TRADE GROUP

Washington, D. C., June 4.—[U. P.]—The United States Chamber of Commerce today urged taxpayers to begin immediately the fight to retain provisions of the new tax law "favorable to business progress" and to seek incorporation in the next revenue law of "additional elements of fairness and equity."

The chamber's summary of national business affairs said that the next session of congress will be asked to reënact the "undistributed corporate profits tax and to restore to its old form the capital gains and losses levy."

"This constant shuffling and reshuffling of the tax laws is somewhat hard on the nerves and pocketbooks of the taxpayers," the chamber said.

LIGHT BOX CARS GIVE RAILS HOPE OF VAST SAVING

Advantages of Using High Tensile Steels Told.

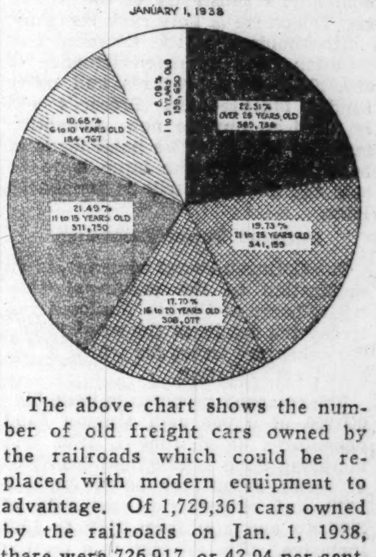
train. Suppose, through use of high tensile steels, its freight carrying capacity is increased by four tons a car. Suppose the freight rate on a ton of steel is $20 from Chicago to the Pacific coast. The freight carrying capacity of the 80 car train would be increased by 320 tons, with a potential increase in revenues of $6,400 for the train. This increase in revenues could be obtained without adding to the size of the crew or increasing the capacity of the engine. In effect it would be "pure gravy" for the railroad.

Of course, in practice it would not be possible to get such a high increase in return because freight cars are loaded with different products, for which a variety of rates are charged. But railroad presidents are convinced that, if they had the money, they could increase the efficiency of their properties greatly through the use of lighter weight cars.



The above chart shows the number of old freight cars owned by the railroads which could be replaced with modern equipment to advantage. Of 1,729,361 cars owned by the railroads on Jan. 1, 1938, there were 726,917, or 42.04 per cent, more than 20 years old.

Among the roads which recently have made some moves to reduce the weight and increase the efficiency of their freight equipment are the Burlington, which last year added 1,000 new box cars and is adding 600 this year, and the Pacific Fruit Express, which added about 3,000 lighter weight refrigerator cars to its fleet last year. The Bessemer and Lake Erie and the Chesapeake and Ohio have effected substantial weight savings through the use of new hopper cars, the savings ranging from four to six tons per car. The Baltimore and Ohio has been experimenting with individual lighter weight freight cars of various types.

That there is a great future for the business of replacing obsolete cars is seen from the railroad car situation. On Jan. 1, 1938, railroads owned 1,729,361 freight cars. Of these 385,758, or 22.31 per cent, were 25 years or more old; 341,159, or 19.73 per cent were 21 to 25 years old; 306,077 were from 16 to 20 years old, or 17.70 per cent; 371,750 were from 11 to 15 years old, or 21.49 per cent; 184,767 were from 6 to 10 years old, or 10.68 per cent and 139,650 were from 1 to 5 years old, or 8.09 per cent. Thus, more than 40 per cent of all freight cars are more than 20 years old.

Administration Is Criticized.

Railroad presidents point out that in the past the ability of roads to keep solvent has been aided by increasing the efficiency of their operations as their operating costs mounted. In the present circumstances, they said, they are handicapped by the attitude of the present Washington administration which by its attitude has discouraged private investment in industrial operations.

So long as the public thought it had a chance to make money by investing in the railroads, the carriers had a place to go for money to finance improvements which contributed to the well-being of the country.

Until they are given a better break by government, rail chiefs say, there is little chance of the public investing in railroad securities.

COMMODITIES SELL UNEVENLY IN LAST WEEK

With the trading period shortened by the Memorial day holiday and the summer Saturday closing program, commodity markets developed both strong and weak spots last week. At the close Friday cocoa, copper, lead, and tin futures were higher than at the close of the preceding week, but coffee, rubber, and silk futures were lower.

Of the markets which remained open yesterday, cotton seed oil and hides futures closed above the preceding week's final quotations, but wool tops showed a decline for the same period. July cotton seed oil closed at 7.92 cents a pound, up 0.01 to 0.05 cent from the preceding day. The close a week earlier was at 7.[illegible] cents.

Yesterday's final price of 8.70 cents a pound for the June hide delivery was 0.33 cent higher than on Friday and showed a gain of 0.37 cent for the week. Other deliveries also were higher.

The Coffee and Sugar exchange and the rubber and metals markets of the Commodity Exchange, Inc., inaugurated their summer Saturday closing program yesterday.

RISING VOLUME OF FINANCING CHEERS BANKERS

New Issues in Last Week Largest in Months.

With the largest amount of financing for any week since Feb. 11, 1937, completed last week, investment bankers in La Salle street yesterday were more cheerful than they have been in months. The way in which the market speedily absorbed $33,000,000 of Commonwealth Edison bonds and $100,000,000 of United States Steel corporation debentures was regarded as a favorable omen for future corporate financing.

Issues marketed last week included $75,695,000 of municipal, $100,000,000 of industrial and $33,000,000 of public utility securities. In the week ended May 27 security offerings totaled $67,069,000 divided into $44,019,000 municipal, $3,500,000 industrial, and $19,000,000 public utility issues.

Other Large Offerings Expected.

In the meantime, prospects are brighter for other large offerings in the near future. Morgan Stanley & Co., which headed the banking group that offered the U. S. Steel debentures, heads a list of 37 underwriters that will offer $30,000,000 of 30 year 3¼ per cent debentures of the Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph company, a subsidiary of the American Telephone & Telegraph company.

Stockholders of the Celanese corporation have approved issuance of $20,000,000 of debentures and other funded indebtedness. Proceeds will be used to provide new production facilities and to retire bank loans of $4,500,000. When the issue is to be sold and the terms will be announced later.

Gatineau Power Financing.

The Gatineau Power company, in an application to the provincial electricity board of Quebec, disclosed yesterday the details of the new $13,000,000 debenture issues for which it has asked authorization.

The company proposes to issue $10,000,000 of 5 per cent sinking fund debentures dated June 1, 1938, and maturing June 1, 1949, and $3,000,000 of serial debentures dated June 1, 1938, and maturing at the rate of $600,000 annually from 1939 to 1943 inclusive. The interest rate on the 1939 maturity will be 3 per cent; the 1940 maturity 3½ per cent; the 1941s, 4 per cent, and the 1942-'43 maturities 4½ per cent.

The application indicated Gatineau Power plans to call for redemption the outstanding $13,607,500 of series A and B debentures in July at 101 and accrued interest.

Absentee Control.

Officers of most corporations want their stockholders to be interested in company affairs. It is good business. The 375,755 shareholders that General Motors had at the end of 1937, for example, could buy a lot of automobiles. Investors' Guide believes, however, that many corporations have overlooked an important way to arouse more interest on the part of shareholders.

Have you ever received a notice of a stockholders' meeting? If you have you probably recall that the inevitable little proxy was attached. It seemed to be taken for granted that you would not attend. In order that business could be transacted you were asked to sign and return the proxy, which authorized some one else to vote your stock.

You probably rebelled inwardly at the idea of turning your votes over to some one else. How did you know what was really going to happen at the meeting? A brief summary of anticipated business was given in the notice of meeting, but it probably was not complete enough to be very enlightening.

If the annual election of directors was to be held at the meeting, were you told who wanted the job? Probably not. If you were by chance given such information, the announcement of candidates probably did not include any comment on qualifications.

Investors' Guide believes that a sure way to get stockholders interested in company affairs would be to let them vote personally on directors and on corporate matters, even if they cannot attend a stockholders' meeting. In theory this can be done by designating some one else to vote shares a particular way. In practice it is not done. Shareholders merely are asked to sign a proxy, usually solicited by the management.

Would you not be a lot more interested in your company if, for example, you had a chance to vote personally on directors, even if you were a thousand miles away? Your company could extend this privilege to you by mail. You could be sent a list of nominees and their qualifications.

Other corporate matters could be placed before stockholders in this manner. It might add a little expense, but Investors' Guide believes it would reap benefits in the form of increased loyalty. Moreover, it would return control of a company to where it belongs, to the stockholder.

What do you think about this idea? Investors' Guide would like to have your opinion. Write to us and tell us your ideas.

COTTON

Firmness in securities and in the Bombay, India market induced higher prices for cotton futures yesterday. Aggregate trade, however, was light and profit taking which developed late in the session wiped out part of the early advance. Closing trades on the Chicago Board of Trade were at net gains of .04 to .07 cent. Other markets were .02 to .05 cent a pound higher.

Trade reports said the Japanese control committee has decided to import 215,000 bales of Brazilian cotton by Dec. 31, 1938. The CCC has made loans on 5,372,000 bales of cotton to farmers at an average price of 8.06 cents a pound.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to .05 cent higher with New Orleans, 8.20 cents; New York and Houston, 8.05 cents and Galveston at 8 cents a pound. Prices follow:

THRIFTY SHOWN FOLLY OF PUMP PRIMING SCHEME

Bank Depositors Join Giant Protest Meeting.

way in the United States. Most of us are not alarmed because we do not hear the military bands nor see the blackshirts and bayonets. But if citizens, in strictly nonpartisan fashion, should focus their candid cameras upon the current situation they would see changes involving their personal liberties.

"In seven years we have adopted more than one-half of the Italian and Russian planned economy, totalitarian programs. We are officially urged to go the rest of the way—and are daily moving in that direction. Unless we recognize these tremendous changes changes we are either hypocrites or just plain ignorant.

Source of Dictator's Power.

"What is the source of a dictator's power? What would you or I want if we desired to be an absolute autocrat? Five controls would make any man the absolute ruler over his fellow man: First, control of his earnings and savings; second, control of production; third, control of his wages; fourth, control of his hours of work, and fifth, control of the prices he must pay."

Few depositors realize the extent to which their money has been used for political spending, and that 40 per cent of the deposits in American banks are now represented by government I. O. U.'s, compared with only 10 per cent seven years ago, Thorpe asserted.

"Today," he said, "ill considered reforms are destroying the three things which give us our industrial stride, the envy of the rest of the world. The enterpriser is hampered on every hand by restrictions. Earned income is denied him because of heavy taxation for political purposes. And 'administrative' law—that is, government by burocrats, which makes it uncertain what may happen overnight—is deterring him from taking those chances necessary to put dollars and men back to work."

Take Battle to Customers.

Adams, who two years ago startled bankers throughout the country with the suggestion that the banks themselves stand up against unsound government financial policies by boycotting government security offerings, urged that bankers start shouting from the housetops the information that most of the money the politicians are spending is depositors' money.

"We have got to take the battle to our customers," he said. "It is their fight, but some of them don't know it. We must show them what is happening to them because the voice from back home is the only one our representatives in Washington will heed."

Bankers, he warned, will be regarded as equally guilty with the political spenders if there is an untimate breakdown of government credit, unless they show depositors now how the administration's policies are undermining the purchasing power of savings.

"We are parties to all this because we are buying the bonds which makes the lavish spending and unbalanced budgets possible," he said. "When we cut interest we try to hide it from the public for fear we will be blamed. What an opportunity we miss by failing to tell the people who is responsible!"

Would Widen Tax Base.

Adams specifically recommended a widening of the tax base to bring federal income up to necessary expenditures, and the return of the relief load to local government with the provision that government grants be matched by local contributions.

Robert M. Hanes, president of the Wachovia Bank and Trust company of Winston-Salem, N. C., and second vice president of the American Bankers association, took up the cause with the assertion that money and credit have become the "football" of politics. Hanes is a brother of John Hanes, member of the Securities and Exchange commission and Roosevelt appointee to the job of assistant secretary of the treasury.

"The supply and flow of credit," he said, "are no longer controled by the natural law of supply and demand, but are regulated by artificial devices whose effects are no longer predictable."

Slump Caused by Government.

Dr. Harold Stonier, executive secretary of the American Bankers' association, dscribed the present depression as the first one in the history of the country to be brought on by government.

"No depression can be cured," he said, "without reduction of debts, firming of interest rates, increasing employment, and the seepage of those savings which have survived the depression into the capital market. None of these things has occurred in the case of the current depression."

Invitations were sent out to tonight's meeting by Utah bank officers and life insurance agents. The plan was carried on so quietly that it has apparently taken by surprise another Utah Mormon banker, Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board, and one of the administrations's chief sponsors of "spending for prosperity." Depositors in the Eccles family chain of banks attended the meeting in large numbers, having received invitations sent out by officers of those banks.

Expects Delay in Federal Report on Am. Telephone

Washington, D. C., June 4.—(AP)—Chairman Frank R. McNinch told President Roosevelt today that he doubted whether the federal communications commission report on the American Telephone and Telegraph company could be completed before adjournment of congress.

More Peaks and Valleys.

Over a period of eight years the production of passenger automobiles reached its peak in April seven times and in May once, according to federal reserve board data, although in two of the years May tied with April for first place. Output was lowest in December in each of the eight years.

The peak in the manufacture of trucks was reached in April in all eight years, except that the May figure equaled that of April in four different years. As in the case of passenger cars the low point in production of trucks was reached consistently in December.

Shoe production in the nation in the eight years reached its highest point in September six times and in March twice. August and October were shown to be good months also. December was the low month in five of the eight years, and July accounted for the bottom in the other three.

Bituminous coal production rose to its high in November in seven of nine years, October and November tied for the peak once, and the high was in October once. In each of the nine years April was the poorest month.

Anthracite coal output in the same period was at the maximum in October every year. The low point was reached in March in six of the nine years, and April accounted for the other three low marks.

RAILROAD BONDS RALLY; FEDERAL ISSUES NARROW

New York, June 4.—(AP)—Rail bonds fell in step with a week-end rally in other markets today and numerous issues pushed up fractions to more than a point.

Inspiration for the buying seemed to come mainly from the senate's approval of the administration's spending-lending bill and assumption among traders that prices were entitled to a further recovery after the steady decline in the final half of May.

United States government loans, lagging behind the corporate section, held in a narrow groove while the market waited for treasury announcement of the terms of the mid-June refunding operations, expected to be made public Monday.

Transactions were a little more active on the upside and for the brief session totaled $2,333,900, face value, compared with only $838,900 a week ago.

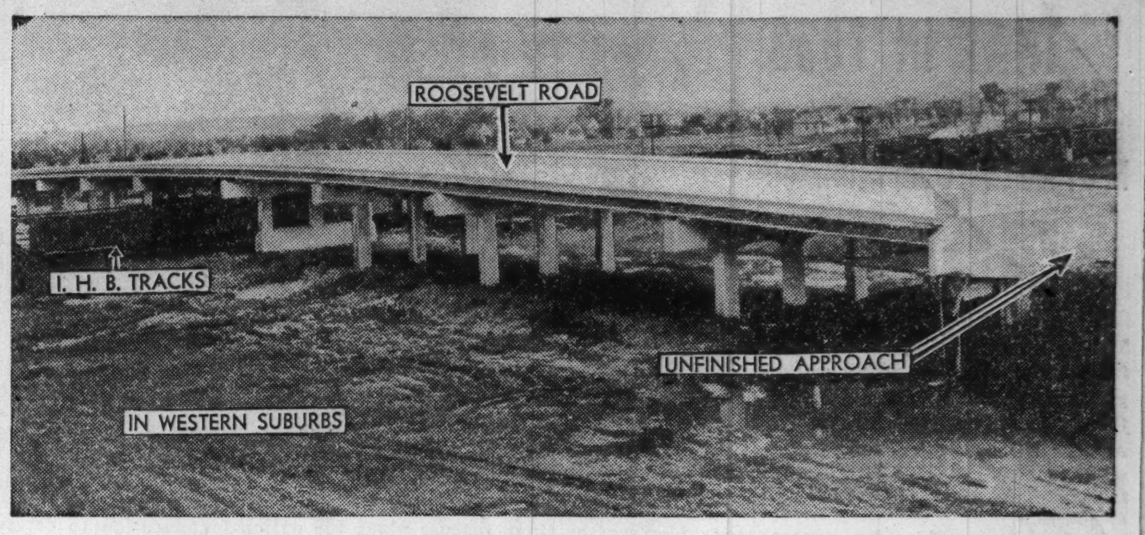
MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

Roosevelt Road Viaduct to Open in Six Weeks



A pavement has been completed on this viaduct to carry the heavy trafic of Roosevelt road over the busy Indiana Harbor Belt railroad west of Chicago. But trafic won't be able to use the improvement for another six weeks because work has not yet been started on 500 foot approaches.

SPECIAL FUELS TOO COSTLY FOR ORDINARY CARS

The 500 mile automobile race in Indianapolis last week demonstrated the superior speed potentialities of alcohol and of benzol mixes as a motor fuel. In previous races, which were slower, the cars were restricted to the use of a market grade of gasoline. At the request of this department of THE TRIBUNE, the committee on motor fuels of the American Petroleum institute prepared the following explanatory article which concludes that the excessive costs will prevent these special fuels from popular use in ordinary trafic.

Removal of restrictions on amount and type of fuel used in the 1938 Memorial day race in Indianapolis, Ind., means that a few cars will run on special blends containing varying combinations of benzol, methyl [wood] alcohol, and ethyl alcohol—substances the average motorist doubtless has not suspected would propel automotive engines. In a few of these blends, exact formulas of which are kept secret and may fluctuate to meet exact conditions prevailing, gasoline may not be used at all or serve only as a minor ingredient.

The majority of fuels used in the Indianapolis race will be premium and aviation grades of gasoline containing extra amounts of anti-knock agents: Tetraethyl lead and benzol. The premium gasolines essentially differ from those purchased by motorists only in the boosted anti-knock. Nevertheless, several questions may naturally arise in the minds of car owners about the few unorthodox fuels used. Are these trick blends superior fuels for general use? What are the reasons for using them? Could some of their ingredients advantageously be blended in gasoline for ordinary automotive engines?

No Relation to Regular Usage.

To answer, various facts must be understood. Objectives sought in racing fuels have practically no relation to those demanded in regular motoring usage. Low costs and low consumption, prime requisites of ordinary fuels, are disregarded in selecting racing fuels, nor is it necessary to balance these factors with other performance characteristics so that good all around performance in cars of every engine design is assured. In racing, power output and maximum acceleration for the particular engine design in question are the essential considerations in preparing a fuel, even if achieved at the sacrifice of mileage and other requirements of ordinary motoring.

In special engines, particularly those of European design with mechanical superchargers, both of these racing fuel requirements can be served by using fuels with high contents of either ethyl or methyl alcohol, preferably the latter. Compressing the fuel mixture to pump extra large charges into the manifold heats the mixture, which in turn expands it and tends to defeat the purpose of supercharging. Since methyl alcohol absorbs almost four times as much heat in changing from a liquid to a vapor as does gasoline, its presence in the fuel in large quantities cools the charge, permitting the supercharger to realize maximum compression of the mixture and to induct the desired heavier charge into the carburetor.

Increases Power Output.

Under these particular circumstances the heavier charge obtained by the cooling effect of methyl alcohol, or to a lesser degree by ethyl alcohol, makes possible a slightly greater power output and increased acceleration in engines of the proper special design. Even without mechanical superchargers, special engine design may permit obtaining substantial supercharging effect by this cooling action.

The heavier charge resulting from the supercharging effect of the alcohol automatically boosts the fuel consumption, which is still further increased because of the vastly lower heat energy content of all alcohols compared to gasoline. As compared to about 118,200 B. T. U.'s per gallon in gasoline, methyl alcohol only has approximately 59,000 and ethyl alcohol about 79,700. Used in ordinary automobile engines and with smaller proportions of alcohol in the blends, the beneficial effects of supercharging are more or less lost, although the disadvantages of lower heat energy content remains. For a given standard of performance the ordinary motorist can be expected to find consumption increased to an extent dependent on the alcohol content. Costing at least five times as much as gasoline, alcohols admixed even in small amounts with gasoline must raise the cost of motor fuel for general purposes, despite lack of compensating advantages.

Benzol a Main Ingredient.

In special racing blends with large alcohol contents benzol is usually another main ingredient. Ethyl alcohol and to a still greater extent methyl alcohol have the unfortunate characteristic of absorbing sufficient moisture from the atmosphere to cause their separation from gasoline. Benzol acts as a stabilizer to forestall this danger. Also since it has a higher B. T. U. content than gasoline, it partly compensates for the thermal deficiency of alcohols which increases their fuel consumption over gasoline.

As with the alcohols, the use of benzol in motor fuels for general purposes is both needless and excessively expensive. Benzol costs range from three to five times those of gasoline, and its supply is too limited for the most meager use in regular motor fuel trade.

Summarizing, while special racing blends containing alcohol and benzol may be used to advantage in certain types of racing engines, these materials are all much more expensive than gasoline, and their use in fuels for ordinary automotive purposes has no compensating advantages. Statements that their use in racing fuels establishes and proves their technical superiority to straight gasoline for ordinary purposes, are entirely misleading.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

OBSOLETE SPEED SIGNS.

Chicago, June 1.—U. S. 41, U. S. 6, IND 130, U. S. 30 through Hammond and Gary, etc.—speed limits from 15 to 45 miles seem to mean absolutely nothing to about 99 per cent of trafic. I try to observe posted speeds and most of the time seem to be obstructing trafic.

GEORGE T. VAN EPS.

SORRY, BUT YOU'LL HAVE TO WATCH DAILY PAPER.

Berwyn, Ill., June 1.—I would appreciate it a great deal if I could acquire a complete pamphlet or folder comprised of the short trips that appear in your column from time to time. It is often very difficult to know where to go when starting on a Sunday afternoon's ride or a short week-end trip. With a complete folder of such short trips one could pick their destination and know everything of interest to be seen before commencing aimless driving. I have missed some of your trips that have appeared in your column, and that is the reason for me making this request. RALPH G. STURZ.

TRAPPED BY HAMMOND [IND.] TRICK TRAFIC LIGHTS.

Chicago, May 31.—I am writing this letter to warn other motorists of the dirty deal that the Hammond police department gave me, and several hundred other motorists over Memorial day holiday.

Going down Indianapolis boulevard, the trafic lights are all about twenty feet high, which the motorist can see, but coming to 111th street, the trafic light is jumped up to about thirty-five feet high and in such a position that it is hard to notice. 1. This intersection is really an old railroad crossing, at which you would never expect to have a trafic light.

2. I was arrested with twelve other persons by the officers, who were waiting about sixty feet the other side of the crossing; we were forced to pull over to the side of the road, form a line, and to wait until he got a few more suckers, and were told to follow his partner to the police station, with the other officers following. After I put up my $15 bail, I was released.

I went back to the intersection to watch the trafic and found about forty out of fifty cars went through this light. As this highway is used by quite a number of Chicago motorists, I am warning them of this "light trap."

o CHARLES T. ROSEMAN.

CALLS TOWN SPEED TRAP.

Chicago, May 20.—The wise traveler will avoid Phoenix, Ill. It's a speed trap. Recently I was going through the town and had slowed up to about thirty miles an hour. Imagine my surprise to be stopped on the outskirts and be accused of doing fifty miles an hour. The cost of returning and the loss of time would be more than the fine, so my attorney paid the fine. Recently I went through the town again and I stopped and complained to the chief of police. I was nearly run out of town. However, it is all right for the local residents to violate state and local laws. Cars without state license plates are parked near the police office, and even though this is on state highway No. 1, a wide road with lots of travel, local residents park on the wrong side and jeopardize the through traveler.

The best thing for the outside fellow to do is to pass around the town.

M. D. K.

OBSCURE STOP SIGN.

Chicago, May 27.—The crossing at Oakley boulevard and Chicago avenue is very poorly marked and the luckless persons who drive through without stopping are fined $3. This boulevard should either be abolished or properly marked.

MOTORIST.

VIADUCT OVER ROOSEVELT ROAD IS NEARLY READY

BY HAL FOUST.

A long delayed viaduct in Roosevelt road over the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad is about completed but it will be another six weeks before trafic can use the improvement. The span is finished except for guard rails, and for approaches of 500 or 600 feet at both ends.

Kendrick Harger, district engineer for the Illinois highway department, last week said that the contracts for these two small sections of pavement had been held up pending acquisition of right of way. The right of way was condemned. The court proceedings have been completed and property owners paid. So the award of the remaining contract was exepected daily.

Expect to Open Trafic July 14.

"These few hundred feet of slab will be laid on a fill," said the state engineer. "This takes time, but the work will be prosecuted diligently. The structure should be opened to trafic about July 14."

Federal money for this improvement has been available since July 1, 1935. The crossing, on the boundary of the western suburbs of Westchester and Broadview, long was recognized as a dangerous one. Both the tracks and the pavement are among the heaviest trafic carriers in the metropolitan area.

The Illinois highway department, in preparing for this work, encountered troubles geographic and legal. Owners of abutting property objected to a viaduct on the contention that it would detract from the value of their realty. A subway was designed.

Find Underground River.

Engineers sank test bores to explore for the subway foundations. They encountered an underground river. The subway plan had to be dropped.

Another viaduct was designed, this time with supplemental driveways at grade to serve the abutting realty. This plan, calling for an expenditure of $300,000, was approved by the property owners, but they would not agree to prices offered for the land needed for the right of way.

The state started work on the span last fall. Condemnation proceedings were started at the same time. The state now has title to the additional land needed for the approaches. The improvement will be placed in operation without the service drives. The pavements at grade beside the viaduct will be built later without interfering with Roosevelt road trafic.

NEWS AND VIEWS

C. P. Simpson, general sales manager of the Pontiac division of General Motors, offers some suggestions for the improvement of automobile driving. Apply the brakes when approaching a turn, he says; enter it at reduced speed and accelerate when coming out on the straightaway. This makes steering more effective and avoids the necessity of jamming on the brakes in the middle of a curve—a dangerous practice. When going up a hill shift into second when the speed drops to twenty miles an hour. When starting in sand or mud put the car in second or high gear. In going down long hills in high or second slow the car by a succession of snubbing actions rather than by continuous pedal pressure.

The Chicago Automobile Trade association has increased its membership by thirty-one automobile dealers and two finance companies as a result of its recent membership drive, H. T. Hollingshead, president, announced yesterday. The association will hold its annual meeting at noon on June 13 in the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Chevrolet is offering its large capacity truck in the Chevrolet-Montpelier cab-over-the-engine unit on the three wheelbases of the 1½ ton chassis, the company announced yesterday. Accessibility of the engine, for quick servicing and maintenance operations, is provided by a forward tilting hood and easily removable floor boards.

Buick reports that black is the most popular color for cars which it ships to foreign markets. Exceptions are South America and China, where the preference runs to lighter colored cars, with beige, tan, and light blue in demand. Despite the war, shipments to China are reported relatively good this year.

H. B. Hatch, assistant general sales manager of Chevrolet, has resigned to enter the retail automobile business, handling Chevrolets, in Stockton, Cal.

8 CATHOLIC SCHOOLS GIVE DIPLOMAS

CATHOLIC HIGH HONOR SENIORS TELL AMBITIONS

They're Ready for Battle Ahead.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

A career, unlike a course of study, can't be picked from a catalog. It has as many variables as a complex algebra equation and even men made wise with experience don't all agree on what is the correct answer.

So 1938's high school seniors punctuate their plans with such expressions as "I hope to," "Maybe I can," "If things work out," and the noble old copy book maxim, "I'll try." For years these seniors have been getting a general education. They have dashed from the science laboratory to the football field and for four years they have tackled everything from foreign languages to Suzy Q dance steps. Now they are ready to settle down and specialize. They are making up their minds about college majors or in what direction to look for a first job.

Chosen as Leaders.

The following seniors from six parochial high schools on the west side have a head start. Their teachers name them the best in their class in scholarship, school service and sociability. Annually the CHICAGO TRIBUNE presents these bright young people to the city which they will probably serve.

Three graduates from St. Ignatius High school, 1076 West Roosevelt road, are encouragingly typical of today's youth. They can stand on their own feet and speak their pieces. In fact red-haired Frank McGarr, 1645 Nashville avenue, won two trophies for declamation. They were first prize awards in the St. Thomas Aquinas symposiums in which thirty Chicago schools were represented.

Frank is a first honor student which means he maintained an "A" average throughout his school years. He has been a champion runner on the track team and an asset to the swimming team. He prefers a good argument to a football foray and will probably capitalize on his vocal vivacity for he wants to be a lawyer. Next year he will study law at Loyola university.

Steadfast in Ambition.

When Edward Sheridan was a little boy and his mother's friends pinched his cheek and said, "What will you be when you grow up?" then Edward told them, "a lawyer." He has never changed his mind. In the fall he will leave his home at 5334 Jackson boulevard and go up to Milwaukee to begin law study at Marquette university.

Because he has been a football star, an all city school champion for two years, Edward has a football scholarship to Marquette. He is the rugged type. Shooting, hunting, and target practice are his hobbies and he doesn't mind if it's known that he hates swing music. He is glad he has a strong constitution, says football provided it, because he might not make enough money to dine on steak and mushrooms during his first years as a lawyer. At school Edward was a room officer, a member of the staf for the Patna missions in India, took part in dramatics, debating and is a Sodality member.

Dennis M. Horan, 2325 Marshall boulevard, is another first honor student at St. Ignatius. He served on the magazine staf, the mission staf, was a member of the sodality, debating team, dramtic club and was a star in football, basketball, track, golf, and swimming. Georgetown university, Washington, D. C., will get the benefit of this fine record next year.

President of Class.

Dennis is another future lawyer and a future social asset to any group or organization. He has a good disposition, say his classmates, and very popular. That's his trump for any trick that may be up fate's sleeve. He is president of the senior class and received all but one vote in a class of 130 students. Because Dennis is modest it might be supposed that the vote for his opponent was his own.

Summing up the characteristics of Siena High school's girls, it can be said they are pretty. Siena is located at 5618 West Washington boulevard. There's Dorothy Magrady, 5520 Washington boulevard, as an example. She is pretty before she smiles, but when her lips are wreathed with deep dimples and her blue eyes sparkle she commands a stronger adjective. Dorothy seriously says she will be a teacher, and if happy children can bask in the sunshine of her smile that is one bright outlook for the future.

But Dorothy won't teach all her life. Some one is going to steal her heart because she is certainly an attractive target for Cupid. In the meantime she will bury those blue eyes in textbooks at the Chicago Normal school.

President and Diplomat.

Like many of the young girls in today's senior classes, Dorothy has taken advantage of athletics as a beauty treatment. She won an award for track and received a varsity sweater for basketball activity. She is president of the senior class and because she holds this office she will be valedictorian at the Siena commencement. Her classmates say she is one of the most popular girls in the school and that she's a born diplomat and peacemaker.

ELMHURST ELKS ARRANGING FLAG DAY OBSERVANCE

Assembling two days in advance of the general nation-wide observance of Flag day, civic and patriotic organizations of Elmhurst and a number of visiting groups from neighboring towns will parade next Sunday in the suburb. The celebration is sponsored by the Elmhurst Elks lodge, of which William B. Welch is exalted ruler.

Among the organizations that have arranged to join in the suburb's program and parade are the 132d Infantry band and color guard from Chicago; police of Villa Park, Bellwood, and Elmhurst; Bensenville and Elmhurst fire departments; Elmhurst Boy Scouts and Elmhurst American Legion post.

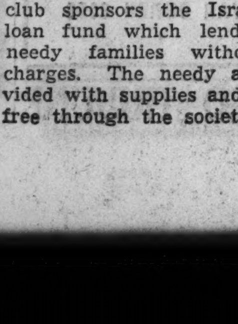
Albert Nelson, Du Page county surveyor and a resident of Elmhurst, recently was appointed to serve with Mr. Runge as co-chairman of arrangements for the observance.

Washington Temple Holds Confirmation Next Sunday

Consecration and confirmation services will be held Friday and next Sunday at the Washington Boulevard temple, 23 North Karlov avenue, when a class of 39 boys and girls will be received into the church.

AMERICAN LADIES' AID SOCIETY TO OBSERVE 25TH YEAR JUNE 14

The 25th anniversary of the founding of the American Ladies Aid society will be celebrated at a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday noon, June 14, in the Belmont hotel. The special guest will be Mrs. B. I. Leibovitz, the founder.



Mrs. B. I. Leibovitz.

More than 500 persons are members of the aid society, including the membership of the branch in Albany Park which was organized by Mrs. L. G. Koren. The president of this branch is Mrs. Eva Bernberg. The club sponsors the Israel Leibovitz loan fund which lends money to needy families without interest charges. The needy are also provided with supplies and medical aid free through the society.

MANLEY SENIORS SPLIT $1,000 FOR GRADUATION BILL

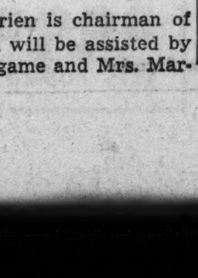
School commencement to many homes is a time when Dad commences to ponder the problem of paying the bills. Fees for school proms, yearbooks, class gifts to the school, caps and gowns, class day expenses, and the first alumni dues are the parent's homework in simple addition at the time when the sons or daughters have passed final exams in higher mathematics.

Manley High school, 2939 Polk street, has found a method to eliminate this drain on family funds which at the same time gives the student practice in money management. The coöperative school bank organized for seniors who wish to save gradually to finance graduation expenses is ready to make disbursements of approximately $1,000 to its depositors.

Mrs. Bernice C. Murana, faculty adviser, says that about 98 per cent of the seniors are bank depositors. The average amount of money listed in each student's bank book is $5.33. The bank is directed by Robert Bezark, class treasurer, who says that the total sum was accumulated by deposits of any sum from ten cents to the full amount needed for the graduation season.

THRONG DUE AT OLD ST. PETER'S CHURCH HOMECOMING TODAY

About 1,000 former parishioners are expected to return to old St. Peter's church, 816 South Clark street, for a homecoming and reunion to be held from 4 to 8 o'clock this afternoon for the benefit of the church. The Rev. Leander Conley, pastor, is honorary chairman of arrangements.



The Rev. Leander Conley.

St. Peter's was built in 1864. During the Chicago fire it was saved when the wind changed and carried the flames to one side. Everything around the church was burned.

Mrs. C. W. O'Brien is chairman of arrangements and will be assisted by Mrs. Mary Burlingame and Mrs. Martin Fardy.

'MUSIC NIGHT' IS PLANNED BY WOMEN'S GROUP

Violinists, harpists, pianists, vocalists, and many others in the field of music making will compare notes at an open meeting of the Organized Women Musicians to be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in room 201, Auditorium building, 431 South Wabash avenue. The instrumental and singing soiree has been arranged for husbands and friends of the members who enthusiastically share in Chicago's talent. Music and games will fill the evening program arranged by the organization, which is a part of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Young West Side Artists Represented in Exhibition

Young west side artists will be represented in the annual exhibition of students' work which will open tomorrow in the Frederick Mizen academy of art, 75 East Wacker drive. On the opening day Mr. Mizen will give a portrait demonstration. The west side students are Miss Rosemary Stamm, Miss Ann Edmunds, Miss Gloria Mizen, Miss Edith Johnson, Jack Brink, Miss Virginia Joslyn, Miss Kae Olivadot, William Reynolds, Harlan Schwander, and Miss Jeanette Veremef.

Put Achievements Behind to Tackle World.

avenue, might own a farm some day. She likes to garden and her brother, who owns a chicken farm, has asked her to team up with him. But then she has a sister who is a nurse and the sister likes it. So Joan might be a nurse. Before she decides she is going to California, a graduation gift, and travel as far north as Vancouver.

She is business manager of the school paper, The Spotlight, vice president of the senior class, a chairman in the sodality, a prom committee member and in the upper tenth of her class at Siena. Her soft brown eyes will soothe her patients if she is a nurse and it is believable that flowers and vegetables will grow well under her care if she becomes a gardener.

Views Writing Career.

First in scholarship and first in the hearts of her Siena schoolmates is Lucille Matson, 5649 Washington boulevard. Her next record will be made at Rosary college where she has won a scholarship. She will take a liberal arts course and major in journalism. Then she will hunt up a job on a woman's magazine because she likes feminine things—clothes, cooking and home decorating. Lucille can make her own dresses and if her smart blue outfit is an example she does well. She has been a class officer every year, a member of dozens of committees and is the only senior who has been on the honor roll for all four years.

A scholarship to Mundelein college was won recently by Grayce McLenon, 928 North Laramie avenue, another Siena star. Grayce edited the sports news for the school paper, has been a class officer, vice president of the athletic association, and a champion commercial student, and holds the highest average in biology studies. She will study chemistry at Mundelein and plans to work with her brother who is studying medicine. Her hobby is dancing and she doesn't lack for partners. Grayce has bright auburn natural curly hair and hazel eyes.

Heads His School Corps.

Straight shouldered, immaculately dressed boys came over from St. Mel's High school, 1 North Kildare avenue, to discuss their future. Bill Kirven, 4955 West Hubbard street, is looking for a job. He took a commercial course at school, came out second in scholarship and with an activity record tat proves his interest in football, school government, journalism, photography, and R. O. T. C. He is a lieutenant colonel in the training corps. Bill will give the salutatory at commencement.

The valedictory of St. Mel's will be given by first honor student Roland Konieczki, 3230 North Central Park avenue. Roland is planning on studying engineering next year at St. Mary's college, Winona, Minn., and then at Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pa. About the position he will seek he isn't quite sure. Roland says he will build his bridges when he comes to them.

Roland's list of activities range from baseball through dramatics, music, journalism and club work. He is a cadet major in the R. O. T. C. and is a crack shot on the rifle team. He holds his straight "A" average without having the studious look. Roland, nicknamed "Bud," is a he-man, who has trouble keeping his straight black hair slicked down.

Works His Way.

St. Mel's senior class president is Edward Walsh, 944 North Monticello avenue. He is second lieutenant in the R. O. T. C., president of the St. Mel's Catholic Action club, and is third in scholarship. Next year he will take a pre-law course at St. Mary's college in Winona, Minn. Ed has worked his way through high school by his job as a waiter in a Wisconsin country club during the summers. He was awarded a four year scholarship to St. Mary's by the Fathers' club at St. Mel's.

The valedictorian of the senior class at Providence High school, 119 South Central avenue, is Mary Irene Caplice, 5348 Madison street. In addition to her general high scholastic record, Mary Irene won a science medal and a two year scholarship at Mundelein college where she will register in the fall. She has been president of the debating club for three years and treasurer of the French club.

Planning to Teach.

Mary Irene is happiest working a stiff problem in mathematics but roots for the White Sox in her spare time. She will major in mathematics at Mundelein and plans to teach. "However," she says, "If I do get married, math will help me to budget better."

Perhaps Anne Harvath, 3218 Crystal street, Providence High's artist, may go to Hungary next year to continue art study. If she doesn't do that she will study art here in Chicago. She went through Providence on a scholarship and won a nation wide poster contest. She prefers landscape painting and figure drawing to surrealism.

Mary Zauri, 5010 South Kedvale avenue, is president of the Providence seniors and is interested in dramatics. She has her eyes on the bright lights of Broadway but they haven't blinded her to the practical working out of her plans. She will study dramatics at DePaul university next year and prepare to teach. Mary has a forceful personality and a clear voice. She is best in character rôles. She plays the piano, sings and has studied enough to place sixth in a class of 230 students.

Has Nimble Feet.

If Marian Dyer, 3233½ Warren boulevard, can dance her way into the future she will be satisfied. She started dancing lessons when she was a child and knows steps in toe, tap and acrobatic dancing. Next year she will continue her education at St. Mary of the Woods college.

Marian played the lead in the senior class play and has appeared in a number of music events. She has dancing brown eyes and wears her hair in a mass of ringlets.

The boys of St. Patrick's are made of practical matter. They can be "A" students at the school located at 122 South Des Plaines avenue and can be active in sports and service to the school. Thomas Carroll, 1917 South St. Louis avenue, is the winner of the Van Buren Post [American Legion] gold medal for courage, leadership, honor and service to the community. He is a member of the Auxiliary club, the Cisca club, Leadership club and the Camera club. He will make his career in business for he already has a job with the Heilman Brewery company. He operates a bookkeeping machine.

Scholarship at Loyola.

The winner of a one year scholarship to the college of liberal arts, Loyola, is St. Patrick's Vincent Vassolo, an honor student and a future engineer. Vincent likes to read and finds that any literary menu is digestible.

A pre-medical course at St. Mary's college, Winona, Minn., is in the immediate future for Joseph Rauen, 7713 Elmgrove drive, River Grove. He is a senior class representative, a member of the senior committee on social affairs, manager of ticket sales, a member of the Leadership club, the Auxiliary club, the Camera club and assistant editor of the school paper.

A mixture of mathematical knowledge and football ability has laid down a future course for Joseph Kinsey, 3159 West Madison street, one of the senior stars at St. Philip's High school, 3141 Jackson boulevard. Joseph won a football scholarship to Marquette university, Milwaukee, Wis., where he will study engineering. He has earned some additional funds for his college course by working as caretaker of the Windy City Baseball park. He hasn't seen many games because while they are going on he is busy parking cars.

Tackle and Boxer.

Joseph played tackle and guard on the St. Philip's team, won a football trophy, a boxing medal and served as student council prefect. He believes that small talk is a social asset and claims "if young people are too serious they become a stick-in-the-mud."

The editor of St. Philip's school paper is James A. Hanson, 2933 West Monroe street, also a debater, a Latin club member and a student council officer. Every cent of his education has been earned by young James, who worked in an accounting office for four summers. Next year he will go either to DePaul university or the University of Minnesota to take a pre-law course.

Paul J. Drews, 7920 South Wabash avenue, is secretary of the student council at St. Philip's and excels in debating. The next thing on his program of career planning will be a study of college catalogs. He thinks he would like to be a newspaper man. His hobby is ship building and he believes that opinions are about the only free thing that one can get in this world. When St. Philip's seniors have taken away their school books, the record of Paul Drews, the orator, will remain.

AURORA CHURCH OBSERVES 100TH YEAR THIS WEEK

Picnic Friday Scheduled on Anniversary Date.

The Rev. Joseph Clare

Topics of the day over a period of 100 years, including the heated anti-slavery questions current in 1854, have been discussed from the pulpit of the First Congregational church of Aurora, which is celebrating its centennial this month. At 10:30 o'clock this morning the pastor, the Rev. Joseph Clare, will preach the last sermon of the first century of the church's history. The second century will open next Sunday with a sermon by the Rev. William Horace Day, Bridgeport, Conn.

On Friday, the anniversary date of the founding, there will be a picnic supper and a centennial meeting. Miss Anna Wheaton, who became a church member more than 50 years ago, will read an historical paper. At the golden jubilee celebration in 1888, Miss Wheaton's father read the historical document.

Landon Gives Address.

Last Tuesday the guest speaker was former Gov. Alf M. Landon. He was invited to the church, explained the Rev. Mr. Clare, in view of the fact that it is believed the church was the scene of the first constituted Republican convention. The convention was held on Sept. 20, 1854, the year the Republican party was born. The delegates, 207 of them, voted strong anti-slavery resolutions and selected a ticket for the 2d congressional district of Illinois. One of the first Republican congressmen, Joseph H. Woodworth, was nominated at this meeting.

The Rev. Mr. Day, who will preach next Sunday, came to the Aurora church as pastor in 1896 after he was graduated from the Chicago Theological seminary. After four years as pastor, he went to the First Congregational church, Los Angeles. For ten years he served as president of the home boards of the Congregational churches. The trustees of Aurora church will hold a dinner for the Rev. Mr. Day after the services next Sunday.

Two Early Members.

The two longest term members of the church are Mrs. Nellie Gilbert and William J. Milgate. Both became members on March 4, 1877, and Mr. Milgate attended Sunday school many years before he became a member.

First Congregational church was organized originally as a Presbyterian church. In 1848 it became Congregational because of the anti-slavery sentiment among members who found themselves limited by the action of the Presbyterian church which did not wish to offend its southern members.

The church building occupied by the First Congregationalists is the oldest public building in Aurora. It was erected in 1856. Today it has one of the finest organs in the Fox river valley. Mrs. Emma Skinner Miller, the organist and chorister, is known for her well trained choirs. Harry M. Park is church moderator. Alfred C. Fitzgerald is chairman of the board of trustees and Alexander Robbie is senior deacon.

The centenary committee includes Harry Park, Orla Kent, William Levedahl, Charles L. Perrin, Walter Hunt, Edna Hunt, and the Rev. Mr. Clare.

GLASS BANISHES DARK CORNERS OF MODERN HOMES

Brick Gives Strength as Well as Light.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

This is the time of year to open your doors and windows and let in new ideas—and plenty of light and air and sunshine.

The interest in glass block these last few years has been steadily growing, and now we are seeing new houses built and old houses rebuilt that display brand new ideas on small ways of utilizing this glass masonry construction. Resourceful way of letting in a flow of soft diffused light into dark corners of our homes, and helping ourselves at the same time to a definite privacy and seclusion.

When Mr. and Mrs. Elwood W. Scarritt considered plans and materials for their new brick home at 325 North Commonwealth avenue, Elgin, they decided to use glass block at certain strategic points.

First, one end of their dinette, in the large combination living-dining room is entirely of glass block. The other walls are papered in shades of dusty pink and deep rose, and the whole effect is charming.

Kitchen Corner Panel.

Mrs. Scarritt likewise had glass panel blocks in one corner of her kitchen, and in a corner of her first floor den. These blocks admit light, but are not transparent, and can be counted on for insulating value and structural strength.

And again, if you are remodeling, these glass blocks are well worth consideration. They are not in the luxury class and there are more numerous ways in which they can play helpful rôles in making already built rooms lighter and more cheerful spots.

In the renovation of one forty year old house I saw lately, this glass masonry had been used for the exterior wall of the stairway section of the home.

Another home modernizer used glass block in his basement laundry and recreation room. Still a third owner remodeled his bathroom with two entire walls of this type of masonry.

Entire Glass Wall.

One of the most intriguing bits of glass block construction that I have seen was in an old home which had a dining room that was unusually dark. A glass masonry wall was built between this dining room and kitchen, and glass panels also were used in an opposite corner end. Glass shelves were set into these corner panels, affording extra space for useful and ornamental objects. Needless to say the dining room was given a new and radiant face.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, June 6.

All planting should be completed by this time. Seeds of the castor bean, planted in good soil, will germinate soon, and as the plant is tropical and delights in hot weather, it should grow rapidly. The plant is grown for its immense foliage. It makes a fine screen. It is a good plant to use as background, with cannas in front and a row of salvia, coleus, fountain grass, or other lower growing material. Unsightly views may be hidden by a good selection of plants.

Tuesday, June 7.

Be sure to remove the suckers from the lilacs, roses, and other grafted plants. If the suckers are permitted to grow unhindered they may destroy or greatly hinder the development of a plant. Many roses are lost through neglect of plants. An application of a complete plant food to old established lawns will be very beneficial at this time. Use about four pounds to each 100 square feet of lawn area; if applied during dry weather wet in with the hose immediately. Keep after the weeds by hand digging. If holes are left after digging fill them with a top dressing of soil and scatter seeds over them.

Wednesday, June 8.

Watch for currant worms, cabbage worms, and other leaf eating insects and start spraying or dusting immediately. Various spray materials are easily obtained at dealers. Be sure to water the window boxes for they contain little soil and soon dry out. After the plants become well established give them an application of plant food before watering. A window box may yet be planted, suitable plants being available at all dealers. Never neglect thinning seedlings of annuals that are making a rapid growth or the plants will not develop as they should. Watch the roses and see that insects do not injure them.

Thursday, June 9.

Water the seedbed or the seedlings will suffer. Keep the plants growing rapidly, transplanting as soon as the plants can be handled. Keep the vines under control by tying them up and trimming rampant growths.

Friday, June 10.

Pinch bedding plants for bushiness. Zinnias, portulacas, and other annuals may be sown now. Perennials should be sown for fall. Be generous with the plant food on the roses.

Saturday, June 11.

Water iris well after flowering and give them an application of food. Organic manures may prove harmful unless thoroughly decayed. Place fuchsias and ferns in the shade. Keep coreopsis cut close to prevent seeding, otherwise flowering will stop.

Mr. D. F. McMahon,
Chicago Tribune,
435 N. Michigan Ave.,
Chicago, Illinois

May 10, 1938

Dear Mr. McMahon:

Two years ago when we established the SHERIDAN CONTOUR SHOP friends shook their heads sympathetically. Times were getting worse, they said. What chance had new ventures such as ours?

Their pessimism may have been justified were it not for the character of the service we offered, and our method of going after business. We believed that we could succeed if we limited our clients to women, gave them efficient service, and advertised consistently for business.

We tried several advertising mediums, but our advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan Section produced the best results. During the past twenty months we have placed an average of three advertisements a month -- totaling more than ten times as much advertising as we placed in any other Chicago newspaper.

The nature of our business requires that we have a steady flow of customers coming to our store. Were it not for the results we get from our advertisements in the Tribune it is doubtful if we could stay in business.

Sincerely yours,

SHERIDAN CONTOUR SHOP

How a Northside reducing salon assures a steady flow of customers

The letter above provides fresh evidence of the business-building power of low-cost advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan Sections.

Last year 687 neighborhood enterprises used Metropolitan Section advertising to build store traffic and sales volume drawn from their own immediate trading territories.

No business is too large or too small to take advantage of the Tribune's economical advertising plan for neighborhood merchants. A Tribune representative will be glad to give you complete information. Call Superior 0100—metropolitan section advertising.

NEW RADIO QUIZ: CRITIC REPLIES TO QUESTIONERS

Gives His Views on Many Types of Queries.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

One type of quiz that never gets on the air is that one administered by students to radio editors. At this time of the year, when both high-schoolers and collegians are drafting their final themes, radio writers often receive requests for a helping hand.

Possibly if we present the questions most often asked and our replies many a young inquirer may be saved the labors of extensive letter writing or interview-seeking during June. They usually run something like this:

Q.—Why are there so many bad programs on the air?

A.—By bad programs, we suppose, you mean you don't care for. Well, one man's meat is another man's poison. And it's a good thing that that's true. If every one went for daytime script shows, there would be no one to listen to our baseball reporters; if every one were mad about symphonic music, Rudy Vallee would be out of luck; if every one adored only swing music, what use to have men on the street broadcasts?

The American broadcasting system provides a greater variety of listening fare than is available anywhere else in the world. Not that it's perfect; it isn't, and we might well have a lot of further experimentation for new types of radio programs. Perhaps you young people who hope to carve careers in radio, will make some suggestions to improve radio programs—there is room.

Q.—What do you regard as the best programs on the air?

A.—How I personally feel about a specific program doesn't matter. If I can guess the response of a lot of listeners to a new program by remembering how they reacted to related programs in the past, that would be of real value. Radio editors anticipated the popularity of Major Bowes, Bob Burns, Edgar Bergen, Frances Langford, Don Ameche, to mention a few. They have argued for a year that the listening public is not so mad about Hollywood and its stars as sponsors believe. Whether they are right is yet to be determined. [They have guessed wrong so they lay no claim to infallibility.]

To determine what is good we refer you to a rule of Lawrence Tibbetts: Any music is good if you like it. That rule can be expanded to cover everything radio has to offer. Of course, from a program maker's point of view the test of a successful program is its general public acceptance. To him it is important not only that you like his offering but that you and you and you do, too.

Q.—We hear a lot about the merit of the British system. Wouldn't it be well for us to adopt a similar system?

A.—Though the British government is always citing figures to show how popular its programs are, more than 90 per cent of buyers of new receivers in England, according to a recently completed impartial survey, insist on sets that will get Radio Luxembourg and Radio Normandie, continental stations that broadcast programs in English—but sponsored in American style and featuring many American entertainers.

The real truth is that while Englishmen do accept in a measure the fine music and good drama BBC provides, these offerings are only brief interludes in long hours of Empire selling, tedious discourses on mahogany lumbering in Nigeria, the reminiscenes of retired generals who spent a half century in India, and pap for the government.

Q.—Why doesn't radio show a little ingenuity instead of just borrowing vaudeville performers and transplanting them on the air.

A.—Possibly it presents so many of these entertainers because you happen to like them on the air. But haven't you forgotten such items as baseball and prizefight broadcasts, Toscanini and the NBC Symphony, the American Town Meeting of the Air, Professor Quiz, Henry Weber's concerts, the Magic Key, Wallace's Get Thin to Music service programs, the Court of Missing Heirs, the University of Chicago Round Table, and the National Farm and Home Hour.

And what about the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts, One Man's Family, Vic and Sade, The Lone Ranger, the Sunday Evening concert hour, Kay Kyser's Quiz, Safety Court, Trafic court, the Chicago Symphony orchestra and the Philharmonic, and the many pickups of special events. Do they borrow much from the vaudeville stage?

Q.—Do you believe radio is improving the musical taste of the public?

A.—I believe that Walter Damrosch's musical appreciation hour alone has done more to educate school children, musically speaking, than any other medium in the preceding generation. I believe the fruits of our decade of musical broadcasting will be widely manifested when this crop of youngsters grows up. The musical education of America has progressed much, thanks to radio. Improved education it seems to me will result in improved taste.

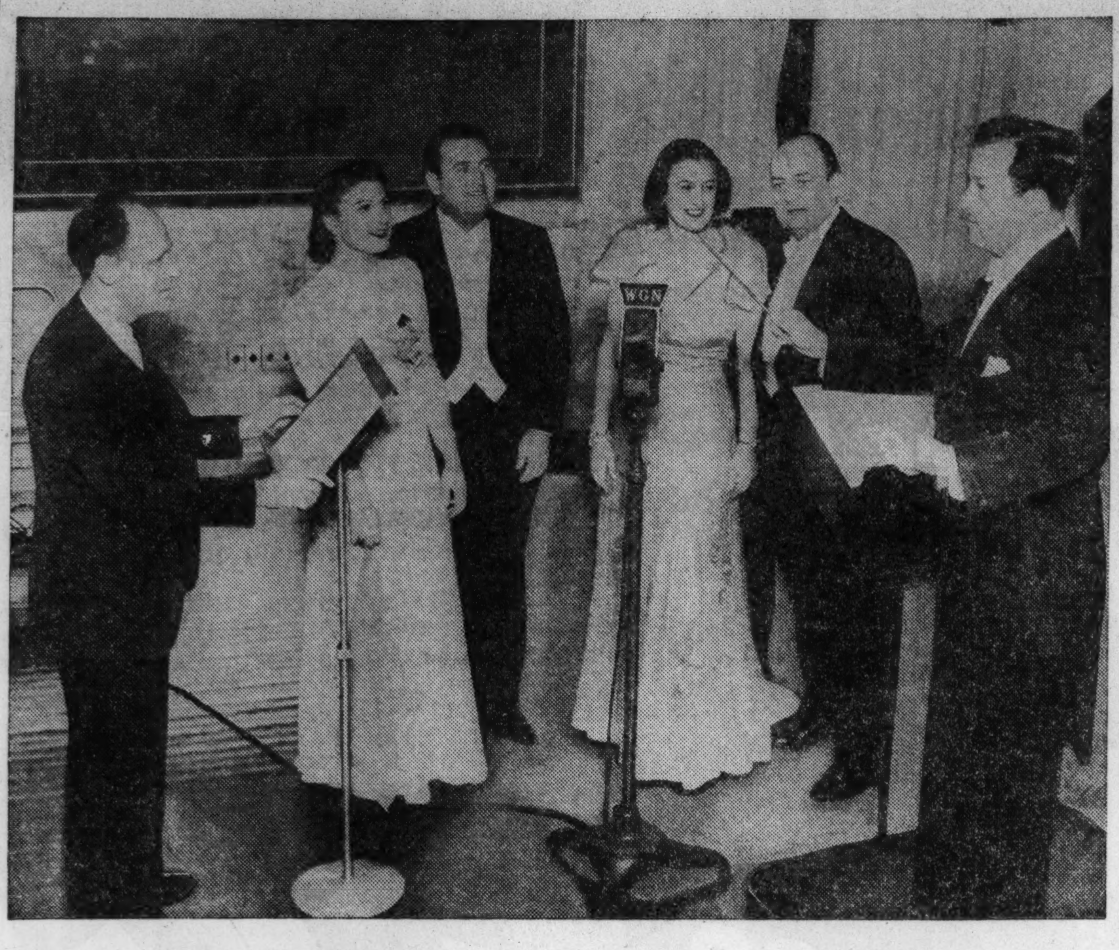
Q.—What about the craze for swing music? Do you condemn it? How do you reconcile its popularity with your claim that musical taste is improving.

A.—A hot dog fan may eat caviar, a Donald Duck addict go for Toscanini, too.

Firefighters to Debate with Philadelphia Co-Eds

Six Philadelphia firefighters will have another type of battle on their hands Monday when they try to match wits with a sextet of collegians from the Drexel Institute of Technology. The unusual contest will be staged on Dr. Harry Hagen's W-G-N-Mutual coast to coast quiz program, "True or False," from 9 to 9:30 p. m.

Reherse Streamlined Opera



A full dress rehersal of the streamlined adaptation of Bizet's "Carmen" which is to be presented before an audience of 600 in W-G-N's main studio from 9:30 to 10:30 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network. Left to right: Louis Jackobson of the production staf, in charge of dialog, and who had a big hand in modernizing the libretto; Margie Mayer, 19 year old singing discovery of the Chicago City Opera (Carmen); Attilio Baggiore, outstanding tenor of W-G-N (Don Jose); Katherine Witwer, talented operatic soprano (Miscaela); Mark Love, popular City Opera veteran (Escamillo), and Henry Weber, director of the W-G-N concert orchestra, who is in charge of the program. A STREAMLINED 'CARMEN' TO BE AIRED ON W-G-N

Four Hour Opera Cut to 60 Minutes.

A cast of distinguished grand opera stars will be featured on W-G-N's "streamlined" version of Bizet's "Carmen" tomorrow. The program will be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System from 9:30 to 10:30 p. m., from the audience studio.

Heading the cast of singers are Attilio Baggiore, stellar W-G-N tenor and formerly with La Scala Opera of Milan, who will portray Don José; Margie Mayer, 19 year old singing discovery, recently signed by the Chicago City Opera company, who will sing Carmen's part; Kathryn Witwer, W-G-N and Chicago City Opera soprana, Micaela, and Mark Love, veteran W-G-N and opera star, as the colorful and dashing Escamilo.

A staf headed by Henry Weber, W-G-N concert orchestra conductor, has put the libretto of the opera into modern dress, and given the characters spoken lines, with the incidental music that formerly was sung now utilized as background. The running time of the opera has been reduced from its full four hours to one hour in the streamlined version.

Directing the preparation of "Carmen" with Mr. Weber are Louis Jackobson of the W-G-N production staf and Francis Coughlin, continuity writer. Both claim that the effectiveness of grand opera is greatly enhanced by the "streamlining" devices.

Henry Weber's Concert Revue, aired from the W-G-N audience studio from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Thursday, will feature William Miller, the octet, and the orchestra in themes from Franz Lehar. In the medley, "Carnival," "Russian Peasant Dance," "Say Not Love Is a Dream," and "Starlight Guards" will be heard.

MORT DOWNEY, LARRY CLINTON ON MAGIC KEY

Morton Downey, famed tenor, and Larry Clinton and his orchestra will inaugurate a "lighter" summer series of the Magic Key when they appear as guest artists at 1:00 p. m. today over WENR-NBC.

Downey, whose voice is as well known abroad as in this country, will act as singing master of ceremonies. He will present a humorous Negro sketch, "David, the Giant Killer," written by Pauline Palmer. The Magic Key orchestra, conducted by Frank Black, and Linton Wells, Magic Key roving reporter, speaking from Lima, Peru, also will be heard.

Possibly no other orchestra has won as much acclaim in the past six months as Larry Clinton's. Organized originally as a recording unit, the band quickly won a tremendous following among collegiate institutions for recording of "Martha," "Midnight in a Madhouse" and "Lady Be Good."

SET MANUFACTURERS, ENGINEERS, AMATEURS WILL MEET TOMORROW

More than 8,000 radio set and parts manufacturers, engineers, amateurs, and others will convene here tomorrow and continue in session throughout the week.

The National Radio Parts Trade show, with 146 manufacturers exhibiting in the exhibition hall of the Stevens hotel, is to have a run of four days, Wednesday through Saturday.

Radio engineers from the factories which expect to produce 5,000,000 radio sets this year will be there to compare the relative merits of various parts which will be incorporated in new models. S. N. Shure, Chicago, is trade show president.

For radio amateurs there will be displays of complete short wave sets with which it is possible to talk to all parts of the world.

The fourteenth annual convention of the Radio Manufacturers' association officially gets under way Tuesday, to continue through the balance of the week. Wednesday through Saturday, annual conventions of: Radio Servicemen of America, Sales Managers' club, National Association of Radio Parts Distributors, and "The Representatives," are scheduled.

STOKES TO AIR SCORE OF COWBOY FROM BROOKLYN

On the "Your Sunday Date" program on W-G-N at 9:30 tonight Harold Stokes, W-G-N dance orchestra conductor, will feature the score from "The Cowboy from Brooklyn." The show will be heard over MBS.

Jess Kirkpatrick, Edna O'Dell, and Kirk Douglas will combine their talents with those of the orchestra in the selection. Also featured will be Jack Heckler, the "double talk" expert, who will continue his feud with Comedian Charley Wilson; and Minerva Dimwitty, who is to give another of her "travel lectures."

A surprise in the way of audience participation will mark the "Melodies from the Sky" program at 9:30 p. m. Various guests will be called up out of the audience to answer a set of questions—on the air.

What's MyName? Renewed on W-G-N and Mutual Net

"What's My Name?" audience participation program co-starring Budd Hulick and Arlene Francis, will be heard an additional thirteen weeks over W-G-N and the Mutual system, effective June 24.

2 NIGHT SPOTS TO JOIN W-G-N MUSIC PARADE

Aragon, Old Heidelberg on Network, Too.

The musical units of two well known Chicago entertainment spots will make their appearance on W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system this week. Beginning tonight the concert orchestra and singers from the Old Heidelberg inn in Chicago's loop will be heard while beginning next Saturday evening the dance music from and Aragon ballroom to make its appearance on the W-G-N-Mutual airlanes. The music of the two organizations will be heard on a nightly except Monday schedule.

From Old Heidelberg the instrumental music will be supplied by Joachim Guenther and his string concert orchestra. The singers on the programs will be Jeanette Van Der Velpen, widely known operatic and concert soprano, and Mitzi Bauer, and the male octet which has made the Old Heidelberg inn famous throughout the country.

From the Aragon W-G-N will present a parade of well known orchestras. The orchestra to be heard, beginning June 11, will be Sterling Young's.

Following the Sterling Young orchestra at the Aragon on June 24 will be Shep Fields and his internationally famous "Rippling Rhythm" orchestra.

The Old Heidelberg orchestra and singers will be heard on a varied schedule of early evening broadcasts. The Aragon music will be heard every evening except Monday from 10:30 p. m. to 11 p. m., and also on an early evening period on Sundays, 6 to 6:30 p. m.

Bad skin and coat corrected by Pard diet in exactly one month!

CONDITION CAUSED BY DIGESTIVE UPSETS DUE TO INCORRECT FEEDING

*Dr. H. J. M____ reports on this wire-haired fox terrier (photo at right). "Age: 2 years. Symptoms: excessive scratching with irritated skin, unseasonable shedding. Diagnosis: bad skin and coat were traceable to malnutrition and indigestion, caused by incorrect feeding. Treatment: placed dog on exclusive diet of Swift's Pard. Health restored and dog released in exactly one month."

● "It is becoming increasingly evident that 9 out of 10 canine illnesses are due to incorrect feeding, or nutritionally deficient dog rations," states Dr. H. J. M____ who treated this wire-haired fox terrier.

With leading veterinarians the country over reporting similar findings, it is not hard to see why Pard has received such a splendid welcome in this profession. For Pard is a scientific feeding formula—achieved after years of intensive research in Swift & Company's biological laboratories. It has proved its merit as an exclusive canine diet fed to four successive generations of healthy dogs!

The basis of the Pard formula is fresh beef meat food products, to which are added seven other choice ingredients essential to your dog's health. To assure his well-being, feed your dog Swift's Pard—regularly. Swift & Company, Chicago.

READ WHY 376,211 WOMEN OUT OF 420,684 SAY SLO-BAKED WONDER BREAD IS BEST

WHAT an amazing record! To date 420,684 women have made the famous 1-2-3 comparison of breads in stores all over the country. They have compared virtually all popular brands by the very method experts themselves use to compare bread quality.

And of these 420,684 women, 89 out of every 100 have chosen Wonder Bread over all others.

Yet, a few months ago most women thought all bread alike. Now these women have proved that Wonder Bread is really better . . . that Wonder Bread is the finest bread any woman can buy.

See for yourself! Its flavor is wheatier, more delicate. Its texture is smoother, softer, more moist. Its fragrant aroma more appetizing.

Get a loaf of slo-baked Wonder Bread tomorrow. It's Slo-Baked—rich in sustaining energy—better for growing children. Remember—the best costs no more than the second best.

"Having a wonderful time" her postcards said.

(BUT OH, WHAT A FIBBER SHE WAS!)

HERE ARE THE POST-CARDS YOU ASKED ME TO BRING YOU, DORA THROW THEM IN THE WASTE-BASKET! I'M GOING HOME! I'M SICK AND TIRED OF WRITING POSTCARDS ABOUT THE WONDERFUL TIME I'M NOT HAVING!
DO YOU REALIZE I'VE HAD JUST ONE DATE SINCE I GOT HERE?
YES, AND THERE'S JUST ONE REASON FOR IT, TOO! THE THING FOR YOU TO DO IS--FIRST, UNPACK THOSE SUITCASES, AND SECOND--SEE A DENTIST ABOUT YOUR BREATH!
DORA SEES A DENTIST!
TESTS SHOW THAT MOST BAD BREATH COMES FROM DECAYING FOOD DEPOSITS IN HIDDEN CREVICES BETWEEN TEETH THAT AREN'T CLEANED PROPERLY. I RECOMMEND COLGATE DENTAL CREAM. ITS SPECIAL PENETRATING FOAM REMOVES THESE ODOR-BREEDING DEPOSITS. AND THAT'S WHY...

COLGATE DENTAL CREAM COMBATS BAD BREATH

"You see, Colgate's special penetrating foam gets into the hidden crevices between your teeth that ordinary cleansing methods fail to reach . . . emulsifies and washes away the decaying food deposits that cause most bad breath . . . dull, dingy teeth . . . and much tooth decay.

"And at the same time, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent gently yet thoroughly cleans and brightens the enamel—makes your teeth sparkle—gives new brilliance to your smile!"

AND SOON AFTER--THANKS TO COLGATE'S...
DORA'S NOT WRITING POSTCARDS THESE DAYS, IS SHE?
NO--SHE'S TOO BUSY NOW HAVING THAT WONDERFUL TIME SHE USED TO WRITE HOME ABOUT!
NO BAD BREATH BEHIND HER SPARKLING SMILE!
...AND NO TOOTHPASTE EVER MADE MY TEETH AS BRIGHT AND CLEAN AS COLGATE'S!

STREAKY
THREE SMART CROOKS, WITH A MR. JIM JOLLY AS THE BRAINS, ARE OPERATING A GOLD MINE SWINDLE IN MIDVILLE. STREAKY WORKS WITH THEM BUT DOESN'T REALIZE WHAT THEY ARE UP TO. THEY CLEVERLY LET STREAKY FIND A LITTLE GOLD, AND THEN LET THE BANK PRESIDENT IN ON IT, KNOWING HE WILL SPREAD THE "SECRET" NEWS
MAYBE IT WOULD BE SMART TO BUY SOME OF THAT LAND WHERE THEY FOUND THE GOLD
HOW KIN YE? WE AIN'T SUPPOSED TO KNOW ABOUT IT YET—
HOW DO WE KNOW THEY REALLY FOUND GOLD?
THEY DIDN'T! STREAKY FOUND IT. O'COURSE HE'S WORKING WITH THEM FELLERS— BUT SHUX, THAT BOY DOESN'T LIE!!
MIDVILL
LISTEN, MR. JENNET, WE'RE DEPOSITORS IN YOUR BANK, AN' IF YOU KNOW THERE'S GOLD ON THAT GROUND AN' YOU KNOW WHERE IT BE, YOU OUGHT TO TELL US
GENTLEMEN, PLEASE! MR. JOLLY TOLD ME, CONFIDENTIALLY, YOU KNOW, THAT IF THEY FIND IT TO BE A RICH CLAIM, HE WILL TIP ME OFF— THEN THERE WILL BE PLENTY OF TIME TO BUY IN. HE DOESN'T WANT HIS FRIENDS TO GET INTO SOMETHING THAT MIGHT BE A FALSE ALARM
I GOT TO SEE THE GOLD THEY FIND 'FORE I'LL PUT MY MONEY INTO IT
ME, TOO— BUT I SURE WOULD LIKE TO BE RICH
I JUST BEEN DOWNTOWN AND THEY'RE ALL STANDING AROUND IN BUNCHES, THREE AND FOUR, TALKING—
WHEN I COME IN SIGHT THEY QUIT, SO THEY MUST BE TALKING ABOUT WHETHER WE FOUND ANY MORE GOLD. DON'T YOU THINK WE OUGHT TO MOVE IN? THEY LOOK ALL ANXIOUS AND READY FOR THE PLUCKING
YEAH, JUST WHAT I WAS THINKING. I SENT MIKE TO THE CITY FOR A PACKAGE I ORDERED. WHEN HE GETS BACK— THE FUN WILL BEGIN

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS, OLD GOLD, ETC.

DIAMONDS and fine JEWELRY that come to us from People in Every Walk of Life from long treasured jewel boxes, from broken romances, from fingers that once dazzled opera audiences or gestured over a directors' table – from every source under the sun they come to us, many never to be redeemed.

LEVINSON'S
Loan Bank
739 N. CLARK-ST.
OPEN NIGHTS TILL 9; SAT. TILL 10.

We offer you these incomparable bargains in rare gems, solitaires, wedding rings, and watches, pawned by jewelers and individuals.

Any article may be appraised, before purchase by your own appraiser.

For the Love of Clothes

What woman can resist the tempting lure of smart shop windows showing the new season's offerings? This attractive young matron decided to pawn her .80 Ct. Blue White Fine American Cut diamond in an unusually attractive tailored ring with 10 diamonds in order to buy a suit she particularly liked. Perhaps hubby had reverses. Be that as it may, we must sell. It can be bought for only $80

Fingers Don't Lie.

A wisp of a girl: a hand so dainty that those big diamond rings almost seemed to weigh it down. But the weight evidently was on her heart and not her hand. She had to pawn the rings, she said, in order to live while she looked for a job. But a girl who had never worked in her life couldn't expect to find a position very soon; so she took a business course and gave up these two unusual pieces:

DIAMOND DINNER RING. All Platinum. Beautifully designed princess style with 24 blue white matched diamonds; 2 extra large Marquise diamonds in center. Will liquidate for..$95

1.12 CT. DIAMOND. Blue white. Fine American Cut. in lady's exquisite all platinum ring with 20 diamonds. Will liquidate for $125

Cars Slowed Up.

"F. O. B." would have meant "flood of business" to this auto salesman. He had plenty of orders but couldn't get the cars to fill them because of delays which had affected many auto plants a short time before. He needed cash badly—and luckily thought of his diamond ring. We loaned him the money but his business halt proved more costly than anticipated, so we are obliged to offer this man's 2¼ Ct. Fine Color. Exceptionally brilliant diamond in a massive handsome handmade yellow gold ring for $215

Frozen Assets.

It's a long way from Florida to Chicago—but this citrus grower from the Peninsular state happened to be in Chicago when he received word that a considerable amount of his fruit was frost-bitten just before shipment. To avoid bankruptcy he pawned valuable jewelry. He is getting back on his feet again but says sell these two items he is unable to redeem:

1.75 CT. DIAMONDS, 3 BLUE WHITE WESSELTON FINE AMERICAN CUT DIAMONDS. Set in gent's all platinum unusually smart finger ring..$175

1.42 CT. DIAMOND BLUE WHITE WESSELTON. Fine American Cut. Perfect and flawless set in lady's distinctive all platinum ring with 6 baguette and 2 round diamonds..........$425

Bill of Divorcement.

Divorce came high. This woman felt that freedom was worth the sacrifice of her personal jewels. As to the merits of the case we have no knowledge or opinion, but we do know the merits of the wonderful pieces she did not redeem. They are as follows:

BUSINESS IS GREAT.

Does that sound strange to you, when every one else is crying depression? well, listen to this.

1937 was by far our largest year, and to date this year we have broken every monthly record.

I have been in this business a quarter of a century and I have never seen business better. What do you suppose the reason is?

I will tell you. Our busiess is absolutely depression-proof. Our electrical units are such that people need them, buy them; which makes plenty of work for all.

Come in and let me show you our latest products. Let me explain our merchandising program which is so sound and so workable that former mechanics, school teachers, carpenters, lawyers, farmers, etc., who have never sold anything before in their lives are earning and receiving $50, $75, yes, over $100 per week in advanced commissions and bonus alone.

The chances are our products are used in the homes of your neighbors and the business houses of your neighborhood, as we have thousands upon thousands of customers.

We are completing our force for our great summer campaign. If you are able to start at once, honest and reliable, between the ages of 24 and 50 and can live on approximately $30 per week while learning, you will be granted a personal interview.

All applicants will be thoroughly schooled in position for sales, installation, collection, or service. Apply Monday, 1:30 p. m. sharp. Suite 400, Maryland Bldg., 63d and Maryland-av., 1 block East of Cottage Grove.

Live leads furnished. largest rate of commission paid; finest properties to work on; highly organized and systemitized management; experienced closers to follow work in field. NEAR NORTH SIDE
Lake breezes cool the near North side as well as the suburbs. Our properties are just a few blocks from the lake, but here there's no time spent in hot crowded cars commuting. Just a walk of a few blocks up Michigan-av. from the loop and you're at home in a clever little 2 room, a little 3 room house, or a marvelous large studio apt. where we thought out ways of making living interesting and delightful. Open courts, ferns, fountains, fireplaces [for the few chilly nights in summer.

Live Better for Less
SCARSDALE

Many of our buyers tell us that they can live in their up to date Scarsdale homes for less than it formerly cost for rent. Maybe that's hard to believe, but we will be glad to have you get their story first hand.

Some of our new houses for fall occupancy are rapidly nearly completion. These six and seven room houses, 1½ and 2 and 2½ baths with one and two car garages, will give you a real thrill. They can be handled for as little as $1,500.

These houses are designed to please "hard to please people," so we feel safe in saying "regardless of what you want" we have it.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Fuzzy Pheasants

June 4, 1938.

NINE fuzzy pheasant chicks—the first hatched on THE TRIBUNE'S Du Page county farm this season—are now more than a week old. These nine ringneck chicks were hatched by a foster mother, a Rhode Island Red hen which had the job of incubating the eggs for a couple of weeks before the eggs opened.

There now are six hatching coops in the area set aside for game birds. In these are barnyard hens and fussy little bantams sitting on nests containing pheasant, partridge, and quail eggs. Until a few days ago the number of coops was seven, but just as soon as the old Rhode Island Red hen brought out her family of nine ringneck chicks she and the chicks were moved from the main colony to a place about 30 feet away.

This new home is a grassy spot where the family can run around, get plenty of sunshine and exercise, and hunt for insects. Ringnecks start early in life to look for insectivorous food. In addition to the food they find in the grass and weeds the chicks get a starting feed consisting of ground grains mixed with a custard of eggs and milk.

Find a Warm Place.

When we visited the new pheasants one day this week the chicks were inside the coop with their foster mother. It was a rather cool day, so the smart little ringnecks had decided they should stay near the warm, protective wings of the hen.

One Rhode Island Red hen was put on the black list this week. She was incubating a clutch of silver pheasant eggs, but she failed to finish her job. Just as the eggs were about to hatch the hen left her nest. Consequently she has nothing to show for her long period of work.

This week a bantam was given the job of incubating a nest full of Chukar partridge eggs, and another was placed on a clutch of Hungarian partridge eggs.

The farm manager is going to do a lot of cheering for the weather man if the latter will just provide a spell of dry, rainless weather so the workers can get into the fields and cultivate the corn. The corn shoots are up, but they are so surrounded by weeds that it's hard going for the grain. The fields have been so wet it has been impossible to use cultivators.

A Hardy Wild Flower.

Claude Barber, 3617 Pine Grove avenue, Chicago, has written this department telling of an interesting experience he had in transplanting a jack-in-the-pulpit plant, a Chicagoland wild flower which was described in these columns about a week ago. His letter shows what a hardy, rugged plant the jack-in-the-pulpit is.

"I enjoyed your jack-in-the-pulpit article in last week's TRIBUNE and want to thank you for giving it to us," he wrote.

"I have had an interesting experience with one of these little plants. In the early part of May, 1937, I found a fine specimen of a jack-in-the-pulpit in the woods near the Indiana dunes. I dug up the plant and brought it home. After transplanting it to an earthen pot I put it on the back porch to await results. The 'little preacher' upheld tradition in every way and grew well. However, the scarlet berries for which we waited were never produced, and finally the whole plant withered and died.

"During the winter we changed the soil a number of times on other plants that we have. In some of this soil we found an onionlike bulb which we couldn't identify. All through the winter and early spring the outcast onion bulb was thrown around from one place to another. Finally the bulb was planted in a tulip pot and in three weeks we had with us one of the largest and most perfect jack-in-the-pulpits I have ever seen."

REAL ESTATE LOANS, MORTGAGES.

HONEST—WE LEND FULL 80% FHA OF the value on homes and apts.—brick, stucco, frame—up to 25 years old. However, we don't just offer top loans and twiddle our thumbs. Where even an 80% loan is not enough we see the mortgage holder to get a cut of the existing top heavy mortgage, also taxes and penalties. Last year our clients thus saved many thousands and we prevented scores of foreclosures. We also reduced a number of bond issues and refinanced larger apartment buildings.
We lend 90% FHA for 25 years on homes to be built up to $6,000 [including lot]. All you need is 10% of the cost of home and lot. We pay the rest. On the construction of residences and large apartment buildings we lend FHA 80% for 20 years up to $200,000 in all cities of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin. Also want loans on good stores, factories, garages.

Cable's
Bargain Basement
RECONDITIONED AND USED
GRAND PIANOS.
Piano buyers: Consider this important fact when you invest in a used piano. Months after you have bought it your ship may come in, dividend checks bigger, husband's salary larger, and you may wish then that you had bought a new piano. At Cable's you have the privilege of returning the used one and being credited with all you have paid in the first year toward a new one—any one of seven nationally known makes, Mason & Hamlin, Conover, Knabe, Cable, Fischer, Gulbransen, and Estey. We believe that nowhere else in the country can so liberal a proposition on so many famous makes be found. Your investment is protected here.

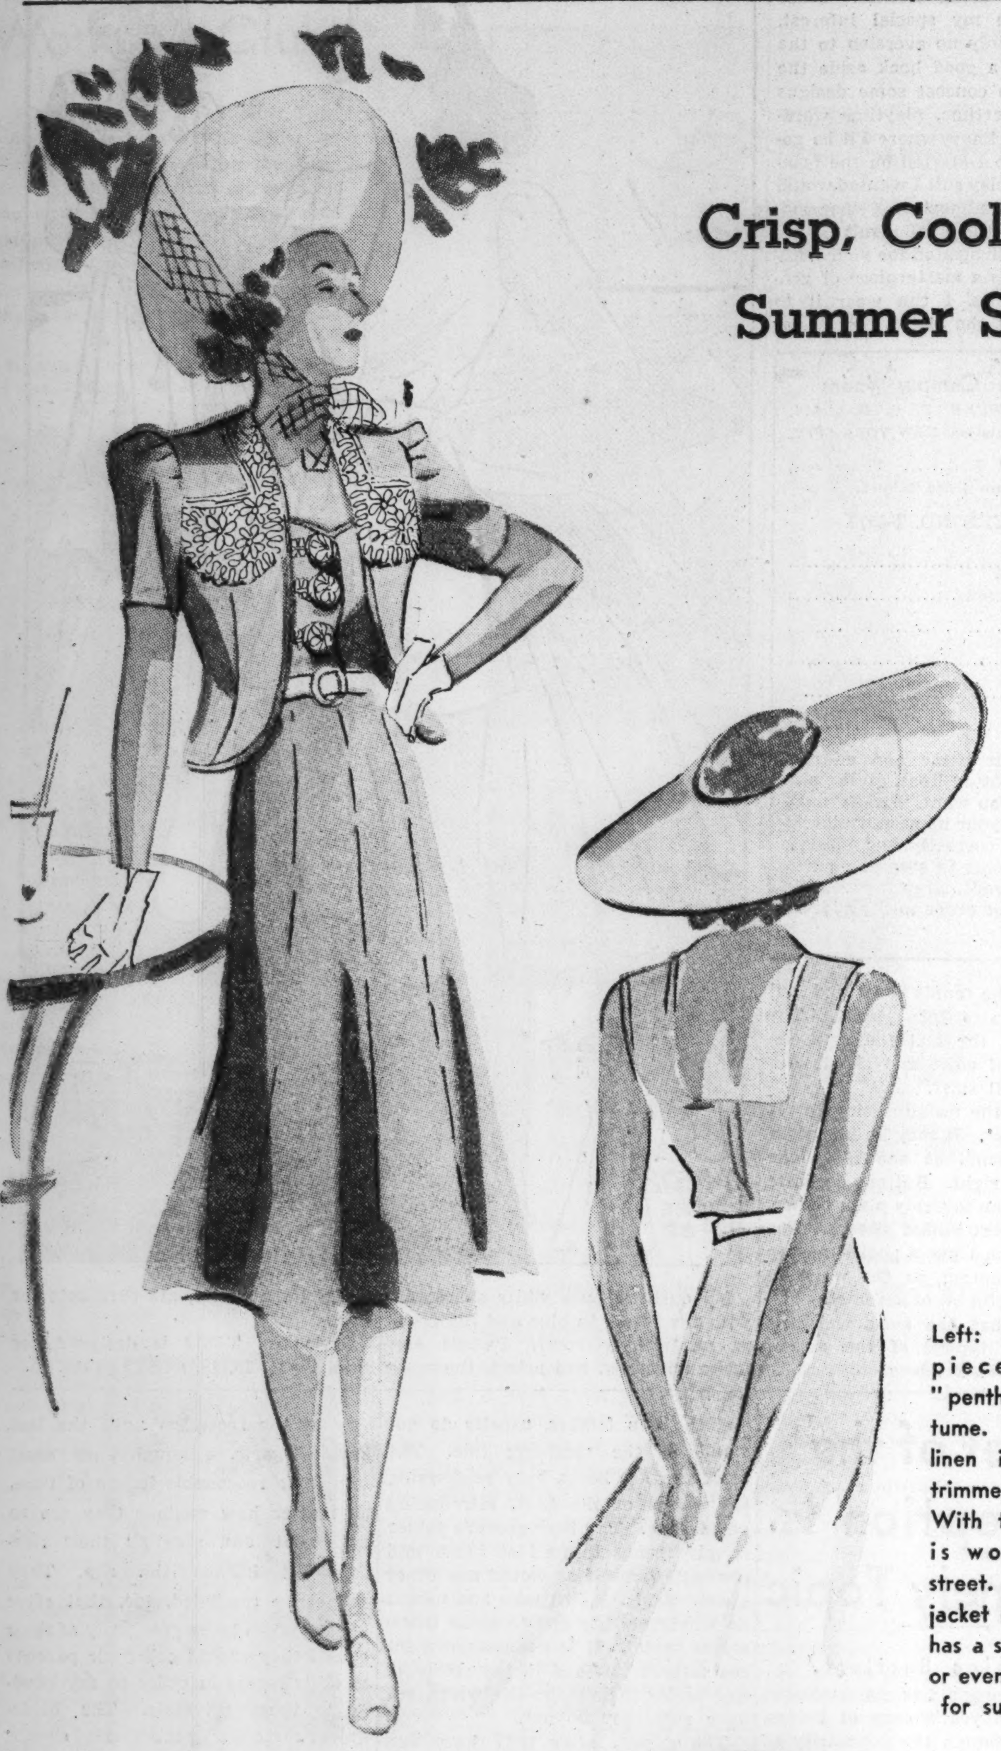
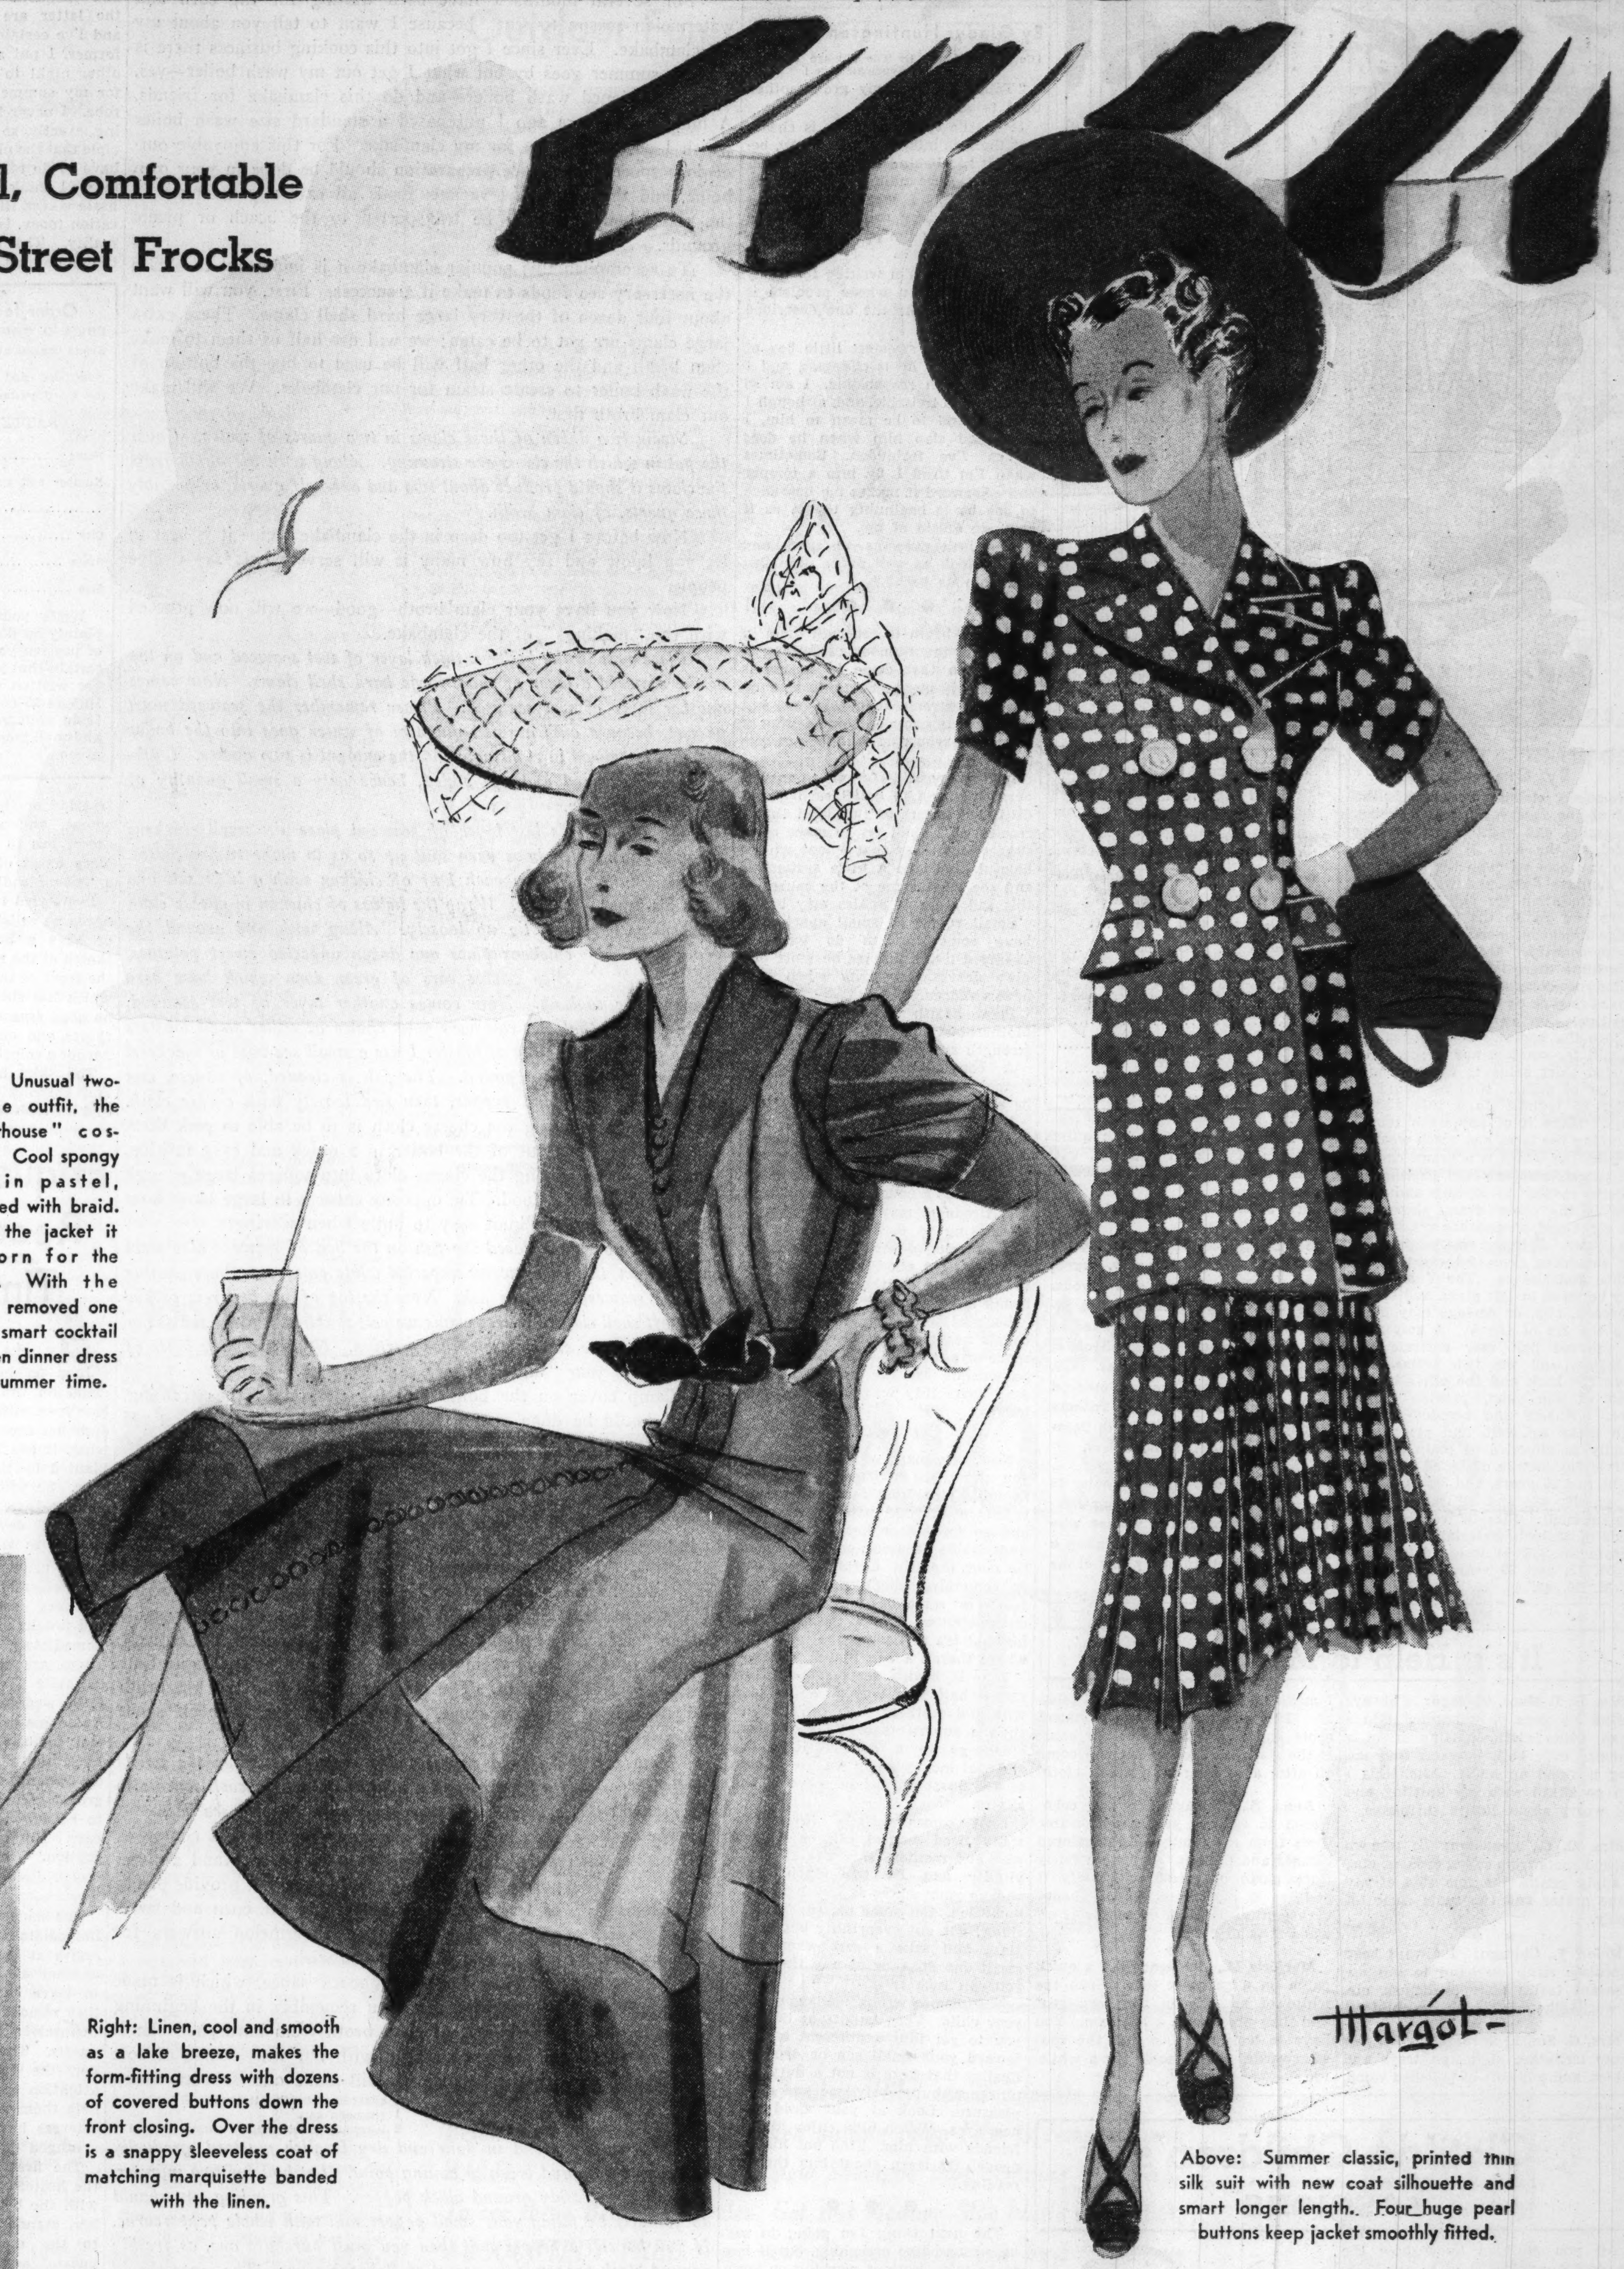
Crisp, Cool, Comfortable Summer Street Frocks

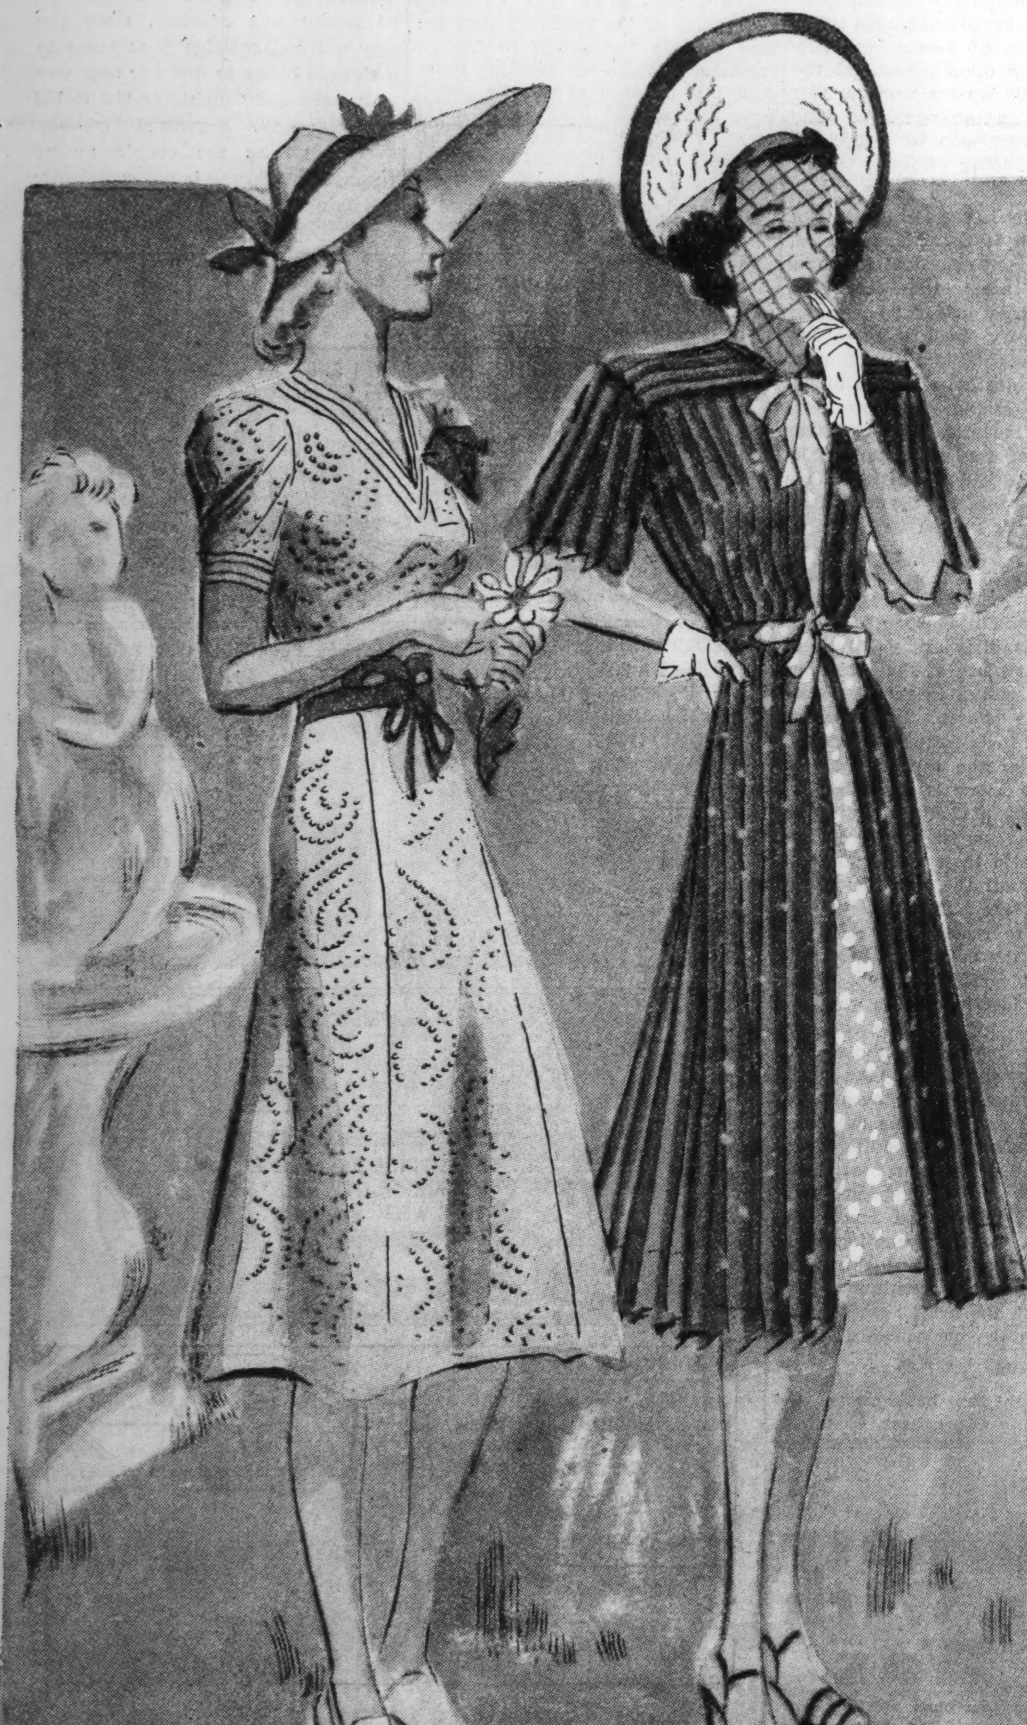


Left: Unusual two-piece outfit, the "penthouse" costume. Cool spongy linen in pastel, trimmed with braid. With the jacket it is worn for the street. With the jacket removed one has a smart cocktail or even dinner dress for summer time.



Right: Linen, cool and smooth as a lake breeze, makes the form-fitting dress with dozens of covered buttons down the front closing. Over the dress is a snappy sleeveless coat of matching marquisette banded with the linen.

Above: Summer classic, printed thin silk suit with new coat silhouette and smart longer length. Four huge pearl buttons keep jacket smoothly fitted.



Above: Crisp as a lettuce leaf, linen lace dress of the simplest sort that can be dressed up or down with costume accessories. It comes in a wide variety of colors. ● Another novel costume, thin printed silk dress sprinkled with cool small dots. Over the dress is a plaited chiffon coat.

"Air-Conditioned" Clothes for Torrid Days in Town Are Styled with Smoothness and New Swank

By RHEA SEEGER

TOWN clothes for summer wear are definitly town creations. All are cut and designed with smoothness and swank that look lost and overdressed anywhere but on a city street. They're cool charmers, crisply smart, and the colors are dark, trim, and slimming. Thin silks, thinner linens, vaporous chiffons, airy nets, and combines of similar summer materials are high fashions.

Short skirts, flared youthfully, a trick managed by flat plaits, flared tucking, or gores, accent very smooth, small waistlines. Sleeves of the dresses, as well coats and jackets, are short, supercomfortable, and easy to keep pressed. Slim tailored one-piece dresses in cool lawn come in luscious street shades of cypress green, garnet red, rust, cornflower blue, rose beige, and copper. Equally tailored one-piece dresses made of well "air-conditioned" linen lace will be found in severely plain models or some more dress parade affairs, with frills and dressmaker details. Outstanding collections of trick cottons, materials guaranteed not to stretch, fade, sag, wrinkle, or misbehave in any way under the most trying wear, come with such low price marks that they seem unbelievable. These also feature dark street shades as well as unusual in-between tints.

Dotted swiss dressees and two-piece outfits are better than ever for town, especially ideal for summer office wear. Copper peppered with millions of tiny white dots, black with the same, and navy are first choice for the career girls, and green, gray, cornflower blue are next.

Chiffon suits, the coolest things you can wear, come with brief boleros or nipped-in jackets that just clear the hips. Most of the skirts are plaited all the way around and stitched down to preserve a smooth, slim outline. Underslips are of matching dark silk crêpe or taffeta. Black is extremely high fashion, with copper and navy running even for second fashion spot.

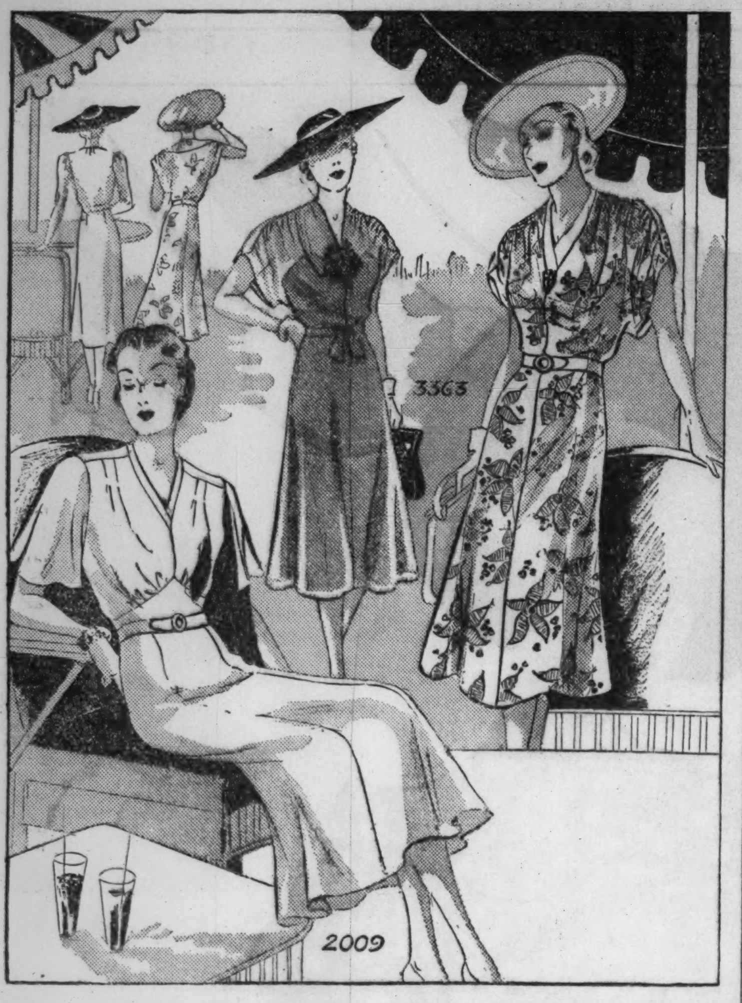
Crisp nets are high summer fashion. In blacks, they remain sleek, airy, and smart on the most torrid days in town. They can be cooled with white or pale pastels and more subtly contrasted with burnt straw color in wide-brimmed hats and matching costume accessories.

It's a race between clever two-piece effects, actual two-piece suits of slim streamlined dress and short jacket, and the one-piece dresses for favor. All of them feature extreme simplicity, youthful snap and smartness, and the coolest materials obtainable for a heat wave.

Tucked chiffons, organdies, marquisettes, nets, and many other very sheer materials make some of the loveliest and coolest of one-piece dresses. Redingote models are achieved with skirts of the filmy dresses open in front to show the underslip of matching dark color, the printed underslips, or other slips of contrasting tint. Embroidered nets and braided sheers make especially attractive and cool dresses for dress parade occasions.

We've sketched five newly unpacked outfits for summer town wear, all featuring clever ideas, new combines, and effective colors. Most of them are available in black, navy, and copper as well as the colors illustrated.

Patterns by Clotilde



By Clotilde.

Especially striking in white is the first of the frocks illustrated today, the casual and comfortable looking model at the left. It is styled to keep you cool on even the most trying summer days, and will promote your reputation for chic no matter where you go, to the country club, bridge luncheon, meeting, or visiting in the country. Around the simple V neckline there is no collar, only a facing of contrasting fabric. The shirred bodice is graceful, and the waistline, slim as a whistle, points up into the bodice. The sleeves are cut full for comfort and grace. The paneled skirt achieves flare without the use of plaits. Nothing could be easier to launder than this simple dress. Make it of any wash fabric, including the laces and mesh weaves. As said, the white is a grand choice, but pastels also are cool looking.

Quite similar in styling and purpose is the other dress, shown at the right and, in another version, in the center. Shirring emanating from the shoulders gives fulness to both bodice and sleeves. The V neckline may be faced or left plain, and either a brooch, clip, or corsage may decorate the tip of the V. A soft sash or tailored belt may encircle the waistline, and the two seams, one down the back and the other in the front of the skirt, provide ample flare. Sheers and heavier fabrics both make up well, and prints are equally as effective as plain shades.

Style No. 2009 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

It's a Help to Me, Says—

Mrs. H. T. Mace, Chicago: I always shrink my yarn by wrapping it in a clean white cloth, putting it in a steamer over boiling water and letting it stand an hour. After this I can go ahead with my knitting and not worry about future shrinkage.

Mrs. G. C., Evanston: To remove burned spots from cakes, cookies, etc., I apply gently the fine side of my large grater and the spots come off easily.

Helen T., Chicago: I always keep chocolate sirup on hand to kill unpleasant tastes after medicines, etc. It works like magic with the children.

Mrs. G. Smith, Springfield, Ill: For those irritating stains on trays and tables, and any sort of polished wood, I make up a paste of salt and salad oil. This I apply over the damaged spots and leave it on for an hour. If the stain isn't too bad it will come off after a rubbing with a soft cloth.

Anna S., Chicago: I use cornstarch to remove grease and water spots from my family's light colored blouses and dresses. I make a fairly thick paste of cornstarch, apply it and let it dry thoroughly. Then—very gently—I brush or scrape it off when it is dry.

* *

Marjorie M., Chicago: For a quick patch on a garment tear, I rub the white of an egg on the torn spot and then press with a hot iron. You have to look twice to find the spot afterwards, and it holds for a while, too.

Clotilde Children's Fashions

All you mothers know how the peasant frock has stormed the fashion centers. Who among us grownups doesn't have one? It's high time, we think, that the juveniles were let in on the mode, since it is styled so perfectly for their little silhouettes. The version illustrated in our pattern today is most attractive in a gay print. Even humble and inexpensive percale will be effective. The sleeves, collar, ruffle down the front of the bodice, and the apron all are of contrasting white, preferably lawn. [The pattern for the apron is included, by the way, at no extra cost.]

The kerchief for the head, perpetuating the peasant motif, is simple to make. It is made of the printed dress fabric, triangular in shape, cut from a 22 inch square. Hem it around the edges.

Another attractive scheme is one employing plain cotton in skipper blue with matching sleeves, crisp white collar and apron.

For parties pastel organdy is a pretty medium. You might omit the apron for this dress and trim the collar, sleeves, and hemline with braid.

Style No. 3379 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 12 requires 2 yards of 35 inch material, with 1½ yards of 35 inch contrasting and 3½ yards of ruffling for dress and apron.

Parent with Taut Nerves Hard on Child

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"Talk is cheap," my grandmother used to say.

It is true that some talk is cheap. But there is talk that isn't cheap, because it has behind it experience and a real understanding of the thing talked about. I want the mothers who read today's column to believe that the words I'm putting down are not empty words.

The mothers I'm writing for today are those women whose problem is more or less like the one described in this letter:

"I have the sweetest little boy of 2½ years, but he is changing and I suppose I am responsible. I am so nervous and irritable, and, although I don't intend to be mean to him, I scold and slap him when he does things I've forbidden. Sometimes when I'm tired I fly into a temper and afterward it makes me heartsick to see he is beginning to act as if he were afraid of me.

"He isn't even as cheerful and doesn't look as well as he did. Can you help us both?"

When I begin to estimate them in my mind the number of letters in this strain that come in to me is surprisingly large. Some, to be sure, are less extreme than this one, but they have in common some degree of fatigue, nervousness, and lack of control.

It is not possible for me to answer personally and in detail each of the disturbed letters of this kind that I receive, so I shall try to make some suggestions today that I hope will be helpful. Let's be a little systematic and see what some of the causes of this sad state of affairs may be.

Small rooms in small apartments have something to do with it. Cramped living is hard on most people's nerves, especially when they have children.

Poor health is another factor. Motherhood and housework require strength and endurance.

A congenitally nervous or extremely emotional temperament may be another element in the situation.

Next we come to fatigue. And chronic fatigue in women is one of the biggest causes of irritability and lack of control. Putting aside actual ill health as a cause, for the moment, this tiredness may be due either to attempting to do too much in the way of being a perfect housekeeper, or to being a poor manager, or just to being one of those people who hasn't much vitality.

Lack of understanding of a little child's needs and nature and an absence of sympathy with him is often responsible for the impatience and easy irritability we're talking about today.

Now, how many of these causes do you think are responsible for your unstable state and for your unwise treatment of your little boy or girl—and so for his or her unhappiness, undesirable behavior, or fear of you? Go over the list. Certainly you can do something about some of your faults or some of the unfortunate circumstances. It's a trite old saying, but it's as true as it's trite, that where there's a will there's a way.

Take ill health, for instance. How can a half sick woman be a good wife and mother? She can't unless she's a superwoman. So don't drag along—go to a doctor! If you're short of money go to a clinic. Some of our finest physicians serve in the clinics.

Next comes fatigue. No chronically tired woman can be a good wife and mother. If you're short on vitality and do too much work change your whole approach to your home job. Get some system into the thing; cut out everything but essentials, and take a rest when your small one does, or at any time that you can tuck it in.

Next comes wrong management of your child. Very important is it for you to get into a different attitude toward your small son or daughter. Realize that here is not a duty or a nuisance, but a privilege and a real pleasure. Look at your child with new eyes. Watch him, enjoy him, be friends with him. Find out his real needs. Or learn about him through reading.

The next thing I'm going to say may sound like preaching, but it has to be said. Besides working on your health and your rest and the other causes for your behavior with your child you must work on you—you, yourself. You can't fly into tantrums; you must gain self-control and poise or you'll spoil your own life and that of your child.

Use any device at first. Then try making a mental picture of yourself as you want to be—a positive image, we call it. Life with your child can be a rich, happy experience, and you can make it so if you'll try, even if the odds are against you.

You might even try until you get yourself feeling better and quieted down being away from your ever active questioning little boy or girl for a few hours a day. How about a nursery school? How about a small sum to a young high school girl to act as mother's helper for only a short time?

Make up your mind to do something about the state you're in if you happen to be in a "state" such as we're talking about today. You just can't let yourself go on being a nervous, uncontroled, irritable mother—it isn't fair all around, and you miss too much of living that way. Determine to do something about it!

[Naming the new baby is often a great trial for parents. We have made a collection of girls' names and boys' names with their meanings. These lists may be obtained by sending a large stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.]

George Rector

For several months I have been waiting for the corn and watermelon season to start, because I want to tell you about my pet clambake. Ever since I got into this cooking business there is never a summer goes by but what I get out my wash boiler—yes, an old fashioned wash boiler—and do this clambake for friends. A number of years ago I purchased a standard size wash boiler which I use exclusively for my clambake. For this enjoyable out-of-door sport the advance preparation should be done in your own home, and then, with the various foods all carefully arranged in the wash boiler, it may be transported to the beach or picnic grounds.

To accomplish this popular clambake it is important to obtain the necessary sea foods to make it a success. First, you will want about four dozen of the very large hard shell clams. These extra large clams are not to be eaten; we will use half of them to make clam broth and the other half will be used to line the bottom of the wash boiler to create steam for our clambake. We will make our clam broth first.

Steam two dozen of these clams in two quarts of water. Cover the pot in which the clams are steaming. Along with the liquid from the clams it should produce about two and one-half quarts, or possibly three quarts, of clam broth.

Now before I get too deep in the clambake recipe it is best to let you know and say how many it will serve. Lets say twelve people.

Now you have your clam broth—good—we will now proceed with the "makings" of the clambake.

Place first in the boiler a thick layer of wet seaweed and on top of the seaweed a layer of those large hard shell clams. Now comes another layer of wet seaweed. Please remember the seaweed must be wet, because only a small quantity of water goes into the boiler and that is poured in right now and the amount is two quarts. Clambakes are steamed and not boiled, hence only a small quantity of water is necessary.

On top of this last layer of seaweed place six small chickens (broiler size) which have been split up so as to make twelve pieces.

Place Six Small Chickens on Next; Wrap in Cloth.

Season each half of chicken with a little salt and pepper. Wrap the halves of chicken in cheese cloth and tie up loosely. Along with and around the chickens place one dozen unpeeled sweet potatoes. Also twelve ears of green corn which have been trimmed for cooking. Now comes another layer of wet seaweed, and on top of that you can have your choice of either small lobsters or fish or both. In place of lobster I use a small sea bass or mackerel weighing just under a pound. The fish is cleaned, of course, and seasoned with salt and pepper, then tied loosely with cheese cloth.

The idea of using the cheese cloth is to be able to pick these individual portions out of the boiler in a quick and easy fashion. This is done by cutting the cheese cloth into squares large enough to accommodate the food. Tie opposite corners in large loose knot and you will find the knot easy to untie when serving.

When you have placed the fish on the bed of seaweed also place among them, this time, twelve unpeeled white potatoes. Place another layer of seaweed over the fish. Now the top of the boiler is packed with soft shell clams. These clams we eat, so let us provide six dozen, which will serve six clams to each portion. Now one more layer of seaweed and your "makings" are complete.

Clamp cover on the boiler and it's all set for the steaming, which should be done over a low heat for about two hours. If the clambake is to be served in or near the home then, of course, the steaming can be done in your own kitchen. If you want to give a clambake with a real local color move the whole works right down to the beach, build a fire, and cook the clambake right out in the open.

When the clambake is ready to be served remove the cover from boiler, discard seaweed, and serve each guest with a portion of the soft shell clams (about six). With the soft shell clams serve a demi tasse of piping hot clam broth. The clams are entirely a finger food—remove them from the shell and at the same time pull off loose black skin. The clam is dipped into the hot broth and then into Babcock sauce. (The recipe for Babcock sauce comes later.)

Now for the second course. On each plate serve the whole small fish (or half a lobster) and a white potato. Babcock sauce also accompanies this course. It is marvelous on a steamed sea bass.

Now take a deep breath and get ready for the next course—a half broiler on each plate, along with an ear of corn and a sweet potato. No sauce is served here, but provide plenty of fresh creamery butter for the corn and sweet potato. A well chilled watermelon answers for dessert and coffee, if you wish.

Next Course Is a Half Broiler, Corn, Potato.

Now for the Babcock sauce, which is made in advance in the home kitchen. You remember in the beginning we made about three quarts of clam broth from hard shell clams. Some of this clam broth we served with our first course of soft shell clams, so with the balance we will make our Babcock sauce.

- 1 cup butter
- ¼ cup flour
- 2 teaspoons English mustard
- 1 quart clam broth, strained
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons black pepper, coarsely ground

Melt butter, blend in flour and dry English mustard, gradually add clam broth, and bring to boiling point. Let boil for two minutes, add salt and freshly ground black pepper. This grinding you should do yourself by filling your small pepper mill with whole peppercorns. If you haven't a pepper mill then you must purchase one, as freshly ground black pepper is the secret of Babcock sauce. The sauce should be heavily flecked with ground black pepper.

If you reside too far from the seashore and you find that seaweed is not obtainable, you can use instead wet spinach leaves and outer leaves of lettuce. A great many picnic grounds have permanent fireplaces with grills placed over them for just this sort of thing. You will also find in stores that handle camp equipment just the kind of grill you would want if you decide to dig a hole and build your fire.

Now, just one thing more. If the party that you entertain would number sixteen this broiler would be large enough to hold the foods, but if the clambake is a large affair you will, of course, want one or more boilers. Try this clambake sometime.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Among the facts of life I've learned is that every one needs a vacation and vacations mean clothes. Since the latter are my special interest, and I've certainly no aversion to the former, I put a good book aside the other night to concoct some designs for my summertime, playtime wardrobe. I never know where I'll be going, exactly, so I started on the principle that the play suit I wanted would have to do for almost any surroundings. I think the final result of my brain waves, illustrated for your edification today, is a masterpiece of generality. That is, I can wear it to the mountains, the plains, the sea, or lakeside, on the tennis court and golf course, and also for cycling. The secret lies in the fact that the one piece outfit of shirt and shorts has a tie-on dirndl skirt.

I've styled the neckline simply. It needs no collar. It may be left plain or have a band, as shown in the sketch at the right. Buttons decorate the front of the severely plain bodice, which has short puffed sleeves. For no good reason I put a pocket on the shorts and another on the waist to harbor a colorful bit of kerchief.

The skirt has the snug waistline and shirring typical of the dirndl, and the sash ties in a bow.

Etiquet of the Reception Is Timely Topic

By Helen Bartlett.

June no longer has an exclusive claim on the year's crop of brides. However, although the popularity of June has been encroached upon somewhat, it has by no means been supplanted by the other seasons of the year. So while we are working this column through the weeks of June we will devote one or two more articles to wedding etiquet.

The usual follow-up to the marriage ceremony is the reception. Not in every case is there a reception, and not in every case does it follow immediately after the ceremony. There are some brides who prefer to invite a very small, select group to a wedding breakfast or dinner. And some brides have both, a breakfast for the family and close relatives, and a reception for the scores of friends of the bride and bridegroom. These little variations have to be worked out for the individual case. But let's get on with the reception.

The bride and bridegroom and their immediate families are the first to arrive at the place of the reception, as they are riding in the first cars to leave the church. Upon arrival they remove their wraps and prepare themselves for the receiving of the guests. The house is in perfect order, the servants are standing at attention to show the guests in and help them with their wraps, and the cateress has all the food delectably arranged on the buffet.

The first to receive the guests is the hostess, the bride's mother. She, with the bridegroom's mother beside her, stands just inside the entrance to the receiving room, greets the guests, and introduces those who have not previously met the bridegroom's mother. Then, across the room, let us say, standing against a bank of flowers, is the wedding party, the bride and bridegroom first [bride on the right of her husband], next the maid of honor, and finally the bridesmaids. If the reception room is small these two groups may be combined into one continuous line starting with the bride's mother and ending with the bridesmaids.

Except for the bridegroom, the men, meaning the ushers, best man and the two fathers, usually do not stand in the receiving line. The bride's father keeps busy performing the duties of the host, introducing people, etc. The bridegroom's father simply makes himself at home and conducts himself as would any other guest. And the best man and ushers do whatever they can to make themselves useful. It is not unknown for the fathers to stand in the receiving line beside their respective wives, but as a rule they do not.

The guests, after they have run the gamut of the receiving line, are free to help themselves to the refreshments which are awaiting them. And just as soon as all the guests have arrived and been received the formal receiving line disbands and its members mingle informally with the guests.

The newlyweds are not expected to stay at the reception until the last guest departs, although they must stay for a reasonable length of time, no matter how anxious they are to duck out and give all their rice-throwing friends the slip. They should be reminded, too, that after having taken leave graciously of their guests they should call their parents to their rooms in order to say good-by to them privately. The bridegroom's mother particularly should be shown this courtesy, since she may not feel sufficiently at home in a strange house to find her own way to her son and daughter-in-law to bid them farewell. A general "good-by, everybody," as the couple pushes through the throng is not sufficiently satisfying to a fond mother.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[Tribune Studio Photo.]

Who's afraid of the blazing sun? Not the pretty girl who goes out armed with a compact, efficient little kit chockful of protectives and summer beauty aids. A protective cream that is not sticky is the most important item in the collection.

Our own idea about beauty and beach kits is that they should be compact, smallish, and light in weight. Who wants to be loaded down with a flock of nonessentials?

The rush is on now for kits containing summer preparations. We haven't seen them all as yet, but of those we have seen we must hand a blue ribbon to one of the veterans. It's still pretty exciting for several reasons.

It's inexpensive, for one thing. It's small, too, and you can carry it as you would a pocketbook, running your hand through the two top flaps that make the handle. It's of fabricoid, washable, and you can take your choice of a couple of colors. We particularly like the white. It's a smooth looking little job.

Here's what it holds: A generous bottle of liquid cream that prevents sunburn, to be used before and during exposure; a fat tube of cleansing cream; a little jar of makeup foundation in an elegant bisque tone; a box of powder; rouge; a little bottle of herbal oil to use around the eyes; a bottle of sachet cologne, and a bottle of mild skin tonic. It gives you just about everything you need and you can tuck your favorite lipstick into it easily.

There is a distinct advantage in traveling well equipped during the summer. There's an advantage in traveling light, too. With this little bag you can do both.

There is a great deal to be said for and about the sun cream. It's a cooling cream that acts as a sun screen for the harmful rays and promotes tanning delicately, evenly, and safely. It is smooth as silk, quickly absorbed, and it does not leave the skin at all sticky or greasy. The manufacturer says it's a mosquito chaser, too, thanks to a special ingredient that makes it abhorrent to the little beasts.

Before you go vacationing get set with the preparations that protect your complexion. If you choose this little kit we know you'll like it and all the things in it.

For information about this kit telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100, or write to her in care of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

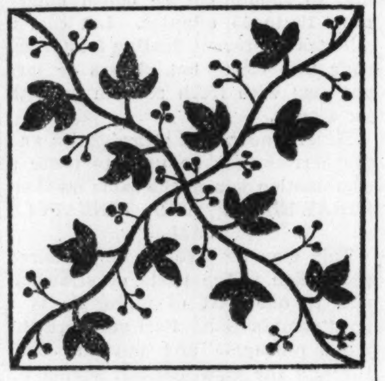
TODAY'S QUILT



TURQUOISE BERRIES.

Growing profusely in southern states, the dainty turquoise berries furnish the source of inspiration for the quilt design illustrated today. The berries are of a deep lilac blue, and soft leaf green carries out the foliage motif. These berries are arranged on a block measuring 17½ inches square. Seventeen blocks are set together forming an all-over design which strikes a modern note in color for present day decoration. The quilting will be a test of the needle worker's skill, since the berries, leaves, and stems are stitched in outline, and the stitching representing veins in the leaves may be done in green embroidery silk or green cotton, depending upon individual taste.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

New Furniture Designed for Outdoor Fun

Does your dinette appear smaller than it really is? How to select furniture, wall coverings, rugs and cabinets in order to give greater utility and a more pleasing appearance is told in the booklet, "Making the Most of the Dinette," by Edith Weigle, Tribune furniture stylist. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

By Edith Weigle.

You can pay as much or as little as you please for summer furniture this season, but you're sure to get something colorful, comfortable, and convenient. Rattan is as popular as ever and its upholstery goes in for water proof fabrics of lovely, soft, smooth texture in all the pastel tones. Sometimes the cushions are made to contrast, the back ones being of a printed material and the seat cushions of a plain, solid color.

Stick cane, that attractive light weight furniture in natural hue, is an ideal buy for the slender budget, for it's remarkably inexpensive and so good looking. We saw a huge, fan backed chair of the type that is highly decorative when placed against a porch wall or the massed greenery of a garden hedge. Nearby was a comfortable reclining chair with a separate ottoman to make it into a chaise longue. There are hour glass chairs, hooped back settees, and both round and square tables in this cane. They'll go with any color scheme since none of the pieces are upholstered.

Not since the days of Queen Victoria has there been so much white iron and lacey white metal furniture for summer as you'll see everywhere this year. We came across a real buy in this merchandise, a glass topped table and four decorative white metal chairs for a modest sum. Charming of an al fresco meal, and attractive for use in a dining room's bay window, or in a dinette next winter.

Some of the glass topped tables have receptacles in the stretcher near the floor for pots of ivy or large pottery jars of flowers. The effect is a lovely one, seen through the glass surface.

Most of this smart white iron furniture is made comfortable by gayly colored cushions in light blue-green, or yellow, or coral. And blue-green, by the way, is one of the smarest colors for summer outdoor things, but it's a delicate shade, not the deep hue we've been seeing.

It is used for the smart sailcloth upholstery of a stunning curved front, sectional sofa of white finished stick rattan, designed by Alfons Bach. You can get as many sections, each of which makes a comfortable chair, as you wish. The group we saw made a huge seat, three units being joined by two end sections with arms. The backs had white button tufting and white welting as contrast to the light blue-green of the cushions.

A large round white cocktail table with a 40 inch top, designed by Gilbert Rohde, was placed before this semi-circular settee.

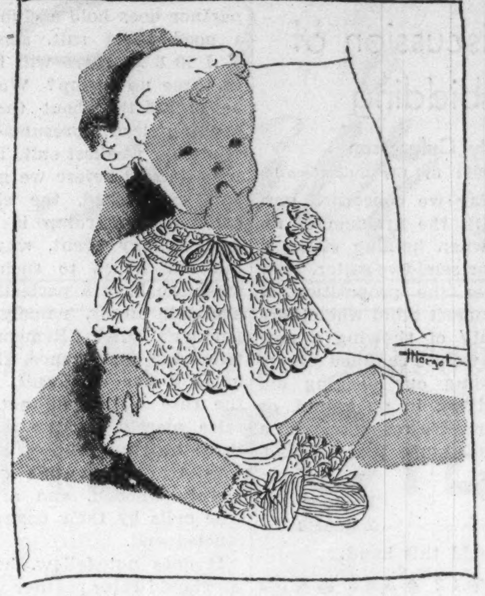
The same firm has made a grand, luxurious, double, rolling cabana. A little awning, which can be folded back or brought forward, is of lemon yellow sailcloth to match the spring filled cushions of the seat, while the back cushions are done in an unusual new Hawaiian design that is a little like a batik.

When you want to move to another spot on the lawn or the terrace you just roll this big chair along. It also comes in a single seater. But that does not have wheels.

Canopies and umbrellas for tables are larger than ever this season. We saw one spectacular umbrella that was lined with a colorful floral chintz. And an awning as big as a tent was on wheels. It could be used for a whole group of chairs and table it was so huge. Its colors were yellow and white and it was edged with a smart, deep fringe in white.

Least costly of all are the summer pieces of hickory and of painted wood. These are excellent for that cabin in the woods or at the shore or for the farm. They'll stand lots of hard knocks, too, and a little rain won't hurt them.

Crocheted Jacket, Bootees for Potential Beauty Queen



By Ellen Bruce.

Among one's friends there usually is some one who is expecting or has an exciting new addition to the family circle. This new member, whether a potential half back for Rah-Rah college or destined to become one of the ten best dressed women in the world, must put a best foot forward when meeting the public.

The soft pink, hand crocheted baby jacket and bootees illustrated today are necessities for every infant's layette. The jacket is crocheted of the finest baby wool in the shell stitch pattern, with the yoke of single crochet. The bootees are done in single crochet with the cuff in the shell pattern. These items require almost no time to make. The bootees can be made in half a day, while the jacket may take a day's time, depending upon the crochet worker and whether or not she includes this among her list of household duties. The lovely yarns with fine silk threads running through them are suggested for this ensemble because of their softness, durability, and lavability.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the baby's jacket and bootees done in a combination of shell stitch and single crochet, illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

Wallboards Keep Abreast of Times in New Textures

Insulating wall boards have received a variety of surface treatments which would have seemed astonishing a few years ago. One manufacturer offers at least five textures—natural, sanded, medium fabric [impressed so as to have a meshlike surface], coarse fabric and wicker, the last being a series of lightly broken horizontal lines. The board comes in sheets and also in planks which have random widths of 6, 8, 10, 12, and 16 inches. Another set of planks has beading at each edge to emphasize the vertical lines. There are ceiling tiles of several patterns, one of which has four raised squares, and there are other boards resembling groups of tiles.

Style Follows Jekyll and Hyde Trend in Paris

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

PARIS.—Those who are in Paris for the most brilliant summer season in years seem to be playing a game of Jekyll and Hyde, with their clothes providing the transformation scenery. In evening dress they keep you guessing as to what famous charmer they're representing. They come out to parties that aren't marked 'fancy dress" as Manon, Empress Eugénie by Winterhalter, one of the Grade A Greek goddesses, Carmen to the last ruffle, or one of the Boldini beauties of the nineteenth century.

During the daytime no stranger who'd just met them the night before would recognize a single one. They're just 1938, with no hint of anything else in their dress. They wear sleek suits, or pared-down coats with simple dresses, or printed silk ensembles. They wear ultra-modern excitement in hats, which continue to get wilder every hour.

Their jewelry is a second crazy item, or items I should say, for jewelry in quantity is worn now as never. Feather necklaces made of precious stones, tortoise-shell combs that circle half the head, triple rings on a single finger, choker collars set with stones too big to be true are a few of the items I notice around.

The duchess of Windsor sticks to daytime simplicity without flourish. She wears some of the finest jewels in town, which gossip says have set the duke back for what would be a fortune to ordinary folks. She's wearing a lot of black with white, as is every other smart woman. Baronne Eugene de Rothschild is wearing the severest, most impeccably tailored black Paquin suit I have seen, with a white silk piqué blouse and a big black hat. Mrs. Reginald Fellowes has Schiaparelli's black ottoman suit with a big velvet bow near the hem which makes it a hobble skirt, and she looks stunning in it and a hat about half a mile high. Marquise de Montesquion's Reboux bonnet, exactly like the one that Queen Victoria wore, and tied under the chin with enormous satin ribbons is the talk of the town.

Mrs. Violet Trefusis, who is the daughter of the famous Mrs. Keppel, friend of Edward VII., is wearing a Mainbocher evening ensemble made of black tulle and embroidered with tinkling silver embroidery. She wore it at a recent dinner at the British embassy.

A few nights later I saw the duchess of Windsor in her Mainbocher evening ensemble, which also is equipped with tinkling embroidery, but hers was gold. The slim dress of black crêpe is empire with the brief bodice softly gathered, and tinkling gold embroidery down the whole left side of the skirt. The short cape of the same crêpe is embroidered down the front and closed by wide crossed bands of the material likewise encrusted with sweetly ringing embroidery.

Mrs. Anthony Drexel Biddle is one of the important women who goes Spanish for evening. She has Paquin's evening dress made of white chiffon printed with pink Spanish fans, and with a ruffled skirt like a Spanish dancer's.

Baronne Eugene de Rothschild has one of Molyneux's Winterhalter evening gowns. It is made of vivid blue tulle over crinoline, with goodness knows how many yards in the skirt, and no more than half of one in the bodice.

Pure-Boldini is the dinner dress and hat being worn by the Princess Sixte de Bourbon Parme. Molyneux designed this model, which is made of heavy black crêpe. It has a black neckband with a coquettish red rose at the left side, and below this the chest is exposed in a low décolleté between the elbow sleeves. The bodice is closely fitted and the skirt is draped up on the left hip by tucks.

Mainbocher designed the suit that the duchess of Windsor wears for luncheons. It has a long, moulded jacket that fastens down the left side front on double rows of white plaster buttons shaped like roses. The skirt is quite short and cut circular.

Contract According to Culbertson

Expert Continues the Discussion of Rebidding

By Ely Culbertson

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

LAST Sunday we concerned ourselves with the problem of rebidding when holding either a genuine or semi-two-suiter. Now let us consider the proposition of choosing the correct rebid when there is no possibility of showing a new suit, but when we are confined merely to: [a] rebidding our opening bid suit, [b] rebidding in no trump, or [c] raising partner's response. As a premise let us assume that the bidding has gone:

We	Partner
1 spade	2 hearts

and that we hold this hand:

♠A K 10 3 2 ♥4 2 ♦A 6 3 ♣K 5 2

I have devised this hand deliberately to establish a "tough" rebidding problem. Actually whether to rebid the spade suit or to mention two no trump is just on the line. As proof of this let us change the club king to the club queen. Then there is no question what we should do. A two spade rebid is the only logical action since we will be slightly under the minimum requirements for a two no trump rebid. Conversely change the club king to the club ace, or merely add the diamond or club jack to the hand in place of a low card, and two no trump becomes the logical rebid. This brings us naturally to the conclusion that a two no trump rebid after the sequence mentioned indicates appreciably greater strength than a mere rebid of one's first mentioned suit. Properly used, two no trump as a rebid is not a denial of a rebiddable suit in the opener's hand. It is a choice of rebids announcing a definite additional value over opening bid requirements. Suppose that with the above bidding sequence as a basis we take the following hand:

♠A K 6 4 ♥Q 9 3 ♦A K 5 3 ♣4 2

After an opening spade bid on this hand and a two heart response from partner, a two no trump rebid would be about as bad a selection as we could find in a month of Sundays. True, we have four honor tricks and the heart queen to boot, but what right have we to relax, insofar as the club menace is concerned? Even if partner does hold a club stopper and a good heart suit, something like K J 10 8 2, where will be our tricks at three no trump? We must never be optimistic about the opponent's opening lead; presumably he will select our weakest suit. Thus, if clubs are attacked before we get our heart suit established, the chance for a game at no trump is pretty slim. And, in any event, why should we pin our hopes to such a contract when we have a perfectly sound bid available to us, namely, a raise of partner's suit? Remember, he bid two over one, hence almost surely holds a five card suit. That being the case we should not hesitate to raise merely because we hold only three hearts. Players who insist on four trumps in this situation are merely wooden, and are driven to true evils by their desire to avoid a fancied evil.

It does not follow, however, that we should raise partner whenever we have the proper support in the suit itself. Suppose our opening spade bid had been based on such a hand as ♠A Q 9 5 ♥Q 9 7 3 ♦K J 4 ♣A Q.

Obviously we have a sound raise for hearts, in fact our values justify a double raise. Yet we would be overlooking a marked bidding opportunity if we failed to bid two no trump. We hold three suits, spades, diamonds, and clubs, which will be far better if led up to than through. Remember, we do not deny heart support by bidding no trump; if partner's hand is unbalanced he will probably rebid his suit and we can then support him to game. But meanwhile we will have suggested the suitability of no trump play; in short, we will have investigated more thoroughly all the potential game contracts. The correct employment of no trump as a rebid extends to such holdings as the following:

♠A K Q 10 8 ♥10 6 2 ♦A Q ♣Q 10 4

Once more, assume that we have opened this hand with one spade and that partner has responded two hearts. What should we rebid? Let us consider the various possibilities: Two spades, three spades, three hearts, two no trump, three no trump. We should immediately scratch out two spades as far too weak; three spades is a better rebid but still not good because we are overbidding the hand. We have a strong holding but not the 4½ to 5 honor tricks we should have with a mere five card trump suit. A heart raise has nothing to recommend it. A jump to three no trump would be decidedly too strong and dangerous; if partner holds two aces he is apt to become excited and take us beyond our depth. So, we arrive at two no trump as the correct rebid, by the unimpeachable process of elimination, the process, incidentally, that should be applied to every bidding situation.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: In a duplicate game last evening, we ran into a rather unusual distribution which threw all players for losses who happened to hold East and West hands. And yet there were such great possibilities in those hands if properly bid. It would seem a shame to pass the opportunity of asking you to discuss this hand through your column. Will you do so, please? This was the hand:

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

NORTH.
♠10 9 8 7 3 2
♥A K 2
♦J 8 2

♠A Q 6
♥Q
♦A K Q 10 3
♣A K Q 5

EAST
♠J 5 4
♥J 10 9 8 6 5 4 3

♠K
♣J 10 9 8 4 3 2

"I hate to tell you what happened, except to say that in every case West either got tangled up in a big slam no trump bid, or East went haywire with a big slam heart bid, of course doubled in each case. These hands seem much easier to figure out after all are exposed, of course. But all the trouble came from East's accumulating heart bids which were from pure desperation. O, to know what to do under such circumstances!

Sincerely, H. R. B., Philadelphia."

I am always sympathetic toward players who get tangled in the snakelike coils of distribution and duplication of values, but frankly I do not see that East-West had any grievance on this hand. It seems to me that a final safe contract of five hearts should have been reached with a minimum of anguish, as follows:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	Pass	2 diamonds
Pass	2 no trump	Pass	3 clubs
Pass	3 hearts	Pass	3 no trump
Pass	4 hearts	Pass	4 no trump
Pass	5 hearts	Pass	Pass
Pass

I have even assumed that West would be dissatisfied with the four heart contract and would make one more effort toward slam by bidding four no trump. Surely, however, with East signing off again at five hearts there would be no possible justification for continued bidding on West's part. He had represented his great honor strength not only with the original two bid but by going past the game level at hearts into four no trump. If, after such "pushing," East still could not take constructive action, West would be outrageously optimistic to venture further.

It should be noted that the four no trump in the above sequence could not be construed as "conventional" under the four-five no trump convention since West's previous bid of three no trump might have ended the auction.

I wish I could turn over to my readers some of my bidding problems!

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

One of the representative musical colleges of the city has extended its annual invitation to children interested in learning piano.

Twelve children will be selected for free instruction. They must be between the ages of 8 and 10 years and beginners, without any previous instruction in piano. Classes will be held twice a week for six weeks in the early afternoon. Pupils selected will be requested to attend all lessons and each child must have access to a piano at home.

Last year, when the same offer was made, a number of interesting letters came in but the writers were ineligible because their addresses were omitted.

Those interested in this offer may write to this department. Letters will be forwarded to the college and selected pupils will be notified.

Can some reader on the northwest side of the city supply a double bed for Mrs. G.? She is the widowed mother of three children, and her income is extremely small. The youngest child is ill and requires a great deal of care. The mother's physical condition is very poor, due to overwork, and she is unable to get sufficient rest because she and her eldest daughter share a single bed. Another child sleeps on a settee, and the third on a day bed. If one double bed could be obtained the entire family could be taken care of.

Miss X. writes an appeal for a necessity which she cannot obtain by other means:

"Dear Miss Brown: Here is my problem. I am a young woman, at the present time unemployed, and my family is on relief. I am in desperate need of a pair of shoes. In fact, I am confined to the house for the want of them and, consequently, cannot seek employment. The reason I appeal to you is that I take a size 10 or 10½ triple A and, as this is an outsize, I cannot be fitted anywhere under $12. Were it possible for me to be fitted in any store for $3 or $4, it would be difficult enough for me to obtain the money for them, but I think you will understand that the $12 price is out of my reach.

"Perhaps some one of your readers in better circumstances wears my size shoes and is discarding them either because they are worn or to replenish with spring or summer styles. No matter how worn they are, I would be happy to have them if they can be repaired."

Shoes of this size are extremely expensive and difficult to locate, and we will be glad to give the name and address to any reader able to assist in this matter.

Mrs. P. on the south side has a rather unusual request which we hope can be filled. Her daughter has tuberculosis, and while the doctor has ordered fresh air, she must not be exposed to the sun. They have a small back porch, and if Mrs. P. can locate a discarded awning her daughter can be moved out there much of the time. The porch is about nine feet in width.

Follow These Instructions for Good Jams

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Homemade jams may have a thick or a thinner consistency, depending upon the pectin content of the fruit used and also upon the cooking time.

Strawberries and pineapple, two seasonable jam fruits, don't contain much pectin, but will make a rather thick jam without it. If one prefers a jelly consistency pectin must be added. This may be in the form of another fruit, which will supply it, or it may be commercially packaged or bottled pectin. Commercial pectins have two advantages. They shorten the cooking time and, therefore, preserve color and flavor in the fruit, and they increase the volume considerably. But they require a great deal more sugar in proportion to fruit than do jams made without added pectin, and some persons think that the large amount of sugar makes a supersweet jam. I like to make some of my jams without commercial pectin and some of them with it.

Raspberries contain enough pectin to give jellylike results and, used in combination with strawberries or other pectinless fruits, will give a thicker consistency. Personally, I don't care whether a jam is thick or thin, just so it is "spreadable" and good.

The recipes I'm giving today are for jams made without commercial pectin. Bottles and packages of pectin contain recipes for their own use, and later on some of these will appear in our columns.

The biggest precaution to take in making jams is to avoid overcooking. Overcooking will destroy color and flavor, the highest attributes of good jam. And, it should be added, storage of the finished jam in a cool, dry, and dark place will preserve these qualities of color and flavor.

Any jam, jelly, or preserve should be cooked in small amounts, because in handling small quantities the danger of overcooking is minimized.

QUICK STRAWBERRY OR RASPBERRY JAM.

Wash berries, crush them, and measure. For each cup of crushed berries measure ¾ cup of sugar. Place sugar and berries in a wide bottom kettle and heat to boiling, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Boil rapidly until the jam begins to thicken. It will thicken more upon cooling, so should not be boiled longer than 10 to 15 minutes. Let cool 5 minutes to prevent floating fruit, then pour into clean, hot glasses or jars and seal with fresh paraffin or with jar covers.

Equal amounts of strawberries and raspberries may be used to make a combination jam in the same manner.

STRAWBERRY AND PINEAPPLE JAM.

This may be made in any desired proportion. Two parts of strawberries to one part of pineapple is a good combination. Peel and core the fresh pineapple and put the fruit through the food grinder, saving all the juice. Measure fruit and juice and add ¾ as much sugar. Cook together for ten minutes and add crushed strawberries which have stood for a few minutes in ¾ the amount of sugar. Boil pineapple and strawberries together rapidly until mixture thickens. Let stand 5 minutes, then pour into clean, hot jars and seal.

JELLIED RASPBERRY JAM.

2 quarts red raspberries
1 cup tart apple juice
6 cups sugar

Add apple juice to washed and drained berries and heat to boiling, crushing berries as they heat. Add sugar and boil rapidly until the jam gives a jelly test. [Two drops of the sirup run together at the edge of a spoon and "sheet off."] Pour into clean, hot jars and seal.

To obtain apple juice for this recipe cut up tart apples, including peelings and cores, and barely cover with water. Cook until soft and strain juice through a jelly bag. If more than a cup of juice is obtained the rest may be made into jelly.

WHOLE STRAWBERRY PRESERVES.

Mix equal amounts of washed, hulled whole strawberries and sugar. Heat to boiling, stirring to dissolve sugar, but being careful not to crush berries. Boil rapidly for six minutes and turn into clean, hot jars. Seal at once.

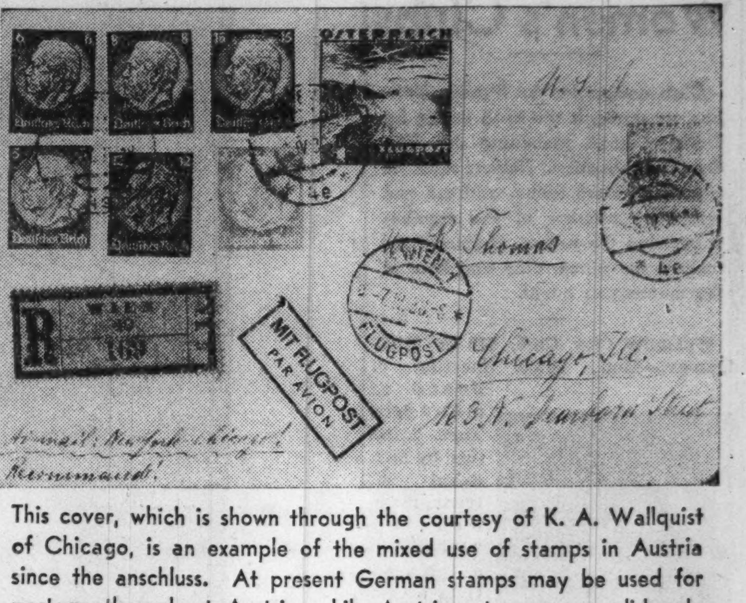
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen



This cover, which is shown through the courtesy of K. A. Wallquist of Chicago, is an example of the mixed use of stamps in Austria since the anschluss. At present German stamps may be used for postage throughout Austria, while Austrian stamps are valid only in that state.

A new booklet by Mr. Cabeen in the series devoted to United States stamps is now ready for distribution. This is No. 20, and is entitled Commemorative Stamps of 1935. Its contents are the Connecticut Tercentenary issue, the California Pacific issue, the Boulder Dam issue, and the Michigan Centenary issue. Complete details are given for each stamp including reason for the issue, methods of printing, makeup of plates, plate numbers, quantities issued, etc. A complete list of previous booklets is included. This booklet is priced at 5 cents by mail or 3 cents at Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower, Chicago. Please inclose a stamped, addressed envelope when asking questions with booklet orders.

The second stamp to commemorate the constitution of the United States will be placed on first day sale at the Philadelphia postoffice on June 21, 1938. This stamp commemorates the ratification of the constitution and the date of sale corresponds with the date when New Hampshire made that famous document effective by subscribing to its principles. At the time of drafting it was agreed that its ratification by nine states would be necessary to put the constitution into effect.

Delaware was the first to ratify and then Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Georgia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maryland, South Carolina, and next New Hampshire on June 21, 1788. Virginia and New York followed soon after, but North Carolina and Rhode Island did not agree to its acceptance until after the inauguration of Washington as the first President.

The new 3 cent stamp will be identical in size with the constitution stamp issued on Sept. 17, 1937, and will be printed in a similar color. The design will picture a colonial courthouse with two horsemen in the foreground, one in the act of mounting while the other is galloping away to carry the news of ratification.

In the upper left portion of the design is an inscription reading "The States Ratify the Constitution—1788," and in the upper right corner is a balancing inscription, "United States Postage—1938." At the bottom of the design is an inscription "Three Cents," flanked at either side by the numerals of value.

Stamp collectors desiring first day cancelations of the new stamp on June 21 may send not to exceed ten addressed covers to the postmaster at Philadelphia, Pa., with a cash or postal money order remittance to cover only the cost of stamps for affixing. Other postage stamps positively will not be accepted in payment. Covers should be fully addressed and not smaller than 3 by 6 inches and should bear a pencil endorsement in the upper right corner to show the number of stamps to be attached. Compliance cannot be made with unusual requests such as the affixing of plate number blocks, etc.

Orders for unused stamps must not be included with requests for first day cancelations but should be addressed to the philatelic agency, postoffice department, Washington, D. C., where the stamps will be on sale on June 22.

The walls and towers of the citadel of Carcassonne are shown on a 5 franc stamp issued by the French postoffice on May 16.

Carcassonne was an important city on the frontier of France during the middle ages and the citadel was impregnable to assault during that period. The inner ramparts are built upon the foundations of a castle dating from the Roman occupation of France.

With the Trade.

The Empire Stamp company, 349 Lippincott street, Toronto, Ont., has prepared a new edition of the Empire Stamp Quarterly, which is free to all collectors who request it. This features the new George VI. issues, coronations, jubilees, British colonials, and fine stamps of Canada, Newfoundland, and the United States. There is an illustration of practically every variety of Canadian stamps and a complete line of sets, airmails, albums, and philatelic supplies.

Cachets and Covers.

William P. Gabel, 10600 Thrust avenue, Cleveland, O., will have cachets for the following: June 17, Battle of Bunker Hill; June 19, Father's day; July 4, birth of Calvin Coolidge. Send covers ready to go and include 1c forwarding fee for each cachet desired. Closing date ten days before the event.

William A. Miller, navy mail clerk of the U. S. S. Cachelot, will sponsor a printed cachet commemorating the establishment of the first postoffice on board a United States naval vessel. Collectors desiring this cachet should send 3 cents in coin, or stamps to be affixed, before Aug. 1. Mr. Miller will furnish envelope and will appreciate commemorative stamps on wrapper. Limit one cover for each collector. Address Mr. Miller, U. S. S. Cachelot, Brooklyn Navy Yard, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Mooseheart Junior Stamp club will sponsor a cachet from June 8 to 12, to mark the silver jubilee anniversary of the founding of the world famous child city of Mooseheart. Send standard 6¾ size covers, stamped and addressed, but unsealed, with 1c forwarding charges to Mooseheart Junior Stamp club, Mooseheart.

Stamp Notes.

The postoffice department has announced that the first day sales of the new 6 cent red and blue air mail stamp, on May 14, amounted to $11,146.66 at Dayton, O., and $9,245.50 at St. Petersburg, Fla. Note that the latter figure is inaccurate as given, since it is indivisible by 6, the face value of the stamp.

The Dayton postoffice canceled 116,443 first day covers on that date and St. Petersburg canceled 95,121.

Sales of the new stamp at the Philatelic agency on May 15 totaled $7,418.22, representing 123,637 stamps, and sales at the Washington postoffice on the same date amounted to $2,747.10. There were 27,841 covers canceled at the Washington postoffice on May 15.

A commemorative stamp was issued by the Republic of Finland on June 1 in honor of the Swedish-Finnish Delaware tercentenary, which is being celebrated on June 29. First day covers bearing this 3½ markka stamp may be obtained from the American-Finnish tercentenary committee, Crozer building, Chester, Pa., and details will be furnished upon receipt of a stamped envelope.

Of historical interest is the fact that Chester, Pa., is the site of an early settlement called Finland, and here the committee will unveil a monument in a celebration to be attended by a delegation of prominent Finns. The monument was designed by the prominent Finnish sculptor, Vaino Aaltonen, and is being donated to the city of Chester by the government of Finland.

Pan American Air Ways, a magazine published for the employés of the Pan American Airways system, reports that this system coöperated with the effort to ensure success in celebrating National Air Mail week in a memorable manner. Arrangements for this were made through its trafic representatives in forty-one countries and colonies of South and Central America, the West Indies, Hawaii, and the orient which enjoy the swift dependability of its air mail service.

From the capital city of each of the forty-one countries letters were mailed to each state and territorial chairman in charge of Air Mail week arrangements. The letters were written by important personages, such as ambassadors, consuls, etc., and will no doubt be preserved by the postmasters who received them, and may be the means of starting many new collectors in the air mail field.

In addition Pan American airways carried letters from officials of the postal departments of these forty-one countries, to ranking officials of the United States postoffice department.

[Answer on page three.]

Paris Bridal Gown Unites Exquisite Fabric with Lace

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—June is the month of brides all over the world, and Paris couturiers are conspiring to make the march to the altar especially lovely for every one of them by designing bridal gowns with distinction. One of the most alluring I've discovered is illustrated today. It's a faithful copy of the most recent creations of a famous salon. Around its square neckline is a fairly wide band of exquisite lace, more of which trims the flowing hem, crosses in bands at the aristocratic looking waistline, and finishes the puffed sleeves. Brides, of course, usually choose white satin, and that was the fabric used for the original. Soft crêpe is equally lovely, and many brides in France and America are choosing sheers this year.

If you're not marching altarward this particular June but need a lovely dance frock for the summer season, this pattern, No. 5244, is your specialty, too. For this purpose you should cut the neckline down in back and trim it with the lace also. White is an especially delectable choice, but pastels are quite in order, as is sheer black. Instead of lace you might use embroidered ribbon for trimming, and don't forget silk organdy when you go to make a selection of fabrics.

Unusual Canape Has Basis of Bread "Cups"

Cut bread into one and one-half inch cubes. Scoop a hollow in each cube and spread melted butter in the hollow and over the cube. Fill these buttered "cups" with a thick creamed mixture of crab, lobster, tuna, salmon, or shrimp, then broil or bake until the canape is brown. Cool slightly before serving.

ACID FEET?
Feet That Sweat, Burn and Give Off Offensive Odors
Tonight do this—give your tired aching feet a good hot foot bath using a good soap; rinse and dry thoroughly. Next pour about a teaspoonful of Moone's Emerald Oil into the palm of your hand and rub thoroughly into the feet. This brings relief quickly, too, from those burning, itching feet. Moone's Emerald Oil does not stain—is economical and sold with satisfaction guaranteed or money back. Any progressive drug store will be glad to supply you.

THEY USED TO CALL HIM "OLD SOUR PUSS"

LOOK at that healthy, happy grin! You'd never guess that just a little while ago he, too, was one of those dull, logy, irritable, unhappy victims of constipation. Then he turned to FEEN-A-MINT, the delicious chewing gum laxative—and what a difference it made! And no wonder—for FEEN-A-MINT not only removes waste, but guards against upsetting digestion too—in these 3 important ways:

1. NO STOMACH UPSET—With FEEN-A-MINT you don't swallow a heavy, bulky dose; there's nothing to burden digestion.
2. CHEWING AIDS DIGESTION — The chewing stimulates the flow of the same natural alkaline fluids that help food digest.
3. ACTS WHERE IT SHOULD—FEEN-A-MINT's tasteless laxative ingredient does not affect stomach action. It passes to the intestine and works where it should.

You'll enjoy taking FEEN-A-MINT — and there's no griping, nausea, or weakening after-effect. Wonderful for the whole family—ideal for children. Get a package of FEEN-A-MINT today at your druggists.

NO OTHER TYPE OF LAXATIVE CAN DO EXACTLY WHAT FEEN-A-MINT DOES

Critic Has Easy Task Picking Ten Best Plays

By Burns Mantle

NEW YORK.—(Special.)—There has been more talk than usual this spring having to do with the selection of prize plays from the theater season's list. Now that the season has closed the talk is even livelier, with most of the attacks focused on the two major awards, John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men" and Thornton Wilder's "Our Town." The Drama Critics' circle picked the former, the Pultizer prize committee the latter.

There are those who now are insisting that because the Steinbeck drama closed three weeks after it was given the critics' prize it just goes to show that that was not a popular award. While the fact that Prof. Wilder's small town opus still is running gives proof of the people's preference for that drama.

Maybe so, but the facts tend to modify that conclusion. "Of Mice and Men" had been running since last November and closed with 207 performances to its credit. "Our Town" did not start until February and still is seventy-two performances behind that record. That it will make up these showings during the summer seems altogether probable, and I have an idea that it also will prove the more popular of the two plays on tour. However, the prize awards were not for the most popular play but for the play considered best in the matter of its writing and its distinction as drama.

It has been my task the last week to select eight additional plays to go with the two prize winners to make up that list of ten plays annually chosen for the season's yearbook. It was, as it happens, a comparatively easy task. The good plays this last season were so definitly good that they rose quickly to the top, like cream, and were ready for the skimming. This is my list of ten:

"Of Mice and Men," by John Steinbeck.

"Our Town," by Thornton Wilder.

"Shadow and Substance," by Paul Vincent Carroll.

"Susan and God," by Rachel Crothers.

"Amphitryon," adapted by S. N. Behrman from the French of Jean Giraudoux.

"The Star Wagon," by Maxwell Anderson.

"On Borrowed Time," adapted by Paul Osborn from a novel by Lawrence Edward Watkin.

"Golden Boy," by Clifford Odets.

"Prologue to Glory," by E. P. Conkle.

"What a Life," by Clifford Goldsmith.

It is, I think, a good list and encouragingly representative of the American theater at its best. There is but one imported play in the list, Paul Carroll's "Shadow and Substance." The other nine are of native authorship and four of them are by playwrights newly arrived at the top—the Messrs. Steinbeck, Wilder, Conkle, and Goldsmith.

Of three of these I believe we are safe in predicting that they will continue to be reckoned with our first flight dramatists. Steinbeck, Wilder,

Left: Here are Margaret Sullavan and Robert Taylor as you will see them in "Three Comrades" at the United Artists. The comrades in addition to Robert are Franchot Tone and Robert Young.

Above: And still "The Adventures of Robin Hood," with Errol Flynn in the title role, is with us. The film has moved from the Chicago to the Roosevelt, you know.

Left: Vera Mirova, a specialist in the dances of the far east, who will give a recital in Fullerton hall this afternoon.

News of Chicago's Amusements in Theaters and Cabarets

Summer Term Causes Stage to Mark Time

By Charles Collins.

The producer of a play called "The Man from Cairo" which recently ended a brief run in New York, Michael Todd by name, has been striving manfully to send this work to Chicago for a part of the inactive summer term. Various obstacles have interfered with this laudable project, as usual; for example, his leading woman, Helen Chandler, much admired here for her participation in "Tonight at 8:30," is not available because she has been engaged for a Rocky mountain revival of "Ruy Blas," at Central City, Colo. The original cast has completely fallen apart.

Nevertheless, Mr. Todd struggles nobly to achieve a reputation as the rescuer of the Chicago stage from its summer coma. He has already arranged for replacements in his cast as follows: Theresa Maxwell Conover for Violet Roache, and Harry Wagstaffe Gribble for Donald Randolph. But he is still searching wildly for a No. 2 Helen Chandler. Girls of her type are scarce.

Orson Welles, with his overcoated and shadowy staging of "Julius Caesar," appears to have set a fashion for mangling or otherwise tormenting the works of Shakespeare. For example, George Abbott, impresario of popular farces such as "Room Service" and "Three Men On a Horse," admits that he will stage "The Comedy of Errors" as a musical comedy, using ancient Greek costumes and modern jests. And a new manager named William J. O'Neill confesses that he will present the rarely acted drama, "Cymbeline," altered by himself, under the title, "Imogen."

Novelist Lewis Signs Contract as Actor.

Sinclair Lewis, the novelist, has always given the impression that he yerned to become a regular actor. This summer he will get his wish; he has signed a contract to appear in the rôle of Doremus, the futile liberal, in the dramatization of his novel, "It Can't Happen Here." Cohasset, Mass., will be the scene of this impressive debut, and the time will be the week of July 25. This will be positively Mr. Sinclair's first appearance on the stage, not counting lecture tours.

"Golden Boy," Clifford Odets' play about a good prize fighter who wanted to become an ordinary violinist but couldn't because he had mashed up his hands—O, the capitalistic sorrow of it!—may be counted on for an engagement in Chicago early next season. The Group Theater will send the company on a tour to begin in September and end in December. The cast will reherse a new work, probably Irwin Shaw's "Quiet City," while it travels, and Franchot Tone, the movie chap who is the Group's most famous alumnus, will join the organization in November to take the leading rôle.

"Can't Take It" Authors Write Another.

The two sure-fire humorists who contributed "You Can't Take It With You" to the gayety of the United States and the boredom of London, George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, have herded together and prepared another collaborative opus which may be a high-light of the new theatrical year. They read their manuscript to Sam H. Harris and his executive staf recently, but although the scene of this literary rendezvous was closely picketed by Broadway's most inquisitive reporters, nothing could be learned about the new play except this: it deals, more or less, with theatrical life from 1900 to 1930. The title is a state secret, probably because it has not yet been invented.

All the talk about a New York production of Noel Coward's latest composition, a London failure called "Operette," is denied by John C. Wilson, who appears to be his prime minister. He says that there are no such plans and, furthermore, if any are formed in the future the author himself will not grace the cast. Positively . . . Mr. Wilson is also concerned in the business management of the Lunt-Fontanne engagement in London in "Amphitryon 38." He proclaims that it will run through twelve weeks of the summer instead of the eight originally scheduled.

Pacific Coast Sees Helen Hayes as Portia.

Helen Hayes and her "Victoria Regina" company gave a performance of "The Merchant of Venice" in San Francisco as a Memorial day matinée. They repeated it last Friday. Los Angeles will see this Shakespearean experiment, which Chicago admired last winter, on Sunday night, June 19. Miss Hayes now has serious ideas about letting New York see her Portia next season.

The latest figures to be subpenaed from the valhalla of English literature to serve a playwright's fancy are Charles Lamb, the gentle essayist, and Mary, his sister, who helped him write "Tales Founded on the Plays of Shakespeare," and went mad. "Saint Charles" is the title; Hester and Emerson Evans are the authors, and Pauline Lord is the actress who wants to appear in it.

Fred Stone, recently of the Hollywood studios and a major star of the American stage when it was a great institution of lyric entertainment, will return to the footlights with a summer dramatic company at Dennis, Mass., during the week of July 18. He will appear in Frank Bacon's rôle in "Lightnin'," which was a record-breaker for popularity nearly twenty years ago. If this experiment has happy results, a Fred Stone tour in "Lightnin'" can be counted on for next season.

● ● ●

Gertrude Lawrence will begin her tour in "Susan and God" in San Francisco on Aug. 8. The customary sojourn in Los Angeles will follow, and then the company will wend its way eastward with Chicago as an objective. An extended engagement here is on the schedule, and it should begin quite early in the fall.

Composition Contest.

A competition for an a cappella choral composition open to all composers of the United States and Canada is announced by the Mendelssohn club of Philadelphia, Harl McDonald, conductor. Works entered must be written for mixed chorus of from four to eight parts and must not require more than twenty minutes for performance. The text may be religious or secular. Judges of the contest, which closes Sept. 15, are Eugene Ormandy, Charles O'Connell, and Sylvan Levin. Information may be secured from Sophia Bliven, secretary of the club, 530 Walnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Andree Faye is prominent on the program of cabaret entertainment at the Club Alabam. Acrobatic and "control" dancing form her line of tricks.

Wilder Tells Why 'Our Town' Is Sentimental

Thornton Wilder, author of "Our Town," prize winning play on Broadway and prospect for Chicago's next stage season, has given in interview form a better account of his theme and point of view than any dramatic critic has yet written. He told it to Homer Strickler, reporter for the New York Sun, as follows:

"Many people have charged the play 'Our Town' of being sentimental. The charge seems to be that the home life of the people represented in the play is too uniformly felicitous and the description of the state after death too literal and too idyllic. It is true that village life anywhere presents a proportional element of boredom, small-minded community interference, and tragic occasions.

"The literary description of New England has generally occupied itself with similar disproportionate descriptions of avarice and horrifying behavior of the remote farmers whose families' consanguinity, isolation, and back breaking work have developed occasions of violence and crime. The proportion of good and ill in 'Our Town' has been frankly cast on the happier side because it is established as a view of the village of 1901 seen through the eyes of 1938.

"Eight out of ten find that memory has selected from their earlier years the more touching and affectionate aspects of their early life. Death, separation, and distance have condoned whatever elements are painful.

"As to the description of the after life, nothing is more surprising to me than being told that it is original, for it is a transcript of the tone of the first of ten cantos of Danté's 'Purgatory,' where the newly dead are shown in patient waiting, being weaned away from the attachments of their earthly life and in expectation of some ultimate purification and translation, a doctrin held as an article of faith for many centuries.

"Sentimentality may be described as the distortion of the objective facts of experience as felt by the majority of mature persons, a distortion upon material to satisfy wishful fancies that spring from personal identification with the characters in situations presented.

"If 'Our Town' suffers from these deformities I am willing to learn of it for myself and hope in learning to approach more exact statements in the presentation of experience.

"'Our Town' is curious in that it is the only play I can think of which breaks the primary law that textbooks hand down to us—colon—the essence of drama is the struggle of a will or a group of wills against opposing forces. This play is description of relatively static conditions other than the presentation of conflict.

"Perhaps the audience's eyes are veiled from the fact that they are not receiving the customary 'drama' by the engagement of their collaborative imagination through the lack of scenery and by the constant shifting of the subject matter in time, in place, and in material. Plot certainly has been reduced to its minimum. There is no provocation of interest as to what will happen next, as to who will marry whom, as to who will succeed or fail."

Critic Has Easy Task Choosing 10 Best Plays

and Conkle are pretty sure to come through with other and, it may be, better plays. Goldsmith is a new writer, and as his present success, "What a Life," is that type of light comedy that depends a great deal on its casting and staging it is not easy to determine how dependable is the author's quality. He may write many more fine comedies, or he may turn out to be one of those one-play writers who flash brilliantly with their first produced effort and never produce another.

"What a Life" may be remembered as the high school comedy in which a problem child named Henry Aldrich has a pretty difficult time keeping awake whenever any one puts a book in his hand. He is sorely tried when he has to pass a Roman history examination before his mother will give him the $2 he needs to take the president of the junior class to a prom. It is light fooling, but serves a useful purpose in pointing up the problems of adolescence and the general attitude of high school teachers toward their frustrated students.

Mr. Steinbeck, already at work on another play at his home in Los Gatos, Cal., according to news that filters east, is pretty sure to follow his tragedy of loneliness, the unhappy story of George and Lenny, with other plays of a similar authenticity and dramatic bite. "Of Mice and Men" is not a pretty play, but it is definitly arresting and emotionally moving.

"Our Town" Sentimental and Appealing Story.

Mr. Wilder's "Our Town" is a sentimentally appealing story of a small New England town and follows the town's citizens through the simple routine of their lives from birth to death. One class of playgoers finds the Steinbeck drama rough and repellant. Another class finds "Our Town" heavy and depressing at its cemetery finish. But there is a third class that adores both plays.

The experimental form adopted by Prof. Wilder, presenting his play without scenery and as a kind of recital in pantomime, occasionally punctuated with spoken scenes, stamps him as an adventuring soul in the drama and promises further interesting experiments from his studio.

Miss Crothers' "Susan and God" is straight drama written on a sympathetic theme, that of a flighty woman's recovery of a poised and purposeful life through a casual effort to embrace a new religion and reform a drinking husband. It was made attractive drama by the performance of Gertrude Lawrence as the heroine, just as S. N. Behrman's "Amphitryon" was lifted to the higher reaches of fine comedy by Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt. But both plays also are basically sound in their writing.

Mr. Anderson's "The Star Wagon" also was a sentimental tour de force, helped immeasurably by the playing of Burgess Meredith and Lillian Gish. The combination of fantasy and realism in a time-machine story that took audiences back to the 1900s created a nostalgic appeal the play's admirers were quick to approve.

Away from Broadway "On Borrowed Time" is, I think, likely to prove the most popular of all the season's comedies. It is a tender and happy combination of sentiment and fantasy built on the theme of death's taking a forced holiday. The determination of an 80 year old grandfather to keep the grim one at arm's length until he has seen his orphaned 5 year old grandson saved from the clutches of a grasping and mean-minded aunt is universally appealing.

Finds Hollywood Has Not Spoiled Odets.

Clifford Odets' "Golden Boy" has stimulated the belief of that dramatist's admirers that the lures of Hollywood have not and cannot spoil him for the legitimate theater. It is another of those roughly realistic dramas that may find the going difficult when it is taken away from the territory that knows its prize ring background, but it has good values as drama.

Mr. Conkle's "Prologue to Glory" is one of the simplest and best of native dramas devoted to an historical subject. Its popularity should increase rather than diminish the farther it is moved from the Broadway atmosphere, though it probably never will attain a country sweeping success outside the federal theater. The story is of Abraham Lincoln's youth, carrying Lincoln from the year he left his father's farm up to his departure from New Salem for Springfield, Ill.

YOU CAN'T GUESS WHO THIS IS

The principal performers are: The Irene Sisters, dancers; Carlo and Curito, Cuban rhumba dancers; Dorothy James, prima donna; Mickel and Madiska, exotic dancers; Ninon and Villon, adagio dancers; Hoffman, juggler; the Lazzeronis, roller skaters; the McKays, dance team; four gypsy singers, with a chorus of posing and dancing girls. The dance music is by Frankie Quartelle's orchestra. About a week hence Rosita Ortega, dancer who has been appearing with the Metropolitan Opera company, and a small rhumba band from Cuba will join the revue.

● Veloz and Yolanda will return to the Empire room of the Palmer house on June 23, with Pancho's orchestra and the following floor performers: Michael Loring, tenor; Don Hooton, tap dancer; the Four Kraddocks, comedy acrobats; C. Ray Smith and his marionettes; Grace Dittman, dancer; the Abbott ballet girls. Eddy Duchin's orchestra will remain until that time, with the current floor show, which is led by the Stuart Morgan dancers.

● The College Inn continues its ice skating program of cabaret entertainment, with Helga and Inge Brandt as leaders, and Frankie Masters' orchestra. A novelty on the skating program is a fencing match between the stars. There are nine other principal skaters and an ice ballet.

● The Chez Paree presented the first of its summer revues last Friday with the following three headliners: Helen Morgan, Cross and Dunn, the dance team of Mary Raye and Naldi. The supporting cast includes Gloria Day, Cole and Phillips, and Hal Monte, master of ceremonies. The show marks the debut of Fred Evans, producer, who has a new ballet of girls to work out his ensemble numbers, which include "The Donkey Serenade" from "Firefly," "Black Night in Harlem," and "Jezebel," a Latin quarter scene.

● Richard Schreiber, baritone, leads the floor show in the Blue Fountain room of the La Salle hotel. He is supported by the Biltmore Boys, pianists, and Dixie Frances, singer.

● The Villa Moderne, suburban café on the Skokie highway, will introduce a new party feature, the "Tuesday South American Fiesta Night," this week. Special favors, South American atmosphere, and free instruction in the new dance "La Congra" are announced. The dance music is by Carols Molina and his orchestra, with Margaret Myers. Wendell Philips directs the alternate band.

● Two changes have been made in the revue at the Bon Air Country Club, new cabaret north of Wheeling. Alice Dawn, a ballad singer, has replaced Rex Weber, and Dean Murphy, a mimic who also serves as master of ceremonies, has replaced Tommy Trent. Others on the bill are Barto and Mann, comical dancers; Elaine and Barry, dance team; the Hudson Wonders, two girl acrobatic dancers; Margie Knapp, young singer, and Dean Murphy. There is a ballet of sixteen girls in ensemble numbers. The dance and show music is played by Jack Denny and his orchestra, whose last Chicago engagement was at the Drake hotel.

● Playing at the Hi-Hat club are Willie Shore, comedian, dancer, and master of ceremonies; a dancer called Nanette; the Four C Notes, a singing quartet; Peggy Moore, a dancing soubrette, and a ballet. The dance music is by Sidney Lang's orchestra.

● The 5100 club offers a "Harlem on Broadway" show, with many principals, twelve dancing girls, and the Four Lindy Hoppers. It is presented three times nightly, with Eddie Cole's swing band.

● Earl Hoffman's band is the attraction for dancing in the Sherwood Forest room at the Ivanhoe. Floor entertainers are Kamehameha's Four Royal Hawaiians, Helen Sumners, and Helen Erwin. The summer garden is open.

● The opening of a new dance floor at the Mills stadium will take place tonight. Jack Chapman and his orchestra will play.

● Frank Payne, mimic, returned to the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel recently as master of ceremonies for "Pinkey" Arseth's dance band. Performers in the floor show are Carla and Fernando, new Mexican dancers; Bill Crandell, harpist, and Marjorie Coles, singer.

● The fourth anniversary of the founding of the Old Heidelberg restaurant will be celebrated next Tuesday night. Robert and Max Eitel will be guests of honor at a special party, at which souvenirs will be distributed. The entertainment will be supplied by the Heidelberg singing octet, and Herr Louie's musicians.

● L'Aiglon restaurant will offer new music tomorrow when Ennie Bolognini begins an engagement with his International Gypsies' orchestra. He is a cellist who has been a member of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Mary Williams Kirkpatrick will continue her singing.

Variety Bills

Other performers are the Frazee Sisters, singers; Smith, Rogers and Eddy, comedians; Bob Easton, assisted by Ondee Odette and Mary Clark; Emil and Evelyn, gymnasts; Dorothy King, dancer; Verne Buck and the State-Lake ballet.

The Palace theater's stage show for this week is given by Al Pearce's troupe of revue performers, which includes Pearce himself, Bill Comstock, Arlene Harris, Monroe Upton, the Randall sisters, singers; Paul Robinson's harmonica players; and Danzi Goodell, dancer.

Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra have been held over at the Chicago theater for a second week. He is presenting an entirely new show with specialties by Edythe Wright and Jack Leonard, singers; and the dance team of Phillips and Kohl. Four amateur instrumentalists are presented at each evening show.

'Hobo' Student Problem Major College Worry

This series closes with today's article. Many individuals and several colleges have asked whether the series will be reprinted in booklet form. The Tribune will do so if the demand is sufficient to justify the project.

By the Rev. John Evans.

One of the major problems confronting central western college and university administrators is the college hobo who drifts from college to college and matriculates where, under his own standards of value, he can get the best bargain. Requests have come from various administrators that this series be closed for 1938 with a discussion of this problem.

The college tramp who spends a year here and a year or so there, with the result that he really has no alma mater, but merely a number of academic step-mothers, is largely a central west phenomenon. Few such nomads are found in undergraduate colleges and in undergraduate departments of universites of the Atlantic seaboard.

Not once in a blue moon does a student start in at Williams college or at Amherst or Wellesley with the idea of transferring to Harvard college or to Columbia university in the middle of his course. Perhaps it is a relic of our western restlessness that so many students from Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Michigan deliberately adopt a policy of the impersonal and noncommittal sampling of two or more institutions.

There may be a kind of travel value in this kind of a program; there may be a casual satisfaction, for instance, in comparing a fraternity with a nonfraternity type of institution, or a segregated college with a co-educational institution. But educational administrators are of one mind in this matter.

To quote a head of one of the better known Illinois colleges, he said:

"The values to be gained by such drifting about are trivial reasons for sacrificing the soundness of a four year college program, chosen for its intrinsic cultural value and entered upon joyously, but earnestly, and carried on through to a successful conclusion. Any surface advantage in a shifting program disappears in losses that run far deeper in the character and the stability of the student."

This college president described the four years of a college course as being a unity of experience, not to be broken except for unavoidable reasons. He said there is a social and rolling snowball build-up that grows like the snowball through the four years.

"There is," he declared, "a deepening acquaintance with the college and its faculty, a more and more significant life of friendship with one's classmates, the cultural continuity of courses in the same or related departments, and increasing sense of belonging within the circle and tradition of the college as an enduring human institution.

"All of these values are denied to the tramp student who dips into this college and then into that, but who never comes to 'belong' anywyhere. The good college has a contagious spiritual and intellectual dignity and strength of spirit which need time for the student to catch. It is the student who seriously 'volunteers for the durtaion' who really gets the most out of his college.

"For these reasons, the average college has little interest in transfers from other institutions. There is inevitably the chance that the transfer student was a near failure or a misfit in the college whence he came. He will note that the one receiving his application will study his credentials with unusual care. The sampler student will find a handicap which only ability and good grace on his part can overcome."

It was pointed out that there are, without doubt, many circumstances in which a transfer is justifiable. The student may discover that he has really made a mistake. In that event it goes without saying that it would be better to change than to continue on with an intellectual loss.

"If you want a standard college course but have been forced, for reasons of economy or the desire to live at home, to attend a local junior college [and the junior colleges serve an immensely useful purpose as their phenomenal growth proves], then the student should seek to finish the last two years out of the four at a standard college. A standard college is one that is defined as an independent institution or the undergraduate college of a university.

Lists of junior colleges of Illinois accredited by the University of Illinois or by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, or by both of these standardizing agencies, will appear next Sunday as a part of this series.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Despite expert checking, four errors occurred in the complicated tables accompanying the ten articles of this series. Corrections follow:

The table accompanying the article of May 15, Knox college is shown as having sixteen faculty members holding earned doctorate degrees. There are twenty-one such faculty members. The percentage of earned doctorates to faculty should be forty.

In the same table for Ripon college, the percentage of doctorates to total faculty should be 31.2, with ten members holding doctorates out of a total of thirty-two members.

The total endowment of MacMurray college, as listed in the table for May 8, should be $693,939 and not $193,939. The important per student calculation was based on the correct figure and remains unchanged.

The table of May 29 should have listed the University of Cincinnati as having a department of chemical engineering approved by the Engineers' Council for Professional Development.

Critic Ponders American Men's Scorn for Male Dancers

Wonders Why Just One Race Should Heckle

By Edward Barry.

The human male, when born and reared in the British-American tradition, is a most reserved and dignified creature. He wears nondescript clothes designed to conceal his figure or lack of it and to give him a chunky, forthright appearance. An air of gruffness hides any naïve or sentimental ideas which may lurk within him. He professes nothing but contempt for those races or individuals who habitually wear their hearts upon their sleeves. And he hates all fads and "isms."

These facts, quite possibly, have much to do with the average American male's dislike for men dancers. He will tolerate, under protest, the idea of a person of his own sex setting up as a conductor, as a singer, or as a performer on the piano, violin or even harp—but tell a group of he-men sitting along a bar that you are a dancer, and the saloon will empty as quickly as if Gabriel's trumpet had suddenly sounded outside the door.

To those who pride themselves on their own manliness and who believe firmly that this quality's presence or absence is unerringly indicated by a person's appearance and by certain features of his conduct, there is something horrifying in the spectacle of a male who conforms to none of their ideas. If you want to madden somebody, betray the fact that you do not know even that his code exists—or that you hold it as lightly as you would the taboos of a South Sea tribe. One or both of these crimes the male dancer habitually commits against the gruff, reserved American he-man.

Dancer's Political Ideas Probably Wrong Ones.

This traitorous male—this dancer—is apt to be a thin person with large eyes, a thoroughly impractical look, and a soft spoken manner. You can hardly imagine him closing a big account against stiff competition nor tossing off short ones in the locker room. If he has any political ideas at all they are invariably the wrong ones. When forced into a conversation on any important subject he is quite likely to start questioning premises rather than conclusions—an unforgivable sin in any right thinking company.

And far from trying to repair these defects, he is quite content to remain his own unsatisfactory self. Worse still, he continues to earn his living by dressing up in costumes which reveal the male leg in all its horror and by prancing about the stage in a series of maneuvers which our friends along the bar would regard as anything but dignified.

Another sore point is the fact that the dancer's profession does not make even the strange sort of sense which these he-men reluctantly admit in the case of conductor, singer or instrumentalist. Although the probabilities are much against it, a rousing and understandable tune may emerge at any time from the activities of these last three. A dancer, it is thought, deals in motions and postures which are always meaningless, sometimes sickening, and never by any chance the cause of honest pleasure in the breast of the beholder.

Tell Him Motions Are Pretty and He'll Smart.

Corner the he-men and explain to them that these motions and postures are beautiful and you will be met with a loud breathed "Bah" or its equivalent. Explain further that motion and posture rank among the most primitive and basic and honest of all forms of expression and that the distrust of these things is an historical accident whose effects are very limited in area and in period of persistance and you will be refuted with a still louder "Bah." All such things should be left to women, they imply. And the business of supporting the whole art—whether it uses male or female performers—should also be left to women—except in such highly specialized fields as the bubble dance.

Even if you agree that the male reserve and dignity which is part of the British-American tradition may account for this attitude toward men dancers, the problem is still not solved but merely altered. Why should one race be so much less hospitable than others to the idea of expression through motion and pattern? Less hospitable to the idea of expression in general, it might be added.

Much has been made of the influence of climate on the birth and growth and persistence of inhibitions. In general, nations which are blessed with sunlight and mild temperatures are thought to be less self-conscious about the natural man than those which are compelled to win their subsistence in the darkness and cold of the north.

Distrust Expressiveness as Enemy of System.

The seriousness of purpose which the harder lot of these latter makes necessary is believed to draw them away from the habit of simple, imaginative, childlike play—a play into which direct, natural expressiveness enters as a hugely important factor. They end by distrusting this expressiveness as an enemy of the system upon which their lives are built.

It is much more "sensible," claim the dominant thinkers of our race, to get a job in a factory [and some day replace the boss] than it is to brood over the expressive possibilities of motion and pattern. Let such brooding be left to women, who do not have to bring home the bread and butter. Whether the climate theory has much value or not [and its proponents are faced with the task of explaining away some pretty bad exceptions] certainly an art, which demands as complete a surrender to the demands of expressiveness as dancing, has suffered even more than its sisters from our acquired distrust of the natural man.

CLOSES SEASON

Mathilde Ernestine, director of the Beaux Arts salon in the Medinah club, offers Leonardo Amaresco, tenor, and Lilyan Cole, soprano, in her final program this afternoon.

Notes of Music and Musicians

The Society of American Musicians, whose annual contests give professional opportunities to many young and promising artists from the middle west, will present several of its winners in two Kimball hall concerts this week. Julian Leviton appears in solo piano recital Tuesday evening. On Thursday evening Roy A. Schuessler, baritone, shares a program with a string quintet composed of Israel Baker, first violin; Charles Zila, second violin; Robert Alexa, viola; Goffredo Mazzari, cello; and Elizabeth Van Pelt, piano.

Roy A. Schuessler.

Leviton, a graduate of John Marshall High school, is a 19 year old pupil of Howard Wells. His program is composed of works by Mendelssohn, Brahms, Schumann, Scriabin [the Fourth sonata], Liszt, Shostakovich, Kramer, Debussy and Chopin.

Mr. Schuessler hails from Kansas, and studied under Thurlow Lieurance at the University of Wichita. His concert record includes appearances at the Lindsborg, Kas., festival, the College of Emporia, Kas., festival, and with the Lincoln [Neb.] Symphony orchestra. At present he teaches music in the Evanston Township High school and has been studying toward a master's degree at Northwestern university, where his chief instructor has been Walter Allen Stults. He is baritone soloist of the First Presbyterian church in Evanston. John Adamson, also a Kansas born graduate student at Northwestern, is his accompanist.

The assisting chamber group on Thursday will perform Dvorak's A major quintet, opus 81.

Helen Leefeldt, well known Chicago choral director, brings her Lyric ensemble of fourteen women's voices to the Illinois Symphony orchestra concert in the Great Northern theater this afternoon to assist the orchestra in Debussy's "Sirens" and in four of Gustav Holst's "Choral Hymns from the Rig Veda."

In the early period of his maturity the late Gustav Holst devoted much time to the study of Hindu philosophy, particularly to its literary expression in the Sanskrit "Rig Veda." This deep interest was reflected in a considerable portion of the music he wrote in the decade before the world war. The chamber opera "Savitri," sung here in the Opera Intime series at the Palmer house in 1933, is a case in point, and so are four groups of settings of Vedic texts written for different choral combinations and all entitled "Choral Hymns from the Rig Veda." Two of these groups are for women's chorus, one for men's chorus, and one for mixed chorus. The hymns to be sung today constitute one of the two groups composed for women's voices.

Debussy's "Sirens," in which a women's chorus sings delicately ululating wordless phrases, is the infrequently heard third movement of the set of three orchestral nocturnes completed by the French composer in 1899. The other two nocturnes, "Clouds" and "Festivals," not requiring a chorus, are staples of orchestral répertoire. The complete program, to be conducted by Izler Solomon, follows:

Overture to "The Magic Flute"......Mozart
Symphony No. 2, D major............Brahms
Four Choral Hymns from the Rig Veda
..................................Holst
Lyric ensemble, Helen Leefeldt, director.
Three Nocturnes: "Clouds," "Festivals,"
"Sirens" ....Debussy
Vocal parts of "Sirens" by Lyric ensemble.
Polka and Fugue, from "Schwanda the Bagpipe Player"............Weinberger

The next concert in the Federal Music project's series devoted to the chamber music of Beethoven will take place on Wednesday evening. Future programs, like those in the past, are scheduled for alternate Tuesdays. Marion Hall, pianist, Fritz Siegal, violinist, Adam Micevich, violist, Jenska Slebos, cellist, and the Forum String quartet will participate in Wednesday's concert:

Sonata for violin and piano, A major, opus 12, No. 2
String quintet, C major, opus 29
Trio for piano, violin and cello, B flat major, opus 97

After the close of its indoor season at the Great Northern theater June 26, the Illinois Symphony orchestra projects a season of weekly free Wednesday evening concerts in the Wilmette amphitheater from July 6 through Aug. 31. The amphitheater is located on the lake front, just north of Wilmette harbor.

The choir of the Fourth Presbyterian church, under the direction of Barrett Spach, will give a choral vesper service tonight built upon musical settings of psalm texts. The choral works to be sung are Bach's cantata "Thou Guide of Israel," Sweelinck's "Arise, O Ye Servants of God," Purcell's "Sing Unto God," Gounod's "By Babylon's Wave," Sowerby's "Psalm 134," and Vaughan Williams' "O Clap Your Hands." Robert Kee will be guest organist, playing Reubke's "94th Psalm," and Winfred Stracke will be bass soloist.

Chautauqua

Now in its ninth season, the Chautauqua Opera association will give six operas this summer in Norton hall, Chautauqua, N. Y. The announced répertoire includes Mozart's "The Abduction from the Seraglio," Verdi's "La Traviata," Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," Puccini's "Tosca," and two Gilbert and Sullivan operas, "Patience" and "The Yeomen of the Guard." All six operas will be sung in English, and each will receive two performances.

Albert Stoessel and Alfredo Valenti are artistic directors, and Alberto Bimboni and Gregory Ashman are the conductors. Singers of principal rôles include Josephine Antoine, Suzanne Fisher, Pauline Pierce, William Hain, Clifford Menz, Donald Dickson, Gean Greenwell, and a number of others.

Music Tastes of Boston and Chicago Differ

By Cecil Smith.

In the twenty-eight pairs of Thursday evening and Friday afternoon concerts of its 47th season, which ended April 22, the Chicago Symphony orchestra played 127 separate pieces by 66 different composers. Dr. Frederick Stock and his associate, Hans Lange, shared the principal conducting duties. Otto Klemperer, conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra, appeared as guest conductor at one Thursday-Friday pair and one supplementary Tuesday matinée. Georges Enesco and Paul Hindemith each conducted works of their own [one each].

Of the total of 127 works in the season's répertoire [excluding the Tuesday afternoon list, which presented only one novel item not heard at any other time, Stan Golestan's "Concerto Moldave," for cello and orchestra, the solo part played by Raya Garbousova in her first Chicago appearance] the following revealing analysis may be made: Sixteen, or a little over 12 per cent of the compositions played, were written in the classic or preclassic periods, before 1800. Seventy-one works, or over 55 per cent of the total répertoire, were composed between 1800 and 1900. The remaining forty pieces, or about 32 per cent of the total, were written after 1900.

The figures indicate that the orchestra leans most heavily on the music of the romantic period. What are the facts about the 1937-'38 season of the Boston Symphony orchestra?

Only 24 pairs of concerts, four fewer than in Chicago, were played in the Friday-Saturday series of the Boston Symphony orchestra. Serge Koussevitzky was the regular conductor. The assistant conductor and concert master, Richard Burgin, conducted one week; Daniele Amfitheatrof, assistant conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, conducted for two weeks; Nadia Boulanger and Georges Enesco each appeared once as guest conductor, and Serge Prokofieff and Walter Piston conducted works of their own composition.

The Boston répertoire consisted of a total of 87 works. Of these ten, or 11 per cent, were from the classical and preclassical periods; 26, or 30 per cent, were composed between 1800 and 1900, and 51, or 59 per cent, were written after 1900.

When the tally for Chicago is ranged up against that for Boston a number of interesting facts come to light. In the first place, the Boston audience may expect, in the course of a season, to hear fewer and longer works. One can scarcely assume that four additional concerts in Boston would have brought to light forty additional compositions! Without jumping at unwaranted conclusions, it is safe to say that Dr. Koussevitzky expects his audience to have better stamina in listening to works of major dimensions than Dr. Stock does. One astute Chicagoan has suggested that the programming of many short works in Orchestra hall is a vestigial remain of the quasi-beer garden origin of orchestral music in Chicago, in the outdoor summer concerts directed by Theodore Thomas.

The most startling divergence of Bostonian taste from that of Chicago is found in Boston's heavy weighting of the schedule in favor of works written since 1900. The high tally of modern compositions in Boston—59 per cent of the total—is partly explained by two accidents. The late Maurice Ravel was memorialized by nine of his pieces, and late in the season Serge Prokofieff agreed to come as guest conductor of several of his own compositions after Dr. Koussevitzky had already played two other Prokofieff novelties earlier in the year. These two accidents, then, explain seventeen of the 51 contemporary items in the list.

In the light of past seasons, however, it is evident that Dr. Koussevitzky would have chosen to play other modern works had these particular ones not seemed of immediate value. The percentage is not notably higher than in most other Boston seasons. In comparison, then, our local enthusiasm for the music of our own generation seems a bit pale, and our programs reflect what many Bostonians might consider an undue reverence for the superior merits of nineteenth century music.

The backward look of our Chicago programs becomes more apparent in the record of the season's novelties. The Chicago Symphony orchestra added twenty new works in the course of the year. Eight of these had already been played elsewhere—primarily at Ravinia and by the Illinois Symphony orchestra. Of the remaining twelve genuine novelties, three [two Bach transcriptions and the Mozart violin concerto introduced by Mr. Enesco] were not contemporary. In the final analysis, therefore, only nine of the 127 pieces played were novelties by contemporary composers. [One of the nine, Leo Weiner's "Prince Csongor and the Goblins," was composed nearly 25 years ago, and is completely in a nineteenth century idiom].

The Boston Symphony orchestra made 21 new works known to its home city, out of a total of 87 pieces played. Two of the 21—a Suite for Strings, by Boccherini, and the "lost" Schumann concerto, played by Yehudi Menuhin—belonged to past generations. The remaining 19 contemporary novelties made up more than 21 per cent of the entire répertoire.

Did the so-called "standard répertoire" suffer in Boston? Perhaps it did. A comparison of the composers most frequently represented in new programs of both cities may shed some light:

CHICAGO.		BOSTON.
Beethoven	13	Ravel	9
Bach	9	Prokofieff	8
Wagner	8	Beethoven	6
Brahms	6	Sibelius	6
Strauss	5	Wagner	4
Mozart	4	Brahms	4
D'Indy	4	Haydn	3
Wolf	4	Mozart	3
Hindemith	3	Schumann	3
Mahler	3	Strauss	3
Ravel	3	Tschaikowsky	3
Sibelius	3
Glazounoff	3
All other composers two or less.		All other composers two or less.

Statistics may be made to prove almost anything the statistician chooses. These figures and tabulations by no means exhaust the comparisons that might be made between the achievements and policies of the two orchestras. Nor are they intended to demonstrate anything except whatever grist for his mill the individual reader may find in them.

Frida Savini, soprano, and Alberto Salvi, harpist, both well established artists in Chicago, will appear in joint recital tonight at the Woman's Club theater. Alexander Aster plays Miss Savini's accompaniments. She lists arias from Weber's "Der Freischütz," Massenet's "Manon," and Boito's "Mefistofele," as well as songs by Wolf, Brahms, Faure, and Cimara. Mr. Salvi will play works by Chopin, Debussy, Dizi, and himself, and will accompany Miss Savini in songs by Morgan, Pillois, and Debussy.

The Beaux Arts salon in the Medinah club closes its second season today with a recital by Leonardo Amaresco, tenor, and Lilyan Cole, soprano. Mr. Amaresco has sung with the Vienna and Berlin State Opera companies, and has now taken up permanent residence in Chicago. He once sang the rôle of Pinkerton in "Madame Butterfly" in Vienna under Puccini's direction, and has appeared in such unusual operas as Schreker's "Der Schatzgräber," and Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Coq d'Or." He has been heard over the air from W-G-N. Miss Cole has sung in Grant park and is now coaching with Rosa Raisa.

Mathilde Ernestine, director of the Beaux Arts salon, has presented thirty-one Sunday afternoon concerts this season. Among the artists who appeared are Ebba Sundstrom, Helen Searles Westbrook, Walter Pontius and his daughter, Muriel K. Pontius, Alice Mary Baenziger, Leonard Balsamo, Elsa Soderstam-Kensting, Carl Strum, Annamarie Wirz Balke and Roger Balke, Vesta Watkins, and Edna Mae Stryker.

A remarkable week-long music festival is to be held at the Irving Park Lutheran church this week, under the general direction of Harry T. Carlson, musical director, and the Rev. Joshua Oden, pastor of the church. The chief programs of the week are listed in the music calendar.

Phi Mu Gamma allied arts society, meeting in biennial convention at the Congress hotel since Friday, completes its calendar of events today with a concert, reception, and tea at the Congress casino this afternoon and a supper and musical at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burt J. Denman in Wilmette this evening.

A concert will be given Friday evening in the Auditorium recital hall under the auspices of the China Aid council for the benefit of war sufferers in China. Josef Rosenstein, violinist, and Bernice Levin, 14 year old pianist, will play.

The Elizabethan Madrigal singers, Madi Bacon, director, present their annual informal spring concert Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles S. Bacon, 2333 Cleveland avenue. The program consists of motets, madrigals, chorals, airs, fancies, rounds, old Gaelic work songs, and the Bach cantata "Du Wahrer Gott und Davids Sohn." Porter Heaps will assist at the electric organ.

The $40,000 guaranty fund required for the 1938 Ravinia festival is oversubscribed by $1,000. Two hundred and fifty-seven guarantors—including sixty-nine not on last year's list—are contributing an average of $165 each to maintain the six week season. Attendance figures for the first two seasons were 52,000 in 1936, 67,000 in 1937—an increase of 27 per cent. Renslow Sherer, in charge of the park on behalf of the Ravinia committee, tells us that the stage will be painted a different color this year. What color he does not say.

The 43d annual commencement concert of the Sherwood Music school takes place in Orchestra hall Friday evening. Degrees will be conferred and the address given by Dr. Walter Keller, musical director of the school. The following graduating students will make solo appearances with the Sherwood Symphony orchestra under P. Marinus Paulsen: Gladys Zerbel, Velta Press, Frances Ross, Dennis Andal, Kathryn Dyer, Jane Sears and Charles Richard, pianists; Elizabeth Hagen, violinist; Vernon Skoog, tenor, and Marie Saviniemi, soprano.

Stage of New York Shrinks in Past Year

A review of the New York stage for the year of 1937-'38 produces the following statistics:

New plays, 74; new musical comedies, 6; new revues, 3; new operettas, 2; revivals of all kinds, 19; total performances [excluding the federal theater project], 5,285.

These figures continue a downward curve in theatrical activities that has run through the last four years. To illustrate, the list will be repeated again, with the figures for 1936-'37, 1935-'36, and 1934-'35 following those for the last year, thus:

New plays, 74, 83, 89, 113; new musical comedies, 6, 8, 5, 11; new revues, 3, 2, 8, 8,; total performances, 5,285, 6,337, 7,515 [total for 1934-'35 not available].

Runs of 100 performances or more were as follows: "Susan and God," 273; "I'd Rather Be Right," 243; "Pins and Needles," 240; "Of Mice and Men," 207; "Hooray for What!" 199; "Julius Cæsar," 157; "Amphitryon 38," 152; "Bachelor Born," 148; "Shadow and Substance," 144; "A Doll's House," 142; "On Borrowed Time," 138; "Our Town," 134; "Father Malachy's Miracle," 125; "Three Waltzes," 122; "French Without Tears," 111; "The Cradle Will Rock," 108; "One Is Enough," 105.

Two "Women" Tours.

Two companies of "The Women" will go on tour next season. The New York cast will take the southern route; the second company, which recently finished a coast to coast tour, will travel in the north.

A new face and a lovely one! Its owner is Margaret Lockwood, who plays the feminine lead in the English movie "To the Victor." (World Playhouse.) Will Fyffe, John Loder and two dogs, "Black Wull" and "Owd Bob," are her main support.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

The time has come again to refresh your minds as to worthwhile pictures of a month gone by.

"Dr. Rhythm," featuring Bing Crosby and Beatrice Lillie, was thought to be the best movie the four little Crosby boys' crooning papa'd made in a long time—"for which fact a foaming tankard of thanks should be handed to Miss Beatrice Lillie . . . not that she's the whole show, for she isn't—but she's the cream in its coffee and the salt in its stew, so to speak. . . . Mr. Crosby comports himself with customary bonhomie. Mary Carlisle carries the honors of the romantic feminine lead on capable shoulders—smooth direction, bright dialog, and effective staging bring out the best of the 'different' story. . . ."

"The Charm of La Bohême" is like one of those little Japanese boxes—an analogous modern story flirting into the well known one of the opera, "La Bohême." Very cleverly have the two been wrought together . . . a picture that should have universal appeal. [Marta Eggerth and Jan Kiepura in the leads.]

"Four Men and a Prayer" — Romance, mystery, action, suspense! Plenty of each has this melodrama which I prophesy will hand you an hour's exciting entertainment. . . . Loretta Young and Richard Greene heading a handpicked cast. . . .

"Adventures of Robin Hood"—"A ticket for the human who has refused to outgrow his love for high adventure . . . all in lovely technicolor with Errol Flynn wearing the dashing mantle of gallantry, fearlessness, and utilitarianism that adorned and was adorned by Douglas Fairbanks in his 1922 interpretation of the rôle . . . excellently supported by an intelligently assembled cast . . . story is developed with zest and good taste against intriguing backgrounds. Authentic customs and costumes are vividly presented, and the dialog is brightly written and spoken. Direction—the best. . . ."

"Stolen Heaven" — "In 'Stolen Heaven' Olympe Bradna proves worthy of the interest she aroused in her American debut picture 'Souls at Sea' . . . tale featuring her and Gene Raymond, an alluring combination of excitement, suspense, intrigue, and romance, its episodes strung together on a chain of beautiful music. . . . Direction, sets, scenery, photography—tops. . . ."

"Holliday"—"Miss Hepburn's work in 'Holiday' her perfect answer to 'independents' who, a short time ago dared to class her as a 'has been' . . . never has she given a more brilliant performance; never a more human one. . . . If shopping for a fine, sophisticated laugh, tear, and thought begetting movie, make a note for yourselves to 'See "Holiday"—SURE.'" [Supporting Miss Hepburn are Cary Grant, Doris Nolan, Lew Ayres, Henry Kolker.]

So closeth the lesson for today.

See you tomorrow.

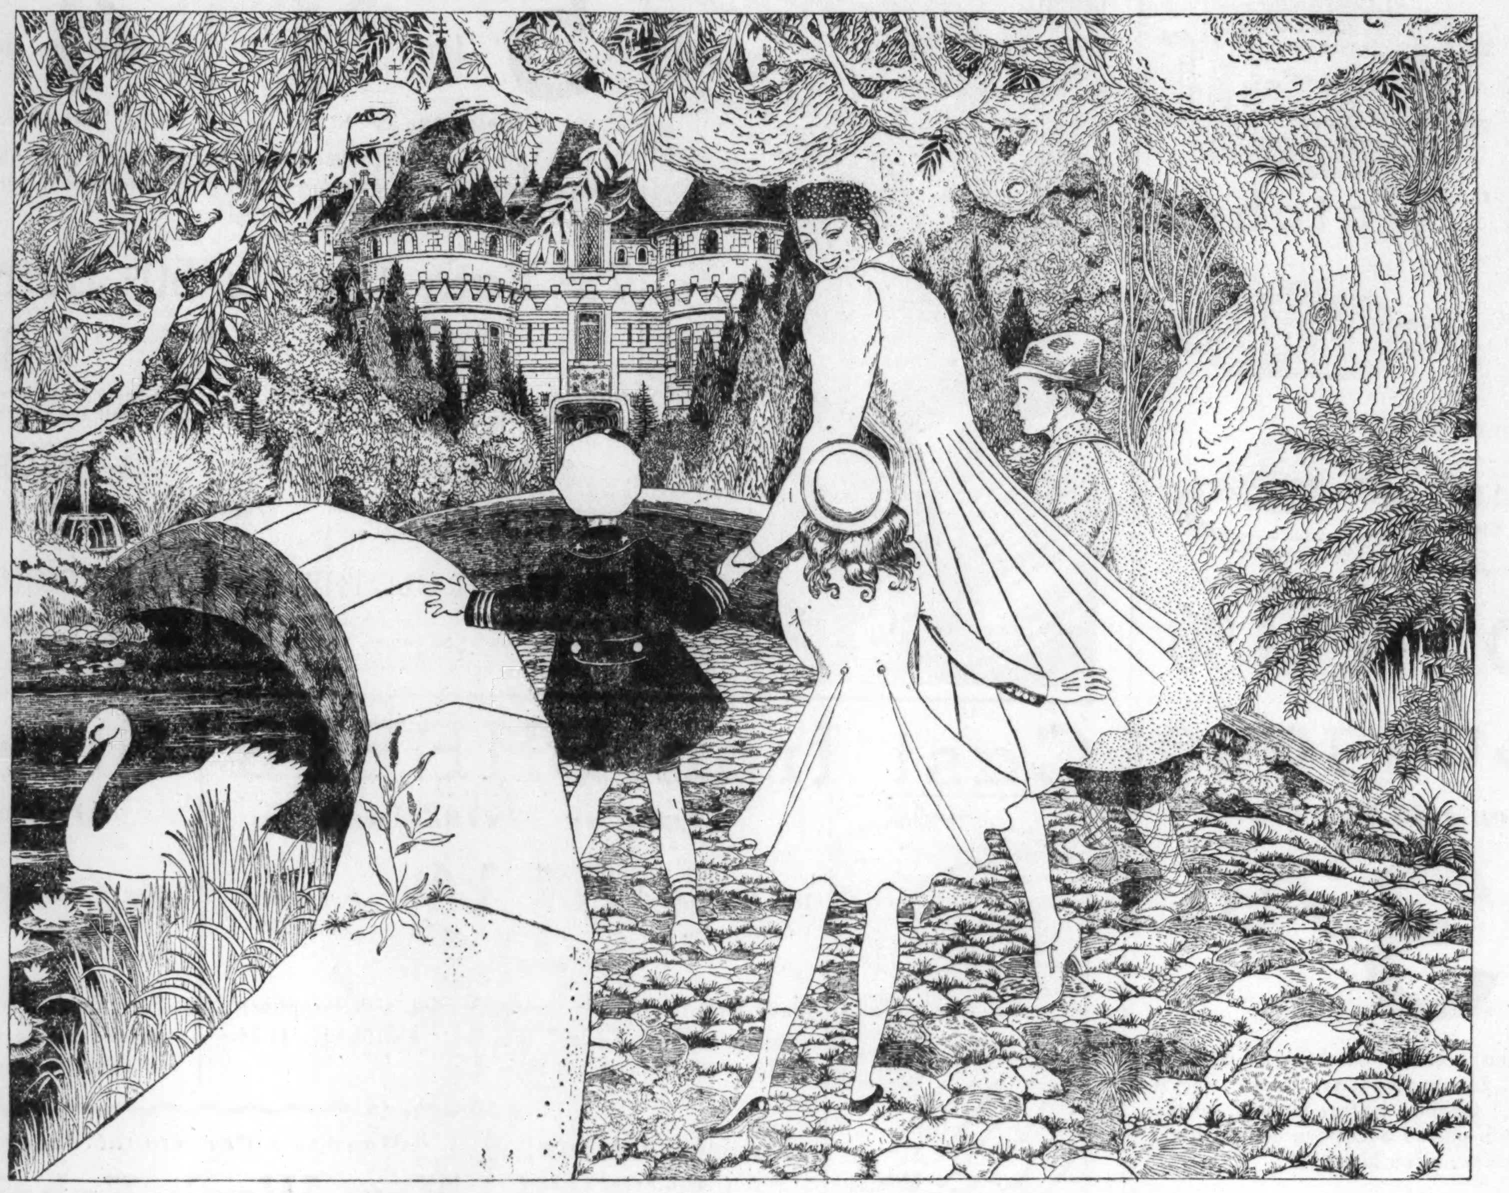
In Defense of Mrs. Maxon

By George Agnew Chamberlain

A Cryptic Cablegram from Guy McNeir Brings Creighton Hadley Back to New York

THE STORY TO DATE

● Marcia Maxon had lived on their estate apart from the social scene. The sudden death of her husband plunges her into a living death, aloof even from her own children. As companion to the children, Barbara Clinton comes to the strange house. She arouses Mrs. Maxon from her apathy by accusing her of cowardice. Barbara, betrayed by a scene of beauty, succumbs to Hugh Riggs. He refuses to marry her. Marcia goes to Hugh's apartment to plead with him. He tries to make love to her. She flings a sharp ornament at him and kills him. The two women are bound together by this secret. Hugh's uncle, Creighton Hadley, an amateur archæologist, decides, for the sake of his dead sister, to investigate the murder. In Hugh's apartment Creighton meets Guy McNeir, son of a newspaper magnate, and finds three pleading letters from a woman. Guy, who is interested in Barbara, identifies them as written by her. At the beach Creighton and Guy meet Mrs. Maxon and Barbara on Mrs. Maxon's first venture into the public eye. Creighton is overwhelmed by Mrs. Maxon's beauty. He asks her if he may call and is flatly refused. Soon after Creighton leaves for Mexico. Mrs. Maxon secretly closes up her home and takes Barbara and her children to France, with loyal Sam, her chauffeur, as bodyguard. She agrees to a fabulous price to secure a lovely villa near Chantilly. Its owner, Monsieur d'Urville, had named the price to discourage the sale. Barbara is greatly distressed when Mrs. Maxon tells her she is to remain in Paris until her child is born.



Coming upon Virelay suddenly, even the children were spellbound.

BARBARA hurled herself across Marcia's knees. "O, please, please!" she sobbed. "I'm sorry! Forgive me! Say you forgive me."

Her body seemed to melt; it stopped quivering and became a weight of tears. She wept not only with her eyes but with her whole being. Marcia drew her into her arms. She did not cry herself, but she was conscious of a great alleviation, as though her outburst had swept some poison from her veins. She waited patiently.

"Of course I forgive you," she said at last. "I even forgive myself for what I said, because it has brought us to where we are. Run along and wash your face; I'll dress and show you where you're going to live."

Barbara's heart went out at once to Madame Tonneau, and she was so taken with the miniature perfection of her temporary home that it left her silent. All she could do was to take Marcia's hand and hold it tight.

M'sieur d'Urville, already in his fifties, was unusually tall and lank for a Frenchman. Though inwardly Gallic, he wore English tweeds as unaffectedly as he spoke the English language. His expression was saturnine, his olive cheeks were sunken and his eyes cavernous. Once passionate, they now merely smoldered, for he had burned them out in his youth over a worthless woman. As a result he had never married. Upon entering he stood near the door and regarded Botquelin with ill-concealed distaste.

"You're a scoundrel," he announced in a low voice. "If it weren't for making myself absurd I'd drag you to the field of honor."

"If I'm a scoundrel, you're a fool," said the advocate hotly, but immediately controled himself. "No, no, Pierre, I didn't mean that. What a way for old friends to talk! Listen, Pierre. Tomorrow you will sell Virelay for a fabulous price——"

"No!"

"My friend, what's done is done. If I committed a fault I can't go back on it any more than you can go back on your word, and a lucky thing we can't. Sit down and I'll prove it to you. For a fabulous price, Pierre, which you will invest in government bonds, thus securing the equivalent of a generous rental. Reflect, Pierre. These foreigners visit us; they never take root. A couple of years from now — say three or even four — you can doubtless buy back the property at half the price, because there will be no other purchaser willing to give half of that. Now thank me and say you agree."

"I can't thank you, Emile," said D'Urville slowly, "nor do I agree. However, since you and your client consider that foolish letter a pledge, there is nothing I can do. With hate in my heart I'll stand by my word. Arrange matters so I need not be present."

THE following day Marcia, entering the nonfamiliar office, scarcely perceived her surroundings, for a fullness so pervaded her heart it produced a species of blindness. Already her mind had built the possession of Virelay into a bulwark behind which she would be forever safe from the past.

She sat on the extreme edge of a chair, leaned forward, and strove desperately to resume her habit of understanding every detail of her affairs. Document after document passed in a mist before her eyes, but at last the deed was delivered into her hands. Holding it tightly against her, she stood up.

"When may I take actual possession?" she asked.

"Madame is the owner of Virelay and all it contains from this moment," said M'sieur Botquelin sadly. "M'sieur D'Urville has already sent full instructions to the woman in charge."

In the morning Barbara, surprising Marcia in the act of packing all her possessions with the aid of the hotel maid, stood rooted in the doorway.

"Marcia, what does it mean? You're not taking everything! Marcia, are you going today?"

"Yes, Barbara. Let the children think you're staying here. Tomorrow I'll send Sam in to move you."

"O!" gasped Barbara. "It's so horribly sudden!"

"Sudden things hurt least," said Marcia.

The great châteaux of France are always surprising, however often seen. They leap to the eye and make the mind gasp with visions of bygone splendor. But it is the small châteaux, hidden and unexpected jewels of architecture, that strike at the heart with their air of embedded beauty. Of such was Virelay, and, coming upon it suddenly, even the children were spellbound. Marcia left them outside in Sam's care to explore the grounds while she went within.

A soured concierge admitted her to a square hallway rising by shallow steps to a pillared rotunda with an arched roof. It was arranged as a lounge and opened to the right through glass doors on an imposing dining hall and to the left, through a library, into a formal drawing room.

She stood quietly, supporting herself with an uplifted hand against one of the pillars, because her wildest dreaming had fallen short of the mark.

Presently she was shown up a spiral stairway whose stone steps attested to five centuries of wear. If the intimate air of the ground floor had given her pause, how describe the shock of passing from perfectly appointed guest rooms into the outraged privacy of M'sieur D'Urville's personal domain!

In his anteroom she winced at sight of an amber cigaret holder, deeply colored and well bitten, lying on an ash tray. But, entering the bedroom, she recoiled violently from the impact of a dozen shocks in one. On the dressing table lay monogrammed military brushes. On the floor beside a deep fauteuil was placed a pair of man-sized slippers. From the slanting racks within a closet shone boots and shoes beneath a maze of hanging suits and dressing gowns.

Color stained her cheeks a deep red as understanding flooded over her—not hers the outrage; she had been slapped by a distant hand. She turned the flame of her anger on the concierge.

"What is the meaning of this?"

"M'sieur is a man of honor," whispered the woman, frightened. "M'sieur instructed me that, since madame had bought Virelay with all it contained, no object of any sort was to be removed."

• • •

WITHIN ten minutes Marcia had established telephone connection with M'sieur D'Urville's Paris address. "Who is speaking?" she demanded.

"It is Victor, madame."

"Are you M'sieur D'Urville's servant?"

"Yes, madame."

"Take a message, please. Inform M'sieur D'Urville that Madame Maxon expects him to present himself at Virelay at the earliest possible moment or suffer the consequences of his cowardice."

"But, madame——" began Victor's horrified voice.

Marcia heard no more; she rang off, passed out of the house, and started pacing up and down in the rectangle of the court. The children soon spied her and came rushing pell-mell to seize her hands and her skirt.

"Mother," cried Philip, "there's two horses and a high gig and saddles and everything!"

"There's a garden," gasped Winifred, "with vegetables and flowers mixed—millions of flowers. Bushes that smell."

Bruce looked down at mud-soaked sandals and socks, then laughed up into her face. "I been wading."

"He got away from me, ma'am," said Sam apologetically, "but I caught him before he could dive."

"Sam," asked Marcia, "do you know your way around the forest of Chantilly?"

"Enough to come out where I went in."

"Take the children for a drive. Don't come back before one."

She wandered around the grounds for an hour, then went into the house and was standing in the stately drawing room when the concierge, a curious look in her eyes, announced the arrival of her erstwhile master. Marcia did not hurry. She lingered for a moment in one of the balconies, then passed slowly through the library. Entering the rotunda, she came face to face with M'sieur D'Urville. He had not sat down and stood negligently, his hands folded over his stick and a crushed hat.

"Pierre Fauçaud Lucien d'Urville," he announced unsmilingly. With an indefinable suggestion of disdain he added, "Commanded to appear by Madame Maxon."

"Yes," said Marcia, controling her voice with difficulty. "Will you follow me, please?"

She led the way upstairs and toward his private quarters. In the anteroom she stopped and looked down steadily at the amber cigaret holder. After a pause he shrugged his shoulders, picked up the offending object, and thrust it in his pocket. He stopped in the doorway and permitted his gaze to travel from dressing table to slippers to closet while she watched the unchanging blank expression of his face with mounting anger.

"You must excuse me," he murmured. "I abhor bulging pockets."

Marcia rounded on him and plunged her gaze into his cavernous eyes, forcing them to come to grips. "M'sieur," she said, "it is true I bought Virelay with all it contained, but one thing you failed to deliver—one thing that must have lived and breathed beneath this roof. Call it courtesy, though I can think of many other names—kindness, understanding, the sympathy that likes the human family whether we're French, American, black, yellow, or white. You're intelligent, since evidently you knew not only what today meant to me but how to stab my pleasure in the back. Perfect moments are so rare! It was cruel to reach out to destroy mine."

"Cruelty is a necessary adjunct to strategy," said D'Urville quietly, but his eyes seemed to be slowly stirring into life.

Marcia stared at him. "I'm not in the mood for riddles."

"Nor I," said D'Urville. "I did what I did with the express purpose of having you send for me."

"Why?" asked Marcia.

She was bewildered not only by what he said but because his eyes had suddenly become enormous, boundless, in the sense she could see nothing else. To add to her confusion, his voice when he answered seemed separate, coming from far away.

"Put yourself in my place. Repeat two words—money, Virelay—and try to make them sound alike! For years Virelay, so quiet, so near to Paris, has been part of my heart. Do you begin to understand?"

"No," she said, troubled, "not yet."

"The unequal combat," he murmured, "beauty in the scales against cash. Make yourself heavy, beauty—swell, clog your intestines, ooze fat, fight for your life against gold or turn harlot and die."

"O!" gasped Marcia.

"Ugly words," he admitted in a colorless tone. "They soiled my mind as I lay awake thinking of the trick by which Virelay had been torn away. So I planned another trick, not for revenge, as you imagine, but for my own salvation. You still don't understand my childish hope?" he asked, his somber eyes abruptly illumined by a smile.

CONFOUNDED by that smile, she could not answer and merely shook her head.

"I conceived the idea," he continued, "that if I could see a parvenue in the act of strutting into possession within these walls, memory itself would die from laughing and leave me in peace."

"O!" breathed Marcia, her eyes alight.

"Thank you for not laughing, madame. I was wrong—how wrong only you and I know. I withdraw all my rancor and beg your forgiveness. Be at home in this place, for the setting befits you."

Marcia's lips parted and trembled, only to remain speechless. As if driven to expression by some other means, she extended both hands. He had to drop his stick and hat to take them. The ghost of a smile still haunted his eyes as he looked down curiously at her fingers. Then, as though she were a little girl, he laid her hands one over the other, pressed them, and let them fall.

Through weeks and months that simple action was to grow steadily in importance as a symbol, for it comprised a true definition of friendship, boiled down to five words: a condition, not an experience. From the moment D'Urville sat down to lunch on that first day with Marcia and her children he became a pillar of strength, a guide so unobtrusive she was scarcely aware of guidance. Casually he could mention the Ecole des Roches for Philip and suggest the perfect governess for Winifred, two bridges that otherwise would have taken weeks of reconnoitering to cross.

Peace descended upon Marcia—a peace so continuous and lasting it actually obscured the threatening thunderheads of the past. Barbara, cradled in the genial attitude of doctors and nurses of a clinic whose matter-of-fact air reduced a social complexity to the simple equation of mother and child, gave birth to a son and named him Michael. Creighton Hadley, pricked out of torpor by a cryptic cablegram from Guy McNeir, returned to New York.

Creighton had spent one month at Chichenitza, another among the ruins near Quiche, and three more in the vicinity of Copan the inexhaustible. But somehow the taste of ashes was in his mouth. Booty which once would have linked him to the general enthusiasm—translucent marble urns, necklaces of jade, a unique and damaged bit of pottery—had left him cold. Why? Because he had twisted the joy of discovery to his own ends. There was no lying to himself; he had been grubbing not for the honor of science but to escape the shame of defeat and the disturbing memory of a woman seen only twice.

So far as Mrs. Maxon was concerned the cure had worked, for an absence of months has a way of wrenching perspective back into place. He recollected wonderingly the moment of their first meeting. He must have been in the grip of the astonishing receptivity which fills a man fresh from the wilds and in turn lends him the allure of a charged magnet.

Suppose he had succeeded in his effort to see more of her; probably it would have developed into a head-on collision between diminishing attraction and the return of common sense. His eyes wandered around his familiar living room. Anyway, common sense had won out; it was here; he was willing to wager he could look her in the eye and feel no thrill.

Guy McNeir, with Red O'Malley trailing him like a ghostly shadow, was shown in. His costly clothes, so carelessly worn it amounted to an affectation, retained their ancient air as the badge of a reporter always on the job. But the man inside was somehow changed, though still dynamic. His face lacked its habitual cynicism and had become penetrable, suggesting the surprising acquisition, unbeknown to himself, of a soul. When he extended his hand its wiry grip actually imparted warmth.

"Hello, Creight. Glad you got here."

Hadley glanced over his shoulder toward O'Malley, but O'Malley only nodded. With his hands in his pockets, he stood looking around the room until he spotted the most comfortable chair, walked to it, and sank down in sections.

"Let's all sit down," suggested Hadley.

"Sure," said Guy absently. Abruptly his expression had grown troubled. This man whom he had greeted so familiarly was a stranger. But that often happened—even the oldest friends sometimes have to go through a period of acquaintance after a long separation. Only half reassured, he started pacing the room. "Have a good trip?"

"You don't give a rap what kind of a trip I had," declared Hadley. "What's on your mind? What's come over you, anyway? You've changed."

"Me?" said McNeir, pausing to stare at him. "I'm one person who could never change."

O'Malley laughed, a low cackle so strange to Hadley's ears that he faced about as though pulled by a string. His wonder was only increased to find O'Malley's expression as mirthless as an owl's.

"Did you laugh?" he demanded.

"Yeah," declared O'Malley solemnly, "I laughed."

Creighton, looking back at McNeir for help, suddenly needed none; he understood O'Malley and that the joke of imperception was on Guy. "What's happened?" he asked sharply. "Why did you send me that crazy cable?"

"To bring you back."

"Of course. But what for?"

McNeir's face renewed its look of distress. Usually so sure of himself, he was in doubt—thrown off balance by a factor he could not have foreseen. Was this the Creighton Hadley with which he had exchanged so many intimacies? But the strange phase would surely pass. He halted his nervous pacing and faced about.

"Caglieri fired two of his operatives," he stated.

"Caglieri?" repeated Creighton, for a moment at a loss. "O, yes, the crime wizard. What of it?"

"He sacked them for falling down on the follow-up of a job. But I'd like to know if you're still interested."

"In what?"

"Who killed Hugh."

"O!" said Hadley after a pause. "So that's it. Yes, I'm interested—decidedly. Spill the story."

Again McNeir hesitated, studying the hardness in Hadley's face with puzzled eyes. "I'd rather show you," he said finally, as one who feels a need to gain time. "Can you have Bert bring the car around?"

THEY were off inside ten minutes through the lovely April day, moist but with deep blue patches gleaming through frowning clouds. The car sped across the river and headed toward Roslyn. In less than an hour it drew up in a bay before an impressive wrought iron gate, locked and held by a chain already beginning to flake with rust.

McNeir, followed by Creighton and O'Malley, climbed the wall and led the way. Purposely he made a detour past the tangled wreck of last year's gardens, the closed stables, and a drained swimming pool before he circled the shuttered house and came to a halt before it. A sadness fell on Hadley. Wherever he looked he beheld the smudged and tear-stained face of abandoned beauty. Suddenly he straightened.

"Who lived here?" he demanded.

"This is what's left of Shively," said McNeir, "the home of Marcia Maxon." It took Hadley a moment to absorb the mere statement of fact; then he staggered inwardly under the impact of a stream of implications. "Caglieri fired his men," continued Guy, "because it took them six months to find out the coop was empty. If they hadn't happened along on a joy ride it might have been six years."

"I'm beginning to come to," said Creighton slowly. "Servants?"

"Gone. Not a trace. Ordinarily they would have listed themselves immediately at the best agencies, but they didn't."

"Well," said Creighton, "what's the answer?"

McNeir hesitated, the look of doubt still haunting his eyes. "There's only one," he said at last, "and you know it as well as I do. Why make me the goat? He was your nephew, not mine."

Creighton eyed him curiously. "That's right, so I'll say it for both of us. This house is an empty shell because somebody who lived in it killed Hugh or had him killed. Isn't that what Caglieri thinks?"

"I suppose so. How can he think anything else?"

"Is he active?"

"I don't know."

Creighton's head went up in an odd movement of alertness. "That's a bit too thick," he stated. "Of course you know."

McNeir started away, then turned back, like a man trying to make up his mind. Not once had Creighton called him Guy — he hadn't called him anything—just treated him with the impersonality of a bureau with drawers to be pulled out and pushed in. Anger began to stir in him and tinged his tone when he spoke.

"It's for you to say how active Caglieri will be. What's your interest in who killed Hugh? Nothing but the universal itch to play detective."

"That's a strange request to come from you," said Creighton, a sudden hard gleam of perception in his eyes.

"Request?" exploded McNeir. "I didn't make any request."

"O, yes, you did. I can't imagine why, but you're asking me to get Caglieri to lay off."

McNeir colored violently. "Let's forget about me," he suggested. "It's where you stand that matters."

"I stand where I always stood. If I can bring a murderer to justice I'll certainly do it."

"O, stuff!" groaned McNeir. "If a cub reporter, wet behind the ears, pulled that copy-book bunk he'd get kicked downstairs. You have a brain; why don't you use it when you talk?"

"Never mind the words," said Hadley, nettled. "You got what I meant, didn't you?"

"Creight, for heaven's sake what's come over you? What's become of you? I don't know the cold fish you are today."

"Nor I what you've turned into," said Hadley.

"Listen," said Guy eagerly, still intent on conciliation. "On one side of the Atlantic you have a group of perfectly decent people injected with a familiar brand of snake poison, on the other the snake—dead for eight months."

"My nephew."

"Yes, but he was slimy, and you know it."

Creighton colored violently. "My sister wasn't."

"Now, don't hand me that other one about the only mother you ever knew!" said Guy, only to realize too late how wrong he had gone.

"She was," said Hadley coldly. "I can't remember any other mother. Let's get out of here."

"No, no, Creight! Please don't hold that break against me. I didn't know, and I'm sorry."

"Forget it," said Creighton, "but let's get out anyway."

"Not until I've finished my say," said Guy. "Here's what I'm trying to get across: For once in my life I'm willing to be a traitor to myself and my job. I'll pass up my half if you will yours."

"No!" said Creighton.

THE promptness of the decision infuriated McNeir. "Now, get this, Creight. On this side of the Atlantic we've got the muck of a murder and on the other a bunch of clean people. If you and Caglieri want to bucket up the muck, carry it across, and pour it on their heads I can't stop you. But if you do, if the story breaks, by heaven it will break through me. I'll be there, and it will be a great story—you're right it will! I'll spread it in headlines all over the face of the earth, and I'm warning you I'll tell it in my own way."

Creighton smiled, but it was the cold smile of a fighter on the way to battle. "I can't see why I thought I liked you. You're the first man with nerve enough to try to throw a scare into me and think it would stick!"

McNeir cast him an impatient look tinged with regret. "All right, Creight, stay blind and be damned to you. Now I'm ready to go."

McNeir, Hadley, and O'Malley rode back to town in a silence so absolute it became a refuge like a place with walls. Bert, apparently on his own initiative, returned by the Williamsburg bridge and drew up before McNeir's office. Guy and O'Malley both got out and lingered on the sidewalk.

"I ought to send you after him, Red."

"What for?" asked O'Malley. "To find out where he's going?"

"You've guessed it."

"Why waste my precious time? It was written in his face. He's on his way to see Caglieri, and after that he'll catch a boat."

"Where to?"

"Europe, of course, and France is my bet."

McNeir scowled. "If you're right, I'll have to go, too."

"Then you might as well pack your bags."

"Two things worry me, Red. One is. I can't be here and there at the same time."

"What's the other?"

"You."

"Anything you'd do for that woman, those children, and that girl I'd do twice as hard. Quit worrying about me. As for Caglieri, he's my natural meat."

"Thanks, Red. You've never broken a promise yet, and you're promising a whale of a lot. I feel better."

A smile, a sort of transparency, invaded O'Malley's face, illuminating his bloodless features with blinding effect. "You're the one man who doesn't have to thank me, Guy, for anything or ever. When you guaranteed my lease and board for my natural life you crushed the worm of labor and watered the roots of my dreams. If I step out of them for a while it's because I want to."

McNeir nodded, but his eyes remained clouded. "What's happened to Creight, Red? I don't know him any more, and he doesn't want to know me."

"He's still there, but he's buried," said O'Malley. "He's the kind that stays slapped for a long while."

At that moment Hadley was stepping out of his car. He waited until Bert was out of sight, then hailed a taxi and proceeded to Caglieri's office. Presently he was seated in a chair beside the desk where months ago had reposed a certain brass penguin by Brancusi.

"I was just thinking of you, Mr. Hadley," said Caglieri, "wondering where you were."

"I've been away," said Creighton. "Down in Central America."

"When did you get back?"

"Last night."

"Anything on your mind?"

"Not especially, but, as I was passing through town, I thought I'd drop in and ask if there's anything new."

"Not a thing," said Caglieri. "Nothing at all."

"O!" said Creighton, somewhat taken aback. He rose. "In that case there's no sense in wasting your time."

"Aw, sit down. Who told you about the Maxon place being shut up?"

"Guy McNeir," said Creighton, resuming his seat.

"That bozo's got me guessing," said Caglieri, frowning. "I used to think I knew him like a one-page book, but for a week now he's been going dictionary on me."

"Perhaps it's relief."

"Relief from what?"

"From being suspected."

"Hell! Who ever suspected him? Not me. I knew no man done it from the start."

An Open Letter to Katharine Hepburn

KATHARINE HEPBURN

Dear Katharine: The second major cycle of your life has just begun, and it promises to be even more active than your life up to now. It starts with increased artistic success, but also with somewhat tangled paths concerning legal matters for the next two years unless you are more than usually careful to have everything well understood by all who are involved—including personal and matrimonial relations. By the way, as a detail of 1939 make note that you will feel too extravagant, and pull in a few sails. With best wishes,

Doughnuts to Dollars Is Salvation Army Plan

By Betty Browning.

"Dollars to doughnuts" will be reversed tomorrow when the women's division of the Salvation Army holds a Doughnut day throughout the city. Some 2,500 members of clubs, parent-teacher associations, and American Legion auxiliaries will help the Army sell paper symbols of the doughnuts that won the soldiers' appreciation of warm hearted Salvation Army tactics during the world war.

This is the first tag day to be sponsored by the Army in eight years and is necessitated by increasing demands of the current depression.

Women without food and shelter for their children, unmarried mothers, and unemployed women are among those to whom the Army extends a hand with the coöperation of the women's division.

Sharing in the proceeds of Doughnut day will be the Salvation Army Home and Hospital at 5040 North Pulaski road, where unmarried mothers are cared for and are fitted to take a normal place in the community.

Here is exemplified the Army's warm, personal approach to unfortunate persons. The mothers, whether educated or underprivileged, 14 to 40, are admitted to the home without question. Often they come months before the birth of their babies, and always they remain until at least six weeks afterward to permit them to adjust their lives.

The mothers keep their babies, in most instances. They are taught how to care for their children and, when it is necessary, are trained to earn a living and later are helped to find work. Identities are rigidly protected, but a spirit of friendliness prevails. There is a corner where gifts made by the girls to the home are assembled. Every Christmas many of them bring their babies back to a reunion party.

The home has cared for 4,500 girls since it was opened shortly after the Army was established in Chicago fifty-three years ago. Only seventy-five can be cared for at a time, and girls often await admittance at the Army's emer-

Parisian Elite Meets as Monday Night Club

By May Birkhead.

PARIS

The season, burgeoning like the trees in the Champs Elysées, shows signs of being rather second empirish, with a touch of truly Parisian exclusiveness and a suggestion of Viennese nostalgia. This turn to mundane activity here is the work of the Monday Night club, Le Club du Lundi, bent on making the early night of each week an affair for the elect. Monday always has been a smart night socially in Paris, nearly as much so as Friday. Then the fashionables throng the opera or whatever attraction seems worthy of their presence. Hence the Monday Night club is creating no precedent in its choice of a date, but it is justifying its existence by giving its membership that exclusiveness dear to the hearts of the élite.

Some years ago the Vicomte Bénoist d'Azy, whose young American wife, the former Catherine Dews, has had much publicity these days for rescuing her Scotch terrier by jumping in a pond in the Bois du Boulogne, where he had been thrown by exasperated fishermen, helped to organize the Gardenia group. Its membership became so extensive that its exclusiveness went by the board. Recently the Club du Lundi members met at Les Ambassadeurs.

The scene was one of great beauty and charm. The white and black note predominated in the women's dresses, most of them the no-shouldered, bouffant-skirt type so familiar in the celebrated Winterhalter paintings of the second empire, and many of the fair ones need not have taken a back seat, as far as pulchritude was concerned, for the Empress Eugénie. The duchess of Windsor was, of course, one of the most observed. She and the duke have gone out little in recent days, but on this Monday night they were the principal guests in a group of which the Marquis and Marquise de Polignac were acting as hosts. The duchess had her dark hair well caught up from the ears and built up high to accentuate the effect of width. Comte de Castellane, Anna Gould's son by her first husband, and his personable wife, her dark beauty set off by a white dress with large black bow at the back, also were in the De Polignac party.

Above: Tiny Denise Sullivan and her mother, Mrs. Edmond M. Sullivan, make a charming subject for any portrait artist. Infant Denise is the namesake granddaughter of Judge Denis E. Sullivan.

Right: Mrs. C. Victor Essroger Jr. is a member of the Kenwood Social Service center of the Infant Welfare society, which, with two other centers, the South Shore and the Beverly Hills, will benefit from a horse show at the South Shore Country club June 11 and 12.

June Wedding Plans Occupy Social Throne

By Cousin Eve.

Life flows on like a river, hence wedding cards aplenty for June weddings. Love, the conqueror! Mr. and Mrs. L. Stuart Wing of New York are marrying their daughter Beatrice Kunhardt on June 16 in St. Bartholomew chapel to Samuel Culbertson II. of Louisville, a handsome, gallant laddie, son of Mrs. Wallace Kirk of Chicago.

On June 25 'way down in Pleasant Valley, Vt., Mr. and Mrs. James B. Forgan of Chicago are having the wedding of their daughter Mary Ellen to G. Bronson Farnam of New Haven. The Forgans seem to have started something with this country wedding, for the Edward L. Ryersons Jr. are having a wedding for Nancy a few days later at Marion, Mass., when she marries George A. Ranney Jr.

The Forgan-Farnam wedding will be charming, I know. Margaret Forgan is keeping her newly bought farm quite rural, the place she espied while motoring along a quiet road, when she remarked to herself, "I have wanted a place like that all my life." And forthwith she bought it.

Jim Forgan has been busy ever since, putting in floors and cellars, ceilings, and steam heat, electricity, and what have you? Recently the great big barn got a roof and a floor, too, for if it rains the ceremony will be in the barn, because the house isn't big enough for all the guests who say they are going down.

If it is clear, the ceremony will take place under a beautiful beech tree in the back garden just in front of a stone well. Mrs. Forgan has had a landscape gardener, not to put in lily pools and things, but to have all the stone walls in commission; to start the grass growing as it should and to see that June roses, honeysuckle, peonies, and bridal wreath are all doing their stuff. Back of the Forgan farm are the Green mountains, and Cambridge is the nearest town.

All of the Meekers and the Forgans and their collaterals will be there, and an unusually large bridal party.

Joan Ryerson's wedding to George W. Brewster Jr. of Boston last Saturday in Trinity church, Lake Forest, stirred up that fashionable suburb no end. There were several large house parties for Chicago guests, dancing by night, luncheons, and the beautiful ceremony itself.

The bride was given away by her brother, Anthony Ryerson. Her uncle, Ambrose Cramer Jr., was a notable head usher. And her uncles and aunts, the Joseph and the Edward L. Ryersons Jr. gave the large luncheon at Onwentsia which preceded the church services, and a not large but very gay reception followed at the house of the bride's mother, Mrs. Donald Ryerson. Feminine high spots after the bride were her mother, most lovely in gray, and Mary Meeker Cramer, a vision in pink. Mrs. Howard Linn, veiled and done exquisitely in pink, and Mrs. Amory Perkins of Virginia, in violet, were much admired. Mrs. Laurance Armour's Saturday luncheon was for her, as well as Mrs. Clive Runnell's Saturday night dance at Shore Acres.

The church decorations were modernistic and George Brewster takes his bride to live in a Boston apartment utterly modern. He is a rising young architect. Mrs. Ryerson belongs to the hunting set in Lake Forest and rides sometimes in Ireland as well as at Middleburg, Va., and Aiken.

News comes variously from England of the great success in London of the new ambassador, Joseph T. Kennedy. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy have already dined and slept at Windsor at a small week-end party with the young king and queen, and the ladies of the family were presented at an early court at Buckingham palace.

A cable from Paris announces the death Sunday of Mrs. Herman Gade, the beloved Alice King of Chicago. Mrs. Gade lost her health in the terrific heat of Brazil years ago, when her husband was minister from Norway at Rio. In the moderate climate of northern France she made a good recovery, however, and with great pluck carried on as hostess in the ancient moated domaine near Versailles, becoming one of the admired and fêted figures of Paris society.

The duke of Windsor wanted to lease Mrs. Gade's old château for five years, but wouldn't take it without a swimming pool, so the deal was off.

Alice Gade was always her American self in foreign life, and true to the high ideals that made her so precious.

The Ravinia luncheon at the Casino last week was a stirring event, where were gathered in high feather one hundred of Ravinia's committee at various tables. There were patrons, workers, music critics and godmothers, meaning Mrs. Eckstein and Mrs. Robert Wood who sat at the head table with J. Eugene Davis, chairman of Ravinia; Edward L. Ryerson Jr., new president of our Chicago Symphony [what a man!], and Howell Murray, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Mrs. Edward Moore and other dignitaries.

A $40,000 guarantee fund was raised in the twinkling of an eye, and now the trick is to sell all the concert tickets. Which should be easy with such attractions as Guest Conductors Artur Rodzinski, Goossens, Eugene Ormandy and Van Hoogstraten.

Young Narcissa Thorne was there pinch-hitting for her sister, Mrs. Corson Ellis, who is Lake Forest chairman of these summer concerts which begin June 30.

Durand Smith left the iron business for an hour at luncheon time to push his pet project. And George Voevodsky was there, and Henry Voegeli.

A gay party last week for a popular diplomat here from Washington was Mr. and Mrs. Pero Cabric's in honor of the Jugo-Slav minister, Constantin Fotich. The Cabrics live at 219 Lake Shore drive and their apartment was running over with cosmopolites. The hostess is an extremely pretty woman, a fascinating type with jade green eyes and black hair, most vivacious and charming.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter in dashing black and white print with lilies of the valley growing from the crown of her hat was smiling at M. Fotich when I arrived. John Alden Carpenter, it seems, has been decorated by Prince Paul of Jugo-Slavia for his musical compositions, played last spring throughout the country, and they are naturally very happy about it. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kirk were there, Mrs. Lewis Bernays, Mr. and Mrs. René Weiller, Mr. and Mrs. Waclav Gavronski, Dr. Emil Baer, German consul general; Mrs. Andrew Sherriff, Mrs. Edward Leight, and Dr. and Mrs. E. V. L. Brown, lately home from Egypt.

News of the Odyssey cruise, that fascinating giro down the Adriatic and among the isles of Greece, says that Chicago will be well represented this year. Mrs. Arthur Bissell and Miss Florence Bartlett are going, Miss Cornelia Conger, Mrs. Jacob Baur, and from New York Miss Anne Morgan and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt are regulars every year.

NOW A NEW YORKER

Mrs. R. W. Russell Powell, the former Jane Carr Dahl, became a New Yorker when she became Mrs. Powell. She is a daughter of the George V. Dahls of Chicago.

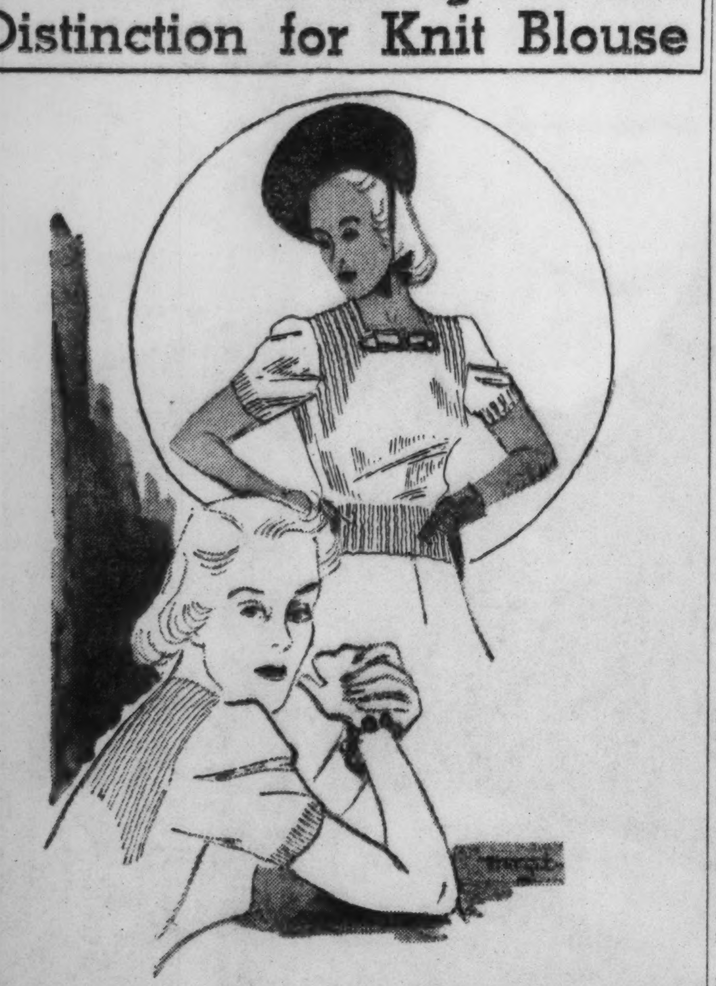
Graduated Ribbing Creates Distinction for Knit Blouse



By Jean Macdonald.

With every hour of every day the fancy for hand knitted clothes grows apace because of the beautiful yarns available and the attractive and highly styled garments which may be produced at small cost and with little time. Matched ensembles for spring and summer just will not be denied in the knitting field. Sweaters have skirts of wool fabrics in straight lines, plaited skirts which are full to the nth degree yet present a slim, pencil-like silhouette. Details in the blouse are the main thought, but they must follow all rules of simplicity.

The crêpe blouse illustrated today is a shining example of what may be utterly simple in stitch, style, and design, yet it exudes all the charm and distinction in the world. The front of the blouse offers a new treatment of the tried and true knit 2, purl 2 ribbing. Starting at the sides and graduating, this same motif is carried out in the back. The ribbing is low at the sides and is decreased about two inches, while the entire back from the underarm to neck is done in knit 2 and purl 2. The result is one of those garments at which every one will turn for a second glance. The flat tailored bow at the neck is done in stockinette stitch edged in a row of single crochet with both ends fastened at the corners of the square neck.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for knitting the sweater with graduated ribbing on front and back, illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

It is necessary that the following measurements be included:

Underarm to waist..................

Visitors Linger Longer in Miami

Miami, Fla., June 4.—Vacationers from Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, and Wisconsin spent an average of 59.9 days each in the city of Miami last winter. This was disclosed today by the Miami Chamber of Commerce. The figure compared with an average stay of 52 days each for visitors from New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

Longer visits were made possible by speedier train, bus, plane, and boat schedules, a chamber official pointed out, with the result that hotels were filled and there was a brisk demand for apartments and private dwellings.

Parties Signal Close of the Club Season

With their members already in holiday mood, a number of organizations are planning parties before they disband for the summer. The Frauen-Verein of the German Old People's home will give a card party at 1:30 o'clock next Friday at the Hotel Sheridan Plaza, but this event will have a serious as well as a frivolous purpose, since the home in Forest Park will receive proceeds of the event. There will be door and table prizes and refreshments.

Organized in 1882, the Frauen-Verein dedicated its first home in Forest Park in 1886. This building had a capacity of seventy-five. In 1909 a building to care for the infirm was erected, and a physician and three nurses placed in charge. Another building was added in 1914, and still another sixty-two room addition was built in 1931. At present 284 men and women are cared for at the home.

Mrs. Clara C. Mumm is chairman of the card party, with Mrs. Emil Dirks and Mrs. Emma T. Stierlen co-chairmen. Miss Helen Wilhelm, Miss Gertrude Wilhelm, Mrs. A. Faller, Mrs. L. W. Kaeuffl, Mrs. P. Wissmann, Mrs. G. Gerts, Miss C. Hempe, and Mrs. J. B. Rohm are serving on the committee.

Mrs. Theodore Kuehl is president of the home. Other officers are Dr. Kathryn Swartz, first vice president; Mrs. Babette Straub, second vice president; Miss Elsie Mendius, recording secretary; Mrs. Howard A. Gaebel, financial secretary, and Miss Anna Juergens, treasurer.

Another interesting benefit will be a spring luncheon and a lecture by Ben Abramson, under the auspices of the Friends of American Writers, at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Shawnee Country club in Wilmette. Mr. Abramson will speak on "The Men Behind the Books." Miss Marjorie Mayer, contralto, will sing.

Mrs. Phyllis Wermuth.

Mrs. Phyllis Wermuth is in charge of the program, and Mrs. Charles Stresenreuter, 2440 Lake View avenue, is receiving reservations.

This is to be the first of a series of events planned by the Friends of American Writers to raise money for the annual award given through the Foundation Fund for Literature, sponsored by the society. This year $1,000 was given to William Maxwell for his novel, "They Came Like Swallows."

The Illinois Colony Club and Home for the Aged will hold its annual picnic Wednesday on the grounds of the home, 7515 Ogden avenue. Mrs. Harley L. Goul is commander in chief.

Mrs. Clarence Cahill, newly elected president of the Women of Rotary, will give a luncheon for officers, board members, and committee chairmen at noon tomorrow in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Alpha chapter of Sigma Lambda Phi sorority will spend Friday at Mrs. Frank Neiburger's home at Long Beach, Ind. New officers will be elected.

A reunion luncheon for women who lived in the Women's Residence hall at the University of Illinois during their college days will be held at 1 o'clock Saturday at Mandel Brothers' store. Mrs. Homer Barnes is chairman of this annual event.

Assisting her are Dr. Dorothy Welker, Mrs. G. A. Conklin, Mrs. W. V. Lesak, north side; Mrs. Albert Hocking, Mrs. Carleton D. Northam, south side; Mrs. Earl Norwood, Miss Maude Hawkes, Miss Charlotte Fletcher, Mrs. F. J. Krupka, and Miss Eleanor Lonek, west side and west suburban area.

Although the Daughters of the British Empire in Illinois will not give their annual bazar until November, the executive committee in charge of that event is arranging a preliminary event this week. A card party will be given Tuesday at the Medinah club, 505 North Michigan avenue. Mrs. John W. Aspley is chairman of the party.

The bazar will be held three days in November at the Congress hotel, under Mrs. P. Mather's chairmanship. Proceeds will go to the British Old People's home at Hollywood, Ill.

Eighty underprivileged children were guests of Alpha Delta Mu fine arts sorority at a performance of "Sleeping Beauty" by the Junior Players' guild yesterday, and will be guests again at "Rumpelstilskin" next Saturday. The Chicago Woman's Club theater, 62 East 11th street, is the scene of both performances.

The sorority's final meting of the season will be held at 2:30 o'clock today in room 706 of the Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue. Miss Rhoda Gomberg is president.

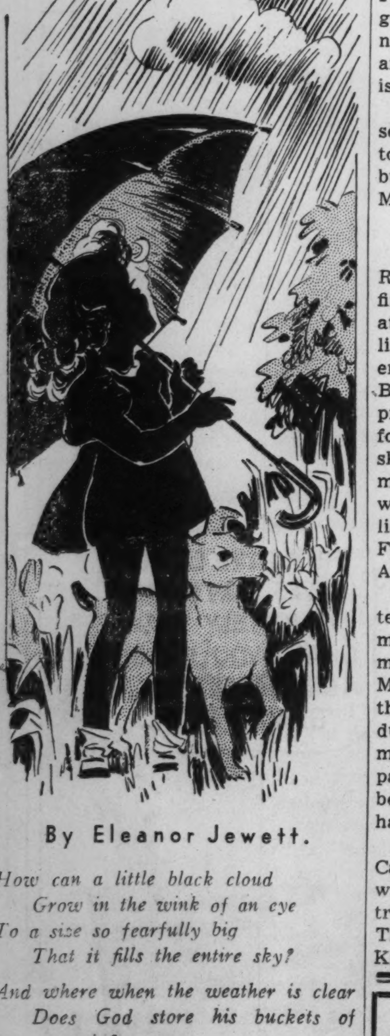
Four Chicago and suburban "Music Re-View" groups will unite for a final luncheon and program Tuesday at the Oak Park Country club. Madeline Pfeiffer and Lois Watson, singers; Willis Charkowsky, pianist, and Betty Younker, violinist, will give the program. Mrs. Caroline Encell, founder of the groups, will give short sketches of the Russian, classic, and modern French composers, whose works will be presented. Mrs. William Hernon, Mrs. Robert Butts, Mrs. Frederick Lewis, and Miss Caroline Appleton are chairmen of the groups.

The woman's board of the Presbyterian hospital will hold its final meeting before the summer recess tomorrow morning at the nurses' home. Most of the members will carry from the meeting articles to be completed during the vacation months. Pajamas and other garments for needy patients and knitted baby jackets will be distributed by Mrs. John W. Bingham and her sewing committee.

The Juniors of the Illinois Club for Catholic Women Thursday evening will hear Miss Marcia Rice give a travelog of her recent world tour. The meeting will be held at the Knickerbocker hotel.

Summer Storm



By Eleanor Jewett.

How can a little black cloud
Grow in the wink of an eye
To a size so fearfully big
That it fills the entire sky?

And where when the weather is clear
Does God store his buckets of rain?
I have looked all around in the air
And there's no storage-tank, that's plain.

Then lightning and thunder, those two!
Where are they when they are away?
Oh, there's plenty to puzzle a child I think
In just a plain rainy down day!

Woman Scales 130 Mountains in Ten Years; It's a Hobby

Miss Georgia Engelhart, who collects mountain tops, recently returned from the Canadian Rockies, where she made her 130th ascent in America. Miss Engelhart has devoted less than ten years to her hobby, but already she has reached the point where she is bored unless her climb is a "first ascent"—at least for a woman.

Fortunately, North America is a big place, and contains many mountain tops, she says, so isolated that she can hope for many more of her preferred "firsts."

Slim, blonde and vivacious, Miss Engelhart regards her achievements without undue solemnity.

"Why do I like climbing? Why do you like bridge? I don't know! It's just a disease and chronic, I fear," she said. "Perhaps it's the excitement, perhaps it's the beauty or the escape from conventional comforts. But it's not very hard, and this year was pretty dull, really, for we climbed only thirty-three peaks, when we should have done sixty for all the effort we put forth. The weather was atrocious—not rain, but snow, real blizzards. And there is no use climbing mountains when there is no view."

The mountaineer said she had started at the end of June, going north from Lake Louise in British Columbia with a pack train. In the Freshfield glacier group northwest of Lake Louise she made three "first ascents for a woman—Mount Freshfield itself [11,000 feet], and Prior peak [10,700 feet], and an unnamed 10,000 foot peak.

"No, I have no ambition to climb Mount Everest. It is too far away and much too dangerous. My real ambition is to do some first ascents in Oregon, where there are some very attractive rock needles. And then in the Selkirks, too, there are lots of 'firsts' left—lovely mountains with lots of snow and ice and solid granite."

Memorial Day Opens Season at Coronado

By Ruth Billheimer.

SAN DIEGO, CAL. With a twenty-one gun salute from the veranda of the Coronado Yacht club, ensigns were run up on scores of seacraft as a gesture opening the fiftieth annual summer season at Hotel de Coronado Sunday of the Memorial day week-end.

All day Sunday and Monday the taut-sailed boats scudded over the turning basin and out in San Diego harbor, which describes a crescent around Coronado Island and floats the somnolent sea dogs of the nation.

The navy set had broken up considerably the week preceding Memorial day, but at Hotel de Coronado Admiral Edward C. Kalbfus, commander of the battle force from off the flagship U. S. S. California, and Mrs. Kalbfus were honored at a dinner party given by Rear Admiral Walton R. Sexton. Thirty guests were present, including Rear Admiral and Mrs. Harold R. Stark, who recently returned from Honolulu.

Sunday evening the celebrated Crown room, adjoining the main dining room, was the scene of a merry dinner-dance for members of the Yacht club and their guests following a cocktail party at the Beach and Tennis club, which spreads across the sand to the west of the hotel. It was an annual occasion and Commodore and Mrs. Harry H. Bissell were official hosts. The former awarded prizes at the dinner to winners of the regatta, which had filled the anchorage with craft moored virtually nose to tail.

Everything about the hotel, which has sheltered presidents and royalty, including the duke of Windsor when, as the prince of Wales, he first met Wallis Warfield Simpson at Coronado, gives an air of spaciousness. It is famous for its long balconies that form four façades on the inner court. Here tropical trees, shrubs, and flowers lend an exotic air and the tall palms, their trunks festooned with flaming bougainvillaea, reach the topmost story.

The addition of the Beach and Tennis club, with its gay cabanas enclosing on three sides a pool of jade, and many other innovations were introduced by Stephen Wheeler Royce, well known in Chicago and across the country as the managing director of both the Coronado and Hotel Huntington in Pasadena. Albert Campione, also a great favorite, is the resident manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Royce mingled with the guests over the last week-end and will be spending increasingly more time at the popular spa during the advancing season.

Down also for Memorial day were the junior George Harton Singers of the Huntington and Pennsylvania, and the Lyndol L. Young family of Los Angeles, who are close friends of the junior Ernest Albert Bryants [Judy Tilt]. Mrs. George A. Ogle and Mrs. Andrew C. Volk, known as well to Chicago society as to California, were down for luncheon during the week.

Hollywood, too, was represented by the Boris Morros family; Travis Banton, well known designer, and Director Archie Mayo and Mrs. Mayo.

Motors and yachts brought most of the guests down from Los Angeles and outlying districts. Those who came down by automobile were able to enjoy virtually all of the hundred and more miles in full view of the blue Pacific via the coast highway, which carried them through picturesque Balboa and Laguna, San Clemente, Carlsbad by the Sea, Del Mar, and La Jolla. Each little coast town had put on its summer dress for the holiday.

Salvation Army to Raise Funds with Doughnuts

gency home for women and children at 1230 West Adams street.

More than 800 women and 150 children are taken care of at this emergency home during the year. Middle aged unemployed women are kept here at least four weeks to build them up physically and in morale. A normal point of view is restored through devices such as Saturday night parties which all the women share in planning. Every Sunday some thirty-five women who once lived at the home return for dinner, and four or five of them are guests every evening.

With the assistance of the women's division, 1,400 mothers and children will have at least a week's vacation this summer at the Army's Wonderland camp near Antioch, Ill. Groups of 200 will go up to camp each week beginning July 6.

The women's division also is particularly interested in the Salvation Army settlement at 3053 Normal avenue. A three-fold program provides a nursery for children of employed women; a dental and medical clinic, offering X-ray and physiotherapy treatments, and recreational and educational activities for 125 children.

Mrs. William S. Monroe, recently elected president of the women's division, is co-chairman of Doughnut day with Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen and vice president of the women's division. Others taking an active part in the tag day are Mrs. Doris L. All-Illinois Fine Art Society's 5th Salon Open

By Eleanor Jewett.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts has opened its fifth annual spring salon in the Stevens hotel and the exhibition is most attractive. Artists this year were limited to a single canvas and the result is that more painters are represented and their paintings are shown to better advantage. The pictures are more widely spaced than is usual, a feature to be applauded, as crowding a show always works against the individual canvas.

Mrs. Edwin N. Johnson, president of the All-Illinois and director of exhibitions, hung the current show and did a splendid job of it. She has mingled still life with portraiture and landscapes so that each gets its due and each kind of subject sets off its neighbor. There was a time when the various paintings were hung strictly within their own group, and, to be frank, the method played havoc with many a fine picture.

The exhibition has a number of brilliant paintings. It is pleasant in character and very suited to the time of year, having a host of decorative and colorful flower pictures and landscapes. Among the portraits two stand out. One is "Reverie," by Douglas Ewen, and the other is "Mrs. J. L. Kennedy," by Evelyn Bargelt. The "Reverie" is filled with a number of exquisite details, but the greatest interest centers in the animation of the face. Evelyn Bargelt gives us a most charming canvas with the figure on a hill top accompanied by a Russian wolf hound. The wind ruffles Mrs. Kennedy's head of short curls and her green jersey and gray skirt are wind-kissed. The effect of the portrait is similar to that evoked by a like composition painted several years ago by Ted Vognild of Mrs. Charles Peterson and her two wolf hounds.

"Equestrian," by Kenneth R. Barrick, solves a number of technical problems in its handling. It is interesting to see how he fits both the horse and rider into that narrow panel. "Robert Tate," by Nan Rice, is a vivid study of a young man in summer clothes. Very different is "A Dark Study," by Mary Stringfellow, an amusing painting of a Negro maid peeling apples. The "Portrait of a Little Boy," by Ted Vognild, and the naïve "Charlotte," by Mary B. Poull, both are attractive.

In the landscapes it is difficult to overlook "Storm in the Hills," by Anthony Buchta, "Thunderheads," by Arno Bretsnyder, "The First Snow," by E. G. Dannhausen, "Adirondacks," by Averil Courtney Conwell, "Season's Greetings," by Robert P. Kilbert, "The Garden of Santa Anita," by Charles P. Killgore, "The Blue Valley," by Mary Philp Lowell, "Fresh Snow," by Dale Nichols, "Old House, Taxco," by A. Orrin White, and "Back Yard Vespers," by Percy H. Sloan.

Among the still life compositions are many canvases which deserve more than a mere mention. There are many entrancing studies, including "Begonia on the Window," by Esther Liedholm Skeen, "Spring," by Ethel Porter, "Still Life," by Alice Mason, "A Bit of Mexico," by Nina K. Griffin, "Half a Yard of Tulips," by Berenice Newman, "Still Life," by Sadie Lowes, "October Harvest," by Zana Lucas, "Morning Glories," by Carolyn Hall, "Where Gardenias and Lantana Grow," by Florence Wilkins Furst, "Flowers," by Alice Ross Brening, "Japonica," by Minnie A. Carlson, and "When the Year Is Young Again," by Janet Bruce.

But the list of paintings which one does not like to miss is still incomplete, for no mention has been made of the intriguing little study of children by Adam Emory Albright or of the exquisite nude "Study in Sunlight," by Joseph Tomanek; of Ted Vognild's "Who Likes Wire Hairs?"; of the marine, "Storm Cloud Over the Atlantic," by Charles Hallberg; of the two Galena water colors by Charles Longabaugh; of Clay Kelly's "Bells of Monterey," or of the delightful sculptures, "Beth Ann," by Margaret Remington Dingle, and "Self Portrait," by Helen Adele Lerch Miller.

The exhibition will continue to Aug. 31 and is well worth seeing.

Max Herzog is enjoying a one man exhibition of his flower paintings and landscapes at the Palette and Chisel Academy of the Fine Arts, 1012 North Dearborn street, through June and July. Mr. Herzog is one of our older painters and a man who has done a great deal of distinguished work. He is well known for the decorative quality of his flower paintings. Those in the present show are amazingly fine, looser than some of his work, and each increases Mr. Herzog's reputation. The "Lilies," "Peonies," "Still Life," "Fruit," "Flowers"—one might run on through the list of titles, are each and every one most intriguing. The handful of little flower sketches are fascinating. The landscapes are handled in a rich, dark, poetic vein that hints, maybe, a trifle of the studio, but, after all, is effective. The study of Mrs. Herzog standing by a barn where a gentle horse is looking patiently from a window is one of the nicest things in the show.

The Mortimer L. Schiff art collection, one of the most notable in America, is to be scattered at auction at Christie's, London, on June 22 and June 23. Mr. Schiff's son is selling the collection, reserving only his father's Majolica, which is now on exhibition as a loan in the Metropolitan museum, New York. In the collection are many beautiful pieces of furniture and gorgeous paintings, works of art which were assembled from many distinguished collections.

The summer exhibition of paintings by artist members of the South Side Art association opened June 2 in the Auditorium hotel.

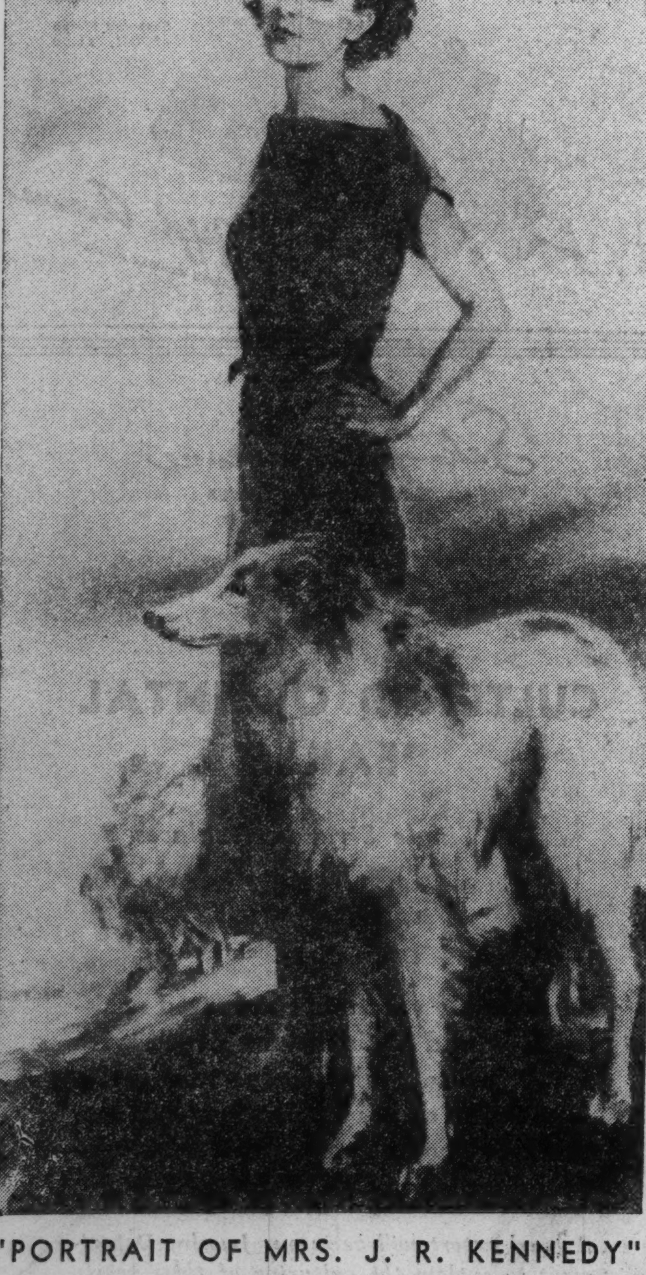
"Two Hundred Years of Painting in England" is the title of the current exhibition in the Findlay galleries, 424 South Michigan avenue. It is a most interesting exhibit.

Works by artist members of the North Shore Art league are on view to June 8 in the club woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers. This is a most attractive show and one that is well worth seeing.

An exhibit of paintings by Castel [who, we are told, is passionately devoted to the color red] is hanging in the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, to June 15. The thirteen paintings were brought from Paris by Marion MacDonald. The artist himself is now in South Africa, painting and sketching in preparation for London and Paris shows this fall.

The "Masterpiece of the Month" at the Art institute during June is Van Gogh's "Bedroom at Arles." Van Gogh has been so thoroughly publicized in the last several years this picture will undoubtedly prove familiar to every one. It strikes us as a good idea to suggest that the Art institute break away from its routine of concentrating on foreign [chiefly French] art and lay emphasis on what America has contributed to painting. Why should not an Inness, a Whistler, a Robert Henri, a Twachtman, a Weir, a Louis Betts, a Ralph Clarkson—the list could go on indefinitly—be placed alternately with a foreign work as "The Masterpiece of the Month" at the Art institute? Why, even, should there not be two paintings promoted each month, one of them an American if the other must be foreign, and not invariably an American or a foreign of a modern slant? After all, there was definitly good painting done before the New York show in 1911 introduced modernism—and there has been good painting since. Fine work is not the prerogative of one school.

The annual exhibition of work by students of the school opens in the east wing galleries of the Art institute June 9 to continue to July 10. The WPA art exhibit follows from July 28 to Oct. 9.



"PORTRAIT OF MRS. J. R. KENNEDY"

This attractive portrait by Evelyn Bargelt and the radiant painting of a young girl, "Reverie," by Douglas Ewen stand out in the current fifth annual spring salon of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, Stevens hotel third floor gallery. They are stunning examples of contemporary portraiture, in right wing.

Festival Wins the Support of Civic Leaders

A midvacation reunion of club leaders, members of civic organizations, musicians, and just music lovers, will be THE TRIBUNE'S second Chicagoland Music Festival luncheon Aug. 19 in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. That is if 600 reservations made before general announcement of the event are any indication.

Olin Downes, music critic of the New York Times and music chairman of the New York world's fair of 1939, and Geoffrey O'Hara, composer of "K-K-K-Katy" and other popular songs, will speak at the luncheon. Louisa Hoe and Richard Schreiber, who were chosen best woman and man singers at the 1937 festival, will be among those on the program.

Already scores from among the 1,172 who attended the first festival luncheon last year have taken time to write to Philip Maxwell, director of the Chicagoland Music Festival, to offer their coöperation in making this year's luncheon a worthy curtain raiser to the great spectacle taking place the following evening at Soldiers' field.

Mrs. Adolf G. Hoffmann.

Mrs. William T. Bruckner, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, and Mrs. Adolf G. Hoffmann, music chairman, already have promised their help in making the luncheon a success. The executive committee has voted to attend the luncheon, and Mrs. Hoffmann, who lives at 4508 North Richmond street, will have charge of reservations.

The Illinois Federation of Music Clubs will take several tables, says Mrs. Louis E. Yager, outgoing president, who lent her assistance with plans for the first luncheon last year.

"More power to you! Depend upon Mu Phi Epsilon for a minimum of fifty," wrote Anita De Mars for that musical sorority. Mae Saunders, writing for members of Sigma Alpha Iota, says of those musicians and music lovers that "those who are in town will want to be on hand for this very gala occasion."

The Chicago Society of Ohio Women, whose former president, Mrs. Edmund Joseph Tyler, is chairman of vocal and choral contests for the festival, anticipates having fifty members at the luncheon. Mrs. Bessie Bragg Pierson, president of the Native Daughters of Illinois, already has reserved five places. Mrs. Morton Bassett, director of the Girl Scouts, is expecting to bring at least ten persons to the luncheon. The Columbia Damen club has reserved twelve places through Mrs. Henry Klaas, corresponding secretary.

"I personally believe that the Chicagoland Music Festival is one of the outstanding events of the year, and a representative group of our piano and organ association will attend the festival luncheon," wrote S. E. Zack, president of the Chicago Piano and Organ association.

Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer, composer and founder of the American Opera society of Chicago, has reserved a table for ten. Mrs. Samuel V. Robuck, chaiman of music of the Chicago Woman's club and president of the Chicago Musical Arts club, wrote: "Please reserve two tables for us. The choice of speakers is excellent and we expect a beneficial treat from the coming festival for all musicians."

Fred C. W. Parker, secretary of Kiwanis International, writes: "I am an enthusiastic booster of this plan. I believe it has value in the promotion of the music festival, but it also has definite value in itself in the spread of cultural interest in and support of music."

"To learn that the second annual luncheon is to take place is welcome news," said Guy A. Edgar, assistant secretary of Lions International. "I am sure that this year's affair will far exceed your expectations."

Albert P. Stewart, director of music at Purdue university, wrote in with his application for reservations: "Seldom, if ever, have I had a greater musical thrill than was mine while attending the festival programs last year, and the festival luncheon was one of the high points."

"Please reserve a table of ten for me. The gathering of music-minded people at luncheon is a great event," said Mrs. John H. Harrison of Evanston. J. Wesley Jones, director of music of the Metropolitan Community church, commented: "Of course, you may depend on me and ten of our musicians and business men and women."

Wrote Mrs. Oscar A. Ahlgren, treasurer of the Indiana Federation of Women's Clubs: "I have been appointed by Mrs. Edwin I. Poston, president to the Indiana federation, to represent our organization, and will be glad to help in any way possible."

Among others making reservations are Benjamin Affleck, Miss Helen Howe, director of music of the Chicago public schools; Ina B. Wickham, music editor of the Davenport, Ia., Democrat; Frank E. Trobaugh, West Frankfort, Ill., attorney and director of the Egyptian Choral club; Maurice Rosenfeld, music critic and concert pianist; Mayblossom Macdonald, dance teacher; Thelma Happ, director of the Mothersingers' chorus; Mrs. Moses L. Purvin, trustee of the Chicago public library; Carl Craven, choral director.

Other music lovers making reservations are A. G. Bloom, general agent of the Union Pacific railroad; Frank Bennett, choral director; Mrs. Ada L. Duffy of Salem, Ill., department president of the United Spanish War Veterans' auxiliary; R. Thomson, passenger trafic manager of the Chicago and North Western Railway company, who made ten reservations; Mrs. Jessie M. Stees of the Valparaiso, Ind., Woman's club; Louis H. Condy of the Chicago High School Bandmasters' association, Erhardt Bergstrasser, director of the Bethel male chorus of Chicago; Mrs. J. R. Pearce, president of the South Shore Lyric and Dramatic club; P. W. Wilson, district passenger agent of the Frisco railroad.

When Chicago Was Young:

Carriage Riding of an Afternoon Was Fashionable

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, October 3, 1889.

Dear Julia: I was much interested in your letter of the 28th of September, in which you mentioned the beautiful Mary Leiter. You didn't speak of her mother. I wonder if you heard that story. I saw it in a New York paper . . . in which it was reported that Mrs. Leiter said, when it was suggested to her that her daughter looked rather delicate, "Delicate? Absurd. Mary is one of the most indelicate girls in Newport."

Of course, every one makes a slip of the tongue once in a while, but I think this funny story is the invention of a reporter.

This afternoon, Will and I drove to the south side, making one short visit. I had been wanting to call on pretty Mrs. T. G. McLaury, who is so nice to her older friends. She sent me a lovely basket of flowers this week. We found her and her husband at home . . . they live in that fashionable block on Michigan avenue near 16th street. Their number is 1639. Mr. McLaury is a successful operator on the Board of Trade. Will likes him very much.

Mrs. McLaury was a Walker before her marriage, her father having been Charles Walker, who shipped, she told us today, the first grain out of the city in 1938. He was president of the Board of Trade at one time, and one of the important men of the city. The Walker home, at the time of the Chicago fire, was at Van Buren street and Michigan avenue, in beautiful Terrace row, which was destroyed by the flames. She is a sister of Mr. George C. Walker, who lives at 228 Michigan avenue, next to Mrs. Stiles Burton and Mrs. Ira Holmes.

Mrs. McLaury has taken part in private theatricals with Sandy and Martha Junior and they think she has decided talent for the stage.

After our visit, we drove on down Michigan avenue to Washington Park. It has been a perfect day . . . clear and cool . . . and all Chicago seemed to be driving. It was pleasant to move smoothly along on the good road, to the musical accompaniment of the silvered chains on the new harness. Many owners of carriages have just put on this latest finish to their harness. At first I objected, thinking it seemed ostentatious, but Will said every one was using this adjunct, and we would be more conspicuous without it. Thus luxuries are forced upon us, aren't they? But I confess I rather like it now.

Mrs. McLaury had been saying that our boulevards are talked about over in Europe as much as in Chicago. Will heard an English visitor at the Chicago club say that Rotten row and the Bois in Paris don't compare with our drives.

From the finished improvements at the north end of Lincoln park, south to Washington park, thence west to Douglas and Humboldt parks, and back to Lincoln park, represents a drive of twenty miles, with only four miles of that length not boulevarded. The greater part of it is finished in the best style of road-building.

We often see Potter Palmer's fine coach, though he wasn't out this afternoon. Hobart Taylor had his yellow-wheeled Kimball drag out today, drawn by a team of golden chestnuts and filled with a fashionable party, among whom I recognized the beautiful Rose Farwell, Senator Charles Farwell's daughter, chaperoned by her sister, Mrs. Reginald De Koven. John Cudahy was seated in a beautiful Victoria, drawn by chestnut steeds. Florenz Ziegfeld Jr. was a conspicuous figure, driving alone in a finely equipped English cart, with a blooded horse which caused Will to draw in his breath with a sigh of envy. Will does love a good horse. E. L. Brewster sat in a lofty tilbury cart, driving a high-stepping roan, and William Borden was out in a smart cart recently made for him in Dublin. Jack Lincoln, a bachelor much liked in society, was riding his handsome horse, with his dogs at heel.

Indeed, there were many horseback riders who made a pretty picture. Little Maudie Morris, daughter of the packer, Nelson Morris, managed her pony beautifully. Another beautiful equestrienne was Miss Bertha Botsford, who rides easily and gracefully. I have often seen her in the early morning, as well as in the afternoon, on the bridle path in her full riding skirt and stiff hat. I wish I had learned to ride—the costume is so smart.

We received cards this week announcing the marriage of young John L. Shortall of Chicago to Miss Mary Carter of Boston. The ceremony was performed in Trinity church, by the great Phillips Brooks.

And now I'll close.
Your loving
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Mrs. John L. Shortall lives at 339 Barry avenue, and Miss Bertha Botsford, now Mrs. Robert H. Harvey, at 340 Barry avenue. Mrs. T. G. McLaury's home is at 5100 Hyde Park boulevard.

MEMORIES OF MY MOTHER.

(At Four Years)

You clasped broad gold bracelets over your gloves;
Your black silk dress had a black silk thing . . .
A plastron . . . down the front.
You drew your camel's-hair shawl
[Black and red, with a point down the back]
Across your shoulders
And fastened it with a cameo brooch,
Gathered up your train daintily
And went to church.
As you went, you said to Papa,
Reading his Tribune in the parlor window:
"Will you take Gracie for some fresh air?"
So Papa took me to walk near Union
Park.
"Do you see that gray-haired man
on his porch?
That is Mayor Harrison"
Said my father.

Horn Blowing Beau Forfeits Dad's Esteem

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Little boy, DON'T blow your horn! Not within hearing of your girl friend's daddy! He may just descend upon you and blow you into a cocked hat in so far as his daughter's company is concerned!

We hear of just such incidents, a young man ruining his chances forever with the girl's parents because of his idiosyncrasies with an automobile horn. But we will let Harriett and Lillian tell you what happened around their place one night.

"We are sisters, 17 and 18, and are simply brokenhearted. We had a friend just a year older and we adored the chap. We couldn't say we loved him, as it would be ridiculous for two girls to say that, but we were crazy about him just the same. We adored being out with him, talking with him and riding with him. His dad has a peach of a car which he lets Jim use whenever he wants to. So he used to come almost every night to take both of us riding. And we did have grand times during that four months' friendship which terminated abruptly and sadly one night.

"You can imagine that he must be a pretty nice chap when he would take the pair of us out, and also you can see that it must have been a nice friendship from his point of view, too. And mother readily consented to our going out with him. She knows that he is of good family and is a nice clean chap. During those four months of friendship that boy never said a vulgar thing. He never did a thing to show off. He sounds like the answer to a couple of maidens' prayers, and he was. Just a jolly, joking, playful boy who isn't through growing up yet. That was what we adored about him, and why we loved to be with him.

"But things went terribly wrong a few weeks ago. One night Jim came up to take us riding, as usual. As said, he always was playful and, in the mood that night, he drove by the house a few times honking the horn again and again just to tease us before coming in.

"All at once Dad became enraged and rushed to the street in front of the house. He stopped our friend's car and gave him a terrible bawling out. Jim answered my Dad respectfully but went off home without being allowed to come or offering to come in himself. The next morning, promptly, we got the nicest letter of apology from him saying that he did it only in fun.

"He hasn't come back yet, however, and we are just heartbroken. We know other boys and have tried their company, but find it flat after Jim's. No one has his personality, or his genuine niceness of character.

"How can we win that boy back as a friend again? We try to think that we are not jealous, but the very idea of him being out giving some other girl the pleasure of his rare company makes us sick!"

And that's what we mean, boys, when we tell you that the too playful mood had better be curbed within Dad's hearing. He so completely forgets what a cut-up he was when he was young. And he does appear to like the young men who come calling on his girls to have the earmarks of men and gentlemen, not that of overgrown puppies.

Proposed French Code to Give Women Wider Rights

Exhibition of American Art Event in Paris

PARIS The American residents of Paris had a good chance recently to feel homesick, for the country they love best of all was brought vividly before their eyes and hearts through the handiwork of scores of its artists, ancient and modern. After months of organization the "Three Centuries of American Art" exhibit was staged at the Jeu de Paume, in the corner of the Tuileries garden nearest the chancellery of the American embassy in the Place de la Concorde.

This showing had been announced for a long time and French curiosity, not to say American, was at high pitch to see what would be brought forth. The whole affair is so varied that it will not make its big impression all at once. It is the kind of thing that requires more than one visit. It is like an anthology. Some one's favorite piece is sure to be left out. But so much is included, revealing so many aspects of American ways and talents, that every American will have cause for gratification, and the French, if not as much astonished at first as they expected, soon will appreciate that the show is remarkably, if not perfectly, representative.

Scores of well known figures in Franco-American society came to the opening. Mme. Paul Dupuy, who recently returned to Paris from Egypt, is a member of the honorary organizing committee of the exhibition. So is George Blumenthal, president of the Metropolitan museum of New York, who was there with his wife, the former Mrs. Clews. James Hazen Hyde, John Ridgely Carter, Gilbert White, the painter; Welles Bosworth, architect of the Rockefeller restorations at Versailles and Fontainebleau, were among the throng trying to capture—or rather to fix—their impressions.

The Art institute of Chicago loaned Felicie Waldo Howell's "The Chef," painted about a dozen years ago, and John Neagle's "View on the Schuylkill," which the artist executed in 1827. Curiously enough, Chicago, in spite of its gifted experts, does not seem to have sent anything to the photographic section. Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr., who contributed from her stores to several of the sections, has favored particularly the popular art department. William D. Vandivert of Chicago is among those who sent exhibits.

The Museum of Modern Art of New York is sponsoring the exhibition, or rather has assembled the several hundred items which make it a living affair, and has levied on a great number of museums as well as private collectors. Marshall Field, who is a member of the art council of the Museum of Modern Art, has loaned the "Base of a Palace [Venetian]," by John Singer Sargent, and Whistler is represented by a number of Venetian sketches, as well as by the celebrated portrait of his mother, loaned by the Louvre, where for years it has been one of that museum's greatest treasures.

MARRIED IN EVANSTON

Mrs. John Blair Crawford is the former Mary Ball. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bruce Ball, live in Galveston, Tex., but her marriage to the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Blair Crawford of Evanston took place in Evanston, where the Ball family formerly lived.

Views Fjord's Grandeur from a Motorboat

By Mason Warner.

ABISKO, Lapland, Sweden.—[Special.]—Narvik, on the Norwegian coast, is only about forty miles west of Abisko, and less than two hours' run on the electric railway. There was only one class of accommodations—third class—on the train I took, and the single passenger coach was crowded. I sat alongside a Lapp who had his dog with him. The dog was friendly, and so was he. He attempted conversation in Swedish, and registered disappointment when he learned I could not speak that language.

The passenger coach was attached to a long train of cars loaded with iron ore bound for the seaboard. The train was a mile past Bjorkliden, the first station west of Abisko, when it stopped with a sudden jolt. The passengers got out of the coach and went up ahead to ascertain the cause.

The engine had struck two little reindeer. There was nothing resembling a cowcatch on the engine. The wheels had cruelly mangled one of the deer. The other had a leg broken and its side was sadly torn. A man from the engine ended its suffering by a merciful blow on the head with a hammer. The dead animals were removed from the track and we proceeded on our way.

We passed a tiny cemetery, not more than sixty feet square, with about forty stone crosses huddled together over as many graves.

In this region fields of snow cover the track level the year round, but the weather was not cold.

At Bjornfell, on the Norwegian frontier, all suitcases, bags, and bundles were opened by their owners for inspection. The customs officers gave each a quick, searching look and passed on, smiling.

Looking out of the car window, I could see towering granite cliffs. The view resembled that around Yosemite falls, but instead of one El Capitan there were scores of colossal granite cliffs taller than the Empire State building. They were bare of trees or vegetation. The whole rugged panorama revived memories of the high Sierras and Yosemite park in April and May when spring floods are coming down the mountainsides. The supply of water falling down the arctic cliffs in summer is enormous. Every mountain had its waterfall, and there were too many mountains to count.

Later, from the car window, I could look down directly into Rombak fjord, for the railway runs on a shelf-like ledge of rock high above. A scene of tremendous grandeur was presented. Mountains on both sides reached into the sky. Bleak, barren, and desolate from water's brim to the snows. The surface of the waters was 1,000 feet below the train, and the fjord, they say, is 1,000 feet deep.

The railroad skirts the edge of Rombak for five or six miles. The outlines and the surface of the piled up mountains are sheer and stark and dreadful in their heights, breadths, and bulky vastness.

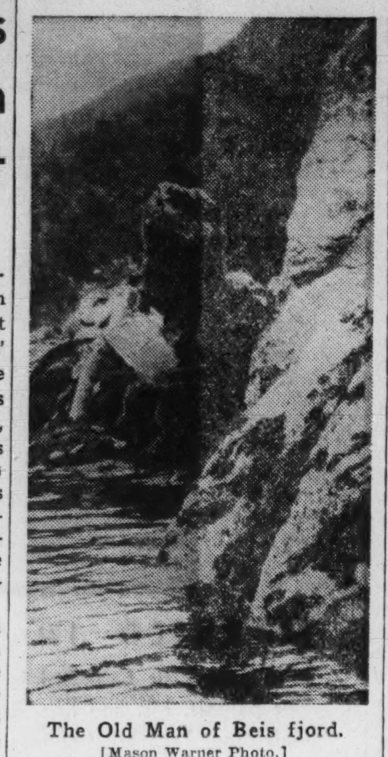
Narvik houses its 8,000 people after the manner of Duluth, Minn. It spreads them up the hillsides. Buildings facing the water are two stories high in front and one story in the rear.

Having gone to Narvik for the purpose of exploring a fjord in a small boat, I proceeded immediately to the wharves. I found a young Norwegian who owned a motorboat and was studying English at school—a fortunate combination for me.



The Old Man of Beis fjord.
[Mason Warner Photo.]

The boat was only about 15 feet long, but it had a sturdy engine, and we were ten miles up Beis fjord as soon as I could wish. The canyon varied in width from 600 to 1,000 feet. The rocky sidewalls slanted above us. At some places they rose from the water so steep as to be almost perpendicular.

Cascades and waterfalls threw their foaming masses down into the fjord from great heights. Rain and fogs obscured the mountain tops and the snowline was not visible. My pilot expressed regret that I could not see the place at its best, but the gray scene had beauty without the sun.

The rain ceased in an hour. A lonely seagull circled over the boat as if seeking companionship. It banked, turned, and flew away, up Beis fjord. That gull and fish leaping out of the water were the only signs of life for many miles.

Only once on the trip did the boat stop. Then the young Norwegian pointed to a pile of rocks, where a mighty crag had been torn down and crumbled into many fragments by a glacier's omnipotent force.

"See that? There! Straight ahead! That is the Old Man of Beis fjord."

For some time I could not pick out the object. Suddenly I saw it. It was a chance made statue in granite, formed into a six foot tall image of a man's torso and head, with big nose, deepset eyes, well defined chin, and closely cropped beard; the head covered with a stone likeness of a round, knitted cap. The figure resembled an old Scotsman.

The rock statute marked the end of the up trip. On the return my guide produced a map and demonstrated how Rombak and Beis were arms of the great Ofat fjord, which in turn was an extension of Vest, the greatest and most stupendous series of fjords in Norway. "And in the whole world," he added.

When I offered him a tip at the end of the day, the descendant of the Vikings refused it with an air that embarrassed me.

As I entered the railroad station, a big-dropped, driving rain was falling. Two pigeons moved aimlessly to and fro on the depot platform. Their feathers were so drenched that they waddled as they walked, and cooed fretfully and morosely.

The return trip to Abisko was a reverse repetition of the going, with the same beauty in a different mood The Swedish customs officers were as gracious and smiling as had been the Norwegians.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

TRAVEL IN RUSSIA.

New York, May 26.—To the Travel Editor: Since so many people, in spite of all the adverse publicity, wish to go into Russia and see for themselves, some up to date advice might be welcomed.

First—and quite important—obtain the names, addresses, and telephone numbers, correctly typewritten in both English and Russian characters, of your consular and diplomatic representatives.

Second, provide a supply of toilet paper, towels, carbolic soap, together with insect powder and disinfectant to use in the water in your wash basin. You are not likely to use the baths in the private bathrooms or anywhere else; that a sponge for a standing bath will be useful. Take with you some joss sticks or incense pastilles to burn in bathrooms and in the washrooms on the trains.

No matter in what category you may travel, food will be a serious problem. Provide in advance a stove and solid alcohol fuel, with the necessary utensils to boil water and make tea or coffee. Bring your own tea, coffee, condensed or other milk, canned meats, sausage, biscuits, and some Danish butter. Sugar and jams may be procured at the hotels. You will probably have to pay for all your meals, anyway. Observe the strictest of precautions as to the eating of fresh fruits, vegetables, fish, etc. Ask your doctor for six doses of a dysentery prescription and guard it carefully.

Using these precautions and others as they occur, a tourist of ordinary toughness should survive one to two weeks of Russia without much loss of weight.

Procure an old Baedeker; study carefully and memorize the city maps of such cities as you intend to visit. If at all possible, obtain also an old pre-war catalog of the pictures in the Hermitage museum. Intourist provides nothing of value and art catalogs have not been available.

Your passport should be returned within a few hours after arrival. Insist upon your rights in this respect. It is true [and sometimes very gratifying to realize] that results to the tourist are in direct proportion to the fuss made. This is where your diplomatic representative may be of use. Call promptly at your embassy. Register your arrival. You will also be able to get information from your consular representatives as to motor transport outside Intourist.

Wear your oldest clothes. If a man, shave frequently and leave off your hat, collar, and tie. A pair of well soiled tennis shoes will complete the costume. So attired, you will probably not be shouldered off the curb too often. If a woman, leave jewelry and ornaments at home to avoid unfavorable comment, harsh words, and a vigorous shaking now and then from some woman of the proletariat.

Do not fail to explore the Moscow subway, with all its features and conveniences. You will not see its like anywhere else.

Again, do not be too impatient with the Intourist girl guides or poke fun at them. They have never been out of Russia. They regard you [since you are apparently able to travel freely] as belonging to the class of the wicked wealthy in your own country who exploit and oppress the worker there. They are told the most fantastic tales about you and what you do to the workers who make your traveling possible. Bear in mind that in Russia any accurate knowledge of the outside world is strictly compartmented and is not known at all outside a limited circle of officials, relatively speaking. These girl guides and every one else in Russia who has not been outside its frontiers believe firmly that their own social condition is immeasureably superior to that of the masses in any other country.

No alien is welcome in Russia at this present time unless well known as a champion of the soviet form of rule.

Some, if not all, of the foregoing might appear to be in sharp conflict with the literature and statements of Intourist. It is.

Lastly, it is almost worth while going into Russia if only for the thrill of leaving it. The returning tourists may thereafter be astonished to realize how gratefully they will find themselves remembering the particular border state into which they may emerge. For all time that particular border state will signify for them certain essentials of sanity and civilization.

Thanking you for the privilege of this space, I remain yours,

RETURNED TOURIST.

MEMORIES OF SOUTH AMERICA.

Peoria, Ill., May 25.—To the Travel Editor: I wish to thank THE TRIBUNE for the series of articles on South America by Frederic Babcock. His itinerary comprises one of the most interesting tours it is possible for a person to make.

I was especially interested in last Sunday's sketch of Rio de Janeiro. Mention of Corcovado and the statue of Christ, Pao do Assucar [the sky ride there makes the one we had at A Century of Progress seem like a ride on a kiddie car]; Urca, the half-way mark on the trip to the top of Assucar; Copacabana and its wonderful drive and beach; Praça Paris, Avenida Rio Branco—all brought back recollections of the beauty spot of the world.

Mr. Babcock evidently didn't have space to describe the shops, cafés, and interesting side streets that are a little of the old world transplanted. I don't see how he missed mentioning the curio shop of Zitrin Irmaos at 110 Rua Buenos Aires. Nearly every tourist visits this shop for trinkets, butterfly wing pictures, Brazilian stones, and native work.

I roamed Rio by day and night, saw all sections from the poorest to the best, and claim it is one of the world's most interesting cities—a beauty by day and a jewel by night.

These articles have revived some wonderful memories. F. H. ROBERTS.

THE SAN JUAN ISLANDS.

Woodinville, Wash., June 2.—To the Travel Editor: Several years ago it was my pleasure to take an excursion boat trip through the San Juan Islands. As you will notice by referring to your map, they are situated in the far northwestern corner of the United States.

There was a party of about 200; so we chartered our own boat at Bellingham, Wash., and set out early on a Sunday morning in August.

One is never far from land on this trip, and sometimes really very close. For instance in going through Peavine pass one could almost step off the boat on either side and land on a rock. It really requires a good skipper to navigate it at all.

The islands all seemed evenly timbered and as symmetrical as though they had been carved. One of them resembled the outline of a large tortoise, floating with its back and head out of water.

This section, being in direct line with the Strait of Juan de Fuca, has enormous tide rips which provide some of the thrills of an ocean voyage and also some of the discomforts for the faint-hearted.

We made several stops—once to study the operation and mechanics of a large lighthouse, and another to visit an island used as a fox farm.

Our most interesting stop was at Friday harbor for lunch and to visit the biological station of the University of Washington, where they were making a study of sea life and oceanography.

Near there is still standing the old American and British forts where Britain and America had their last dangerous dispute. History says they nearly started a war over an English pig that rooted out the American potatoes and was made into pork chops by the Americans.

The return trip was made by moonlight and provided beautiful scenery of islands, water, and mountains, ever-changing and ever-different. A brilliant beam of silver reached from our boat to the moon and seemed strong enough to walk on. RALPH DUBEL.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Chicago, June 2.—To the Travel Editor: Will you kindly put the name of my sister on your list? She is an elderly lady and has been hard of hearing for more than thirty years. She is very lonely. I should like to surprise her with cards and letters from those who travel. Her name and address: Miss Tona Masilko, 46 North Marr street, Fond du Lac, Wis. A. CALKINS.

Huron, S. D., June 1.—To the Travel Editor: Will you please put the name of Mrs. Charles Kauf, 378 Beach avenue, Huron, S. D., on your list to receive mail from travelers? She has been a shut-in for a number of years and would be deeply thankful for cards, letters, folders, travel booklets or good reading of any kind. MRS. T. J. WOOD.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 3.—To the Travel Editor: I should like to give you the names of Dorothy Allen, 19, and Emily Brahams, 17, who are ill in University hospital, Ann Arbor, Mich., and would like to receive mail. I have been befriended in this way and know how grateful they, too, will be. A FRIEND.

Chicago, May 29.—To the Travel Editor: Last December I wrote and asked you to add these names to your list of shut-ins: W. G. Curry, Liberty, Tex., and Mrs. M. McNamara, 1005 Almira street, Saginaw, Mich. I haven't seen their names in print, so I should like to renew the request. Mr. Curry is 90 years old. [MRS.] ETHELYN CHURCH.

Chicago, May 31.—To the Travel Editor: Please enter the name of Mrs. Bessie Masion, 158 South Western avenue, Chicago, on your list. Cards or letters from your readers would help her pass the long, lonely hours. She has been unable to get around for two years and sits day and night in her big chair. JUST A FRIEND.

Glasgow's Fair Has Gate of 15 Million as Goal

GLASGOW, June 4.—[U. P.]—Sandy Mac has loosened his purse strings for the $50,000,000 Empire exhibition, opened by King George and Queen Elizabeth last month at Bellahouston park, three miles from here.

The Glasgow corporation spent $6,250,000 on cleaning public buildings, widening roads, laying out new gardens, planting fresh shrubs and flowers, and putting into service new fleets of omnibuses and street cars to make this exhibition the biggest in Britain since the one at Wembley in 1924.

Hundreds of house owners had their homes repainted and stonework cleaned, so that Glasgow presents as attractive appearance as possible to the 15,000,000 persons who, it is hoped here, will visit the spectacle.

Palaces and pavilions representing the United Kingdom and nearly 40 dominions and colonies total 100. Scottish industrialists, tradesmen, and members of the Scottish Development council, which sponsored the exhibition, reached down in their pockets and subscribed to a guarantee fund which exceeded $3,750,000.

Before the fair opened, 90,000 persons paid $6 for a season ticket, which was said to be a world record by organizers. Single admission to the exhibition is 25 cents.

A story is told of Scottish thrift in connection with preparations for the vast display. When a visit was made to the foundry where the carillon for the Palace of Peace was being cast, English members of the delegation threw sixpences into the molten metal, but Sir Archibald Sinclair, Scot, tossed in a threepenny piece.

The declared objects of the exhibition, which is the British empire in miniature, are:

1. To illustrate the progress of the empire at home and overseas.
2. To show the resources and potentialities of the United Kingdom and the empire overseas to the new generation.
3. To stimulate Scottish work and production and to direct attention to Scotland's historical and scenic attractions.
4. To foster empire trade and a closer friendship among the peoples of the British commonwealth of nations.
5. To emphasize to the world the peaceful aspirations of the commonwealth.

Ballahouston park, which covers 175 acres, has been equipped with public services equivalent to those in a city of 500,000. Miles of roadways, paths, and avenues have been laid down, water, gas, electricity and sewer facilities installed, ten power stations built to distribute electricity for the 1,000,000 candlepower illuminations, 13 miles of underground cables, and 240 miles of wiring laid and a special railway built to accommodate the crowds.

The exhibition has its own police and fire stations, postoffice, telephone exchange, first aid depot, labor exchange, and internal transport system.

The closing date has been set for Oct. 29, when all buildings except two or three will be dismantled.

How They Changed Hands.

There are more than a hundred large and small islands in the Shetland group, but only about a third of them are inhabited. They lie about 110 miles north of Scotland and less than twice that distance from the coast of Norway. They belonged to Norway after Harold Haarfager, first king of that county, conquered the Picts, the islands' early settlers, in 875. Later James II. of Scotland loaned Christian I. of Norway and Sweden a large sum of money, and accepted the Shetlands as security. Christian did not meet his "note" when it became due, and the Shetlands consequently became Scotch [later English] property.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

Announced as "a voyage of rare discoveries," the next world cruise of the Franconia will sail from New York Jan. 5, 1939, under the joint sponsorship of the Cunard-White Star Line and Thomas Cook & Son. Departing from previous routes, the new itinerary, as made known last week, calls for a trip down the east coast of South America as far as Buenos Aires, thence across to South Africa, and from there to such points as Bombay, Penang, Singapore, Manila, Port Darwin, Port Moresby, Suva, Pago Pago, and Honolulu. A number of the South Sea islands are included for the first time.

Chicago offices were opened last week by a number of Wisconsin resorts. The Alpine, at Egg Harbor, and the Lucerne, at Sturgeon Bay, now share offices at 30 West Washington street. Lake Lawn, at Delavan, maintains one at 3000 West Washington street. At 333 North Michigan avenue are the headquarters of the Anderson hotel, Ephraim; the Pines hotel, Sturgeon Bay; Voss' Birchwood resort, Manitowish; Pine Point resort, Elkhart Lake; Dell View resort, Lake Delton, and Lakeside resort, Pewaukee Lake.

B. O. Bassett, president of the Minocqua District Resort association, relates that a larger crowd than Minocqua has seen in many years filled most of its resorts over Memorial day. All the guides were out, and limit catches of wall eyes were reported by many guests. The Chicago and Northwstern railroad ran two sections of the Flambeau. The Ashland Limited likewise had double capacity. The load was so heavy on one of the Milwaukee road's trains that two engines were needed.

On Friday, June 24, the Theodore Roosevelt will return to its dock at the Michigan avenue bridge to open the cross-lake and moonlight dance cruise season for 1938. The steamer is now undergoing its annual refitting and repainting at Manitowoc, Wis., and this year nearly $50,000 is being spent on that job. It will continue the schedule it has followed for the last two years, with daytime crossings to St. Joseph, Benton Harbor, and South Haven, starting at 9:30 a. m., and night cruises from 9:30 to 11:50.

Five pre-season cruises—the largest number ever scheduled by the Georgian Bay Line—will be run from Chicago between June 15 and July 9. This was announced yesterday by E. J. Goebel, passenger trafic manager. The short cruises will be operated on the North American, with Green Bay, Sturgeon Bay, Milwaukee, Mackinac Island, and Sault Ste. Marie as the destinations. On July 9 the North American and the South American will begin their season of seven day voyages on the Great Lakes.

The No. 15 tee on the Banff Springs golf course in the Canadian Rockies, with the hotel and the mountains in the background.

Word comes from Monfalcone, near Trieste, Italy, that the 28,000 ton Stockholm, new flagship of the Swedish American Line, was successfully launched there last Sunday. The motor liner will enter the service in April, 1939.

Bermuda's Castle Harbour hotel, regarded as one of the most luxurious in the western hemisphere, will open its season June 20. Officials of the Furness Line announced last week that a 25 per cent increase in the sailings of the Queen of Bermuda and the Monarch of Bermuda had been arranged for this summer.

Word from Banff, in the Canadian Rockies, has it that the greens and fairways of the mile high Banff Springs golf course are ready for the season's opening. The course, surrounded by massive peaks, is regarded as one of the sportiest in North America. Its length—6,704 yards—might prove a mental hazard to the average amateur were it not for the fact that there are three sets of tees, along with three alternative routes of play.

Effective last Wednesday, the Pan American Airways reduced its fares between New York and Bermuda 20 per cent. The trip is made in five hours, but John Schlegel, midwestern manager, relates that all-expense journeys of from seven to sixteen days have been scheduled for this summer. Seven of the Bermuda hotels are participating in the arrangement.

A group of twenty-five students, organized by Paul G. Delaporte of the New Trier high school faculty, is to leave Chicago over the Baltimore and Ohio June 30 for Washington and New York, prior to setting sail on the Bremen for eight weeks of sightseeing in Europe. Visits will be paid to England, Holland, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, and France, and there will be meetings with student groups of each country. The Hamburg American Line-North German Lloyd and the North Shore Travel service are coöperating in the project.

In charge of W. N. Robb of the Canadian Pacific, a native Scot who has crossed the Atlantic thirty-five times, a conducted tour to Scotland will leave from Montreal on the Duchess of York July 29. The first stop is to be the Empire exhibition at Glasgow.

Jefferson Davis Highway Opened

Jackson, Miss., June 4.—Legacies of legend and beauty are streamlined for present day tourists in the Jefferson Davis highway, dedicated here Friday to the memory of the confederacy's chieftain. The route was designated a memorial to Mississippi's most distinguished son by the state legislature this spring.

Stretching 355 miles through the heart of the state, the Memphis-to-Biloxi route connects two cities that knew much of the spirit of the leader of the lost cause.

The Home of Copernicus.

Torun in Poland is the birthplace of Copernicus, the astronomer. The charming old city has erected a statue to his memory and visitors may enter the home he had 400 years ago.

Gray's Cairn to Be Dedicated June 28

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 4.—West Michigan's June entertainment program will have events all the way from fishing shows to music festivals.

One of the ceremonies will be the dedication of the Hugh Gray testimonial cairn north of Traverse City on June 28. The state and travel experts from the middle west will honor Hugh J. Gray, secretary-manager of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort association, for his twenty years of service. Each county in Michigan will be represented with a stone in the cairn.

The month's program includes:

Ludington—Sailboat and power boat races each week-end on Pere Marquette lake.

Kalamazoo—Gull lake yacht races each week-end.

June 15, Manistee—Beginning of organized tours through world's largest salt plants.

June 18 to 20, Mackinac Island—Lilac blossom festival.

June 21, Traverse City—Greeting to summer ceremony at the tip of Old Mission peninsula, half way between the north pole and the equator.

June 20 to 26, Saugatuck—Get together week, homecoming.

June 24 to 25, Hastings—Blue gill festival.

June 26, Traverse City—Opening of national music camp at Interlochen, followed by Sunday and midweek concerts.

Hawaii Volcanoes World's Largest

HONOLULU, T. H.—[U. P.]—Colossal is just another adjective to rangers in the United States National park on Hawaii Island, 220 miles southeast of here, since they have begun comparing data on the natural features under their guardianship.

The most westerly park in America contains, the rangers report, these features:

Kilauea, the world's largest active volcano.

Haleakala, the world's largest extinct volcano.

Mauna Kea, the highest mountain in the world rising directly from the sea [13,825 feet].

Mauna Loa [13,675 feet], the largest single monutain mass in the world, and the world's most symmetrical mountain.

Halemaumau, the world's only volcanic fire pit where one may safely drive an automobile to the very brink of the crater.

WISCONSIN is the Muskie State
Just as the muskellunge is the undisputed king of all fresh water game fish and muskie fishing is, to thousands of fishermen, the greatest and most thrilling of all fresh water angling sports, so is Wisconsin the muskie state.

The true muskellunge is native to Wisconsin waters. He lives and thrives and grows here as in no other part of the United States. In addition to the natural hatch of muskies in our lakes and streams, Wisconsin hatched and planted more than 30,000,000 young muskies last year, nearly 50,000,000 in the past five years.

This is only one phase of the world's greatest fish propagation program that keeps all Wisconsin waters always well stocked with muskies, bass, wall-eye and northern pike, trout and pan fish.

Tourists Find Days of Beauty in Guatemala

In 1504 the king and queen of Spain asked Columbus to describe the physical appearance of Guatemala. He seized a large sheet of crinkly parchment, crumpled it in his hands so that it became a mass of peaks and valleys, tossed it onto the royal table, and said, "That's Guatemala."

In the last year Guatemala has again been "discovered," this time by American tourists in search of new lands of adventure, easily accessible yet uncommercialized; ideal in climate and scenery.

Guatemala is three cruising days from New Orleans. Southward through the gates of the Caribbean the ships ply the waters of the Spanish Main to Puerto Barrios, the country's main port on the Atlantic. The trip from Barrios to Guatemala City is made in parlor cars of the International railway, traversing in the cool of the morning a stretch of lowland country along the river bed where millions of bunches of bananas flourish in the tropical sunlight.

Only a few steps from orderly green rows of tall banana plants [bananas grow on plants, not trees] lies a clearing in the tropical jungle where stands a circle of massive carved monoliths of brown stone, monuments of the extinct Maya civilization, all intricately carved with well proportioned hieroglyphics which defy translation.

The variety and intensity of color of Guatemala City is striking: yellow, blue, and white houses, masses of vivid flowers. Traces of colonial days are found chiefly in the churches, whose altars and organs are beautifully carved and gilded. In one of the parks is a large relief map of the republic, 150 feet square, the water in its lakes and rivers gleaming in the sun. Other places of unusual interest are the market, public washing place, the national museum, and historic churches of Sierra del Carmen and La Merced.

But "seeing Guatemala" has just begun for those spending a week in the highlands, for splendid motor roads, good hotels and inns now make possible tours by automobiles with English-speaking guides.

The most popular tour is of four days' duration. It takes the visitor through quaint Indian villages, through thriving coffee plantations, the old capital of Antigua with its historic ruins, across Lake Atitlan, 9,000 feet above sea level, and surrounded by lofty mountain peaks, where a visit is made to some of the twelve Indian villages named after the twelve apostles.

The last day is spent in and around Chichicastenango, visiting the market, inspecting the jade collection of Padre Rossbach, viewing the Indian shrine, and seeing Indians worshiping in the church which dates back to 1540.

Along the highways throughout the trip will be seen pure blooded Indians, with heavy loads on their shoulders, en route to market. Each Indian village has its individuality as to costumes, dialect, pottery making, weaving, farming, and stock raising. Each native wears the distinctive hand woven costume of his village, a dress individual in material, pattern, and decorative design. The huipil, a kind of blouse worn by the women, takes on an infinite variety of design and color.

King Cole's Castle.

At the old Roman town of Colchester, in Essex, England, tradition places the castle of Old King Cole of the nursery rhyme. It has the largest keep of any castle in England.

MORE OR LESS PERSONAL

The number of visitors to the Carlsbad caverns of New Mexico in 1937 increased 35 per cent over the previous year, O. P. Bartlett, passenger trafic manager for the Southern Pacific, said yesterday. There were 207,041 visitors last year, an average of 559 a day.

Larger than any other known caverns in the world, under government supervision Carlsbad has been developed into a weird spectacle. The portion open to the public is brilliantly illuminated by electricity, with all wiring concealed and the lights themselves hidden from view. About four hours are required for the trip, during which seven miles of corridors and chambers are inspected. Luncheon is served in a restaurant 750 feet below ground, and there is a passenger elevator. The main chamber, known as the "big room," is large enough to accommodate the Queen Mary.

Please tell me something about Mexico City.—V. J. M.

Now covering an area of about twenty square miles, the city is changing and growing so rapidly that travelers find whole sections of it made over within a few years. In addition to its scenic attractions, it is known for its semi-tropical climate and its record amount of sunshine.

It owes its site to the Aztecs. Like ancient Troy, it was built one city on top of another, and historians believe that even today Indian temples exist in the subsoil there, having sunk gradually into the earth because of their great weight. The old time city was a watery kingdom.

Its valley was made up of a series of large lakes, and the city itself was founded on an island in the Lake of Texcoco. It had an elaborate system of canals and dikes. Some of its houses were built on stilts in the water, and waterways connected it with various parts of the valley. When the Spaniards conquered Mexico City, they demolished most of the relics of the Aztec civilization. Today the city, with its natural surroundings and its modern architecture, ranks as one of the most beautiful in the world.

The streams are filled with trout. Guides are available for pack trips into the wilderness. The best known of the region's mountains is Olympus, with its mantle of snow and its blue glacier. Spectacular views are to be had from Hurricane range.

DETOUR

By FREDERIC BABCOCK

Convicts on Devil's Island.
[Acme Photo.]

ON BOARD THE GRIPSHOLM, off Devil's Island, French Guiana.—[Special.]—A trip to the world's most notorious convict colony is an experience rarely accorded the traveler, inasmuch as visitors are not allowed. . . . For what is said to be the first time in the history of cruises, our ship sailed close to the colony this morning, and now we passengers can boast about it for the rest of our lives.

Because of the bar against visitors, and also because of the shallow waters surrounding the island, we had to stay about five miles off shore. . . . But, with the land rising high above sea level, and with a visibility of nine miles from our boat deck, that was near enough to give us a good view of the buildings, palm trees, and physical features of the penal settlement we had always heard about but never thought we would see. . . . Through the courtesy of Capt. J. M. Renström, commander of the Gripsholm, we beheld one of the few places that live up to their names. . . . The tourist world is full of Devil's Slides and Devil's Gulches—names formed by the imaginative, but otherwise meaningless. . . . Devil's Island, as every one knows by this time, is Satan's own playground.

● Every one knows of the island, but not many know the truth about it. . . . Ever since the settlement was founded more than half a century ago it has caught the popular fancy, not only on account of its name, but also on account of the celebrities who have been sent there. . . . As far as the general public is concerned, there is only one prison in French Guiana, and that one is on Devil's Island. . . . As a matter of fact, the island houses only a dozen or so convicts, as compared with 8,000 in the remainder of this French possession.

Devil's Island receives only one class of prisoners: the men convicted of having betrayed France. . . . Capt. Dreyfus was one of these. . . . Those found guilty of crimes other than treason are incarcerated on the mainland or on St. Joseph and Royale Isles. . . . These latter two, along with Devil's, form a cluster about ten miles off the mainland, and these were the three we saw this morning. . . . Devil's itself proved to be a solid rock of about 35 acres, with little on top except coconut palms and a dozen small buildings, most of them stone and cement cottages.

● It was something of a surprise to learn that no one has ever escaped from Devil's. . . . Only those in the other prisons succeed once in a while in getting away. . . . The waters raging about the island are so fierce, and the sharks so numerous, that escape is impossible.

For the best description of the place we turned to the book, "Sailing South American Skies," by James Saxon Childers. . . . Mr. Childers stopped off at Cayenne, capital of French Guiana, some time ago, and there he gathered his disillusioning information. . . . "Hundreds of stories, most of them sensational, have been written about Devil's Island," he says. "But nothing melodramatic ever happens there; the drama on the island is too deep in the souls of men to become obvious and sensational."

● "The prisoners there are sent for life," writes Mr. Childers. . . . "The most famous one today is a man who contracted with the government to clear the bodies of dead soldiers from the battlefields. . . . They caught him cutting off the fingers of the dead for their rings, and pulling out their teeth for the gold in them. . . . Each of the convicts has a cottage to himself. . . . He is locked in it from 6 o'clock at night until 6 o'clock in the morning. . . . During the day he may do whatever he likes. . . . He may read, write, fish, catch tortoise and carve trinkets from their shells, or he may sit, and sit, and stare out across the sea.

"The authorities will not tell you the names of these men; they will not tell you why they are on the island. . . . 'What does it matter?' they say. . . . These men are dead, only waiting for the incidental fact of death itself. . . . And, when it comes, the man will be wrapped loosely in a shroud and put in a coffin with hinges on it. . . . Hundreds of men have been put in that same coffin; they call it 'Marie, the Old Mother.' . . . It is rowed out to sea, lowered beneath the water, and the lid sprung; the coffin is retrieved and pulled back into the boat, and the body is left to the sharks.

"There is no fever on Devil's Island—not even malaria. . . . The wind-swept rock is the most healthful place in all French Guiana. . . . The only restriction on the prisoner is that he live on this rock, stay there day after day, seeing always the same faces, and watching the sea, and trying not to go mad."

● On board the Gripsholm is Capt. Lewis A. Till, official color photographer for the Swedish American Line. . . . He returned recently from six months in Scandinavia, where he took nearly 17,000 feet of color movies. . . . He has traveled so widely and see so much that nothing gets under his skin any more. . . . Nothing, that is, of an everyday nature. . . . But last night, when he heard about the ship's plans for today, he got to thinking about those lonesome devils on Devil's Island. . . . Whereupon he hauled forth an empty gallon jug and placed in it three packages of cigarets, three boxes of matches, a pair of socks, a chocolate bar, several handkerchiefs, and some writing paper, envelopes, and pencils. . . . Along with them he inclosed a letter asking whoever among the inmates found the jug to accept his humble offering, and expressing regret that he couldn't send them any forbidden articles. . . . Then he sealed up the opening and awaited his opportunity.

This morning the wind and tide were carefully calculated, so as to make sure the gift would be washed ashore. . . . A stick was lashed to the container to keep it upright. . . . Then it was thrown overboard, and when last seen it was drifting straight toward the island. . . . Capt. Till and all the other passengers are still wondering what those convicts were thinking of when they saw our ship come so close to them and then wheel around and sail away, and what they'll think when they find and open that gallon jug.

Los Angeles Gets Ready to Answer Flood of Queries

Los Angeles, Cal., June 4.—To take care of the heavy flow of tourists expected in southern California this summer the community expanded its "hospitality service" with a crew which went on duty June 1.

Don Thomas, managing director of the All-Year club's tourist information bureau in Los Angeles, said today the auxiliary staf had gone through intensive two month course of sightseeing and training trips over southern California.

"Close contact with tourists served in the information bureau in the last year, when the bureau was in an experimental stage, has helped us to improve our services," Mr. Thomas said. "Even the girls who took the training course last spring and have now almost twelve months' work behind them still attend classes and make field trips each week in order to augment their knowledge of southern California lore, of scenic trips, routes, and hours of admission to museums.

"Almost every question a tourist could ask finds a ready answer, and unusual questions provide no stymie. Sources of information available at the bureau make it possible to answer problems as heterogeneous as 'Is a Mexican marriage legal?' or 'Where can I learn to make neckties?'"

Tunnel Linked to Ancients Found on Valentia Isle

DUBLIN.—[U. P.]—A subterranean passage, about which even the oldest inhabitants know nothing, has been discovered on Valentia Island.

An islander was quarrying stones when he uncovered an opening with steps leading down. Police and several local people attempted to explore the tunnel, but were forced back by foul air and water.

Several theories are advanced regarding its origin:

That it is a smugglers' "cave" dating back from the time of the American, John Paul Jones.

That it formerly conected the island with Skellig Rock monastery, eleven miles out to sea. Natives long have believed that such a tunnel existed.

That it is of Druidic origin. There is a stone-lined turret near the entrance like a chimney, covered with soot traces, and the name of the district in which it was found is "Tinnies," which folklorists say derives from the word "teine," Gaelic for fire.

Fishing Season Gets Under Way in Oregon

Salem, Ore., June 4.—With warm weather prevailing, fly fishing is improving on many Oregon waters, says the travel and information department of the state highway commission. Western Oregon streams in general, except for a few in the extreme southwestern corner, are in excellent shape for fly fishing and good catches are being made. Tillamook county streams in particular have yielded big trout.

African Lions Are Lazy and Good Natured

By Ernest Main.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa.—[Special.]—Kruger National park has started off on a successful season. In the case of most of the animals found there conditions have been good for breeding and the weather has been such that they are all in good shape.

Last August bank holiday there were serious complaints of the lack of accommodations, and for a time the question of limiting the number of visitors to the park was under discussion. However, it has been found impossible to limit the number, either by the issuing of permits in advance or by the introduction of a system of booking the sleeping facilities in the rest camps. The park is open to the public for four and one-half months in the year—from May to September—and it is pointed out that on the basis of one bed per night per person no fewer than 270,000 persons can be accommodated during the season.

Lions form the chief source of attraction in Kruger park, the world's most unusual sanctuary for wild life. Situated in the northwest area of the Transvaal, the park covers an area rather larger than Wales.

The lions betray no fear of motor cars, for, like the other animals, they have not learned to associate these with the presence of man. Motorists driving through the park soon realize that the lion, when not frightened or angry or hunting, is like all other cats—lazy, good natured, and anxious to get through life with as little trouble as possible. Motorists frequently find that lions will not get out of the way of their cars. Members of the staf in such circumstances drive in a low gear, and when the car is almost upon them the animals rise slowly, walk away a few yards, and lie down again. This explains why, of all the photographs taken by visitors, those of the lions are always invariably the best.

Visitors are, however, officially warned to keep the car windows closed and not on any account to get out of the car when lions are near. The rule is particularly to be followed in the case of a lioness with cubs.

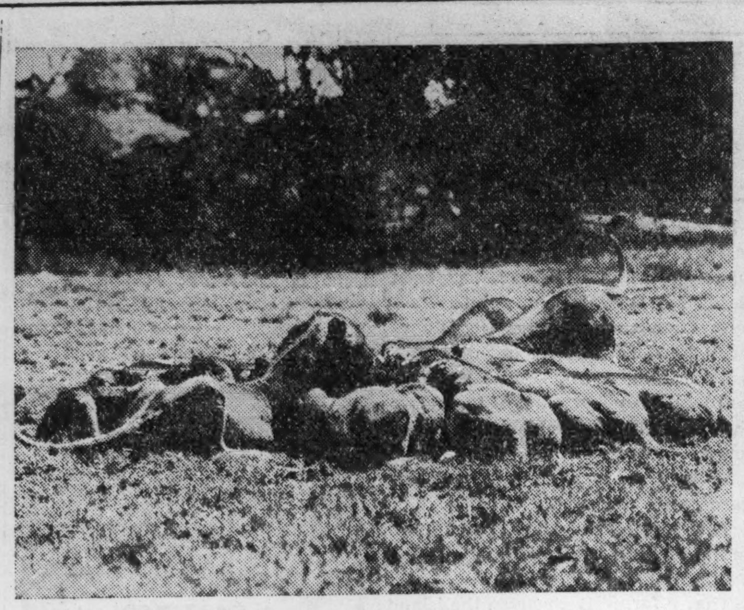
Elephants are to be seen north of the Olifants river, and giraffe, zebra, wart hog, and bush pig are generally numerous. Most numerous of all the animals is the blue wildebeest, which is found everywhere in large herds and is exceedingly tame. Other antelopes are common, chiefly the impala, the kuou, and various smaller bucks. In all the principal rivers the hippopotamus and the crocodile are found, and the black rhinoceros is to be seen in suitable bush country. Leopards are common, but are seldom seen; the harmless cheetah is frequent and is often mistaken for the lion.

Among the more intelligent beasts are the baboons. They are tame, and often sit by the roadside and watch the passing cars. Troops of small monkeys are seen, but they are much more shy and seldom wait for a car to pass them. Snakes swarm all over the park, but, as the visiting season comes in the cold weather, they are all underground. The principal poisonous varieties are the mamba, the ring necked cobra [a spitting snake], and the puff and night adders.

The park is a wonderful sanctuary for bird life. Birds of prey abound, from the hawk eagle with a 9 foot wing span to the tiny sparrow hawk. Vultures are to be seen floating high against the blue, while around a freshly abandoned "kill" scores of them may be seen waddling clumsily.

Nature itself keeps the balance among the species, with the result that there is today probably a greater variety of wild life to be seen in Kruger park than in any area of similar size in the world. In other parts of Africa game may still be found in enormous herds on the open plains, but nowhere is there the same variety as in the Transvaal reserve.

With the unrest in the far east, more and more cruising liners are coming to South Africa, and the itinerary of the passengers always includes a trip to the game reserve.



Lions at the kill in Kruger National park, Africa.

France Meets Its Neighbors' Tourist Rates

By Edmond Taylor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 4.—[Special.]—France at last has taken steps to meet the advantages offered by other European countries to attract tourists.

For years she has watched her neighbors take more and more of her travel trafic away from her through substantial rebates while she relied on her great natural advantages to hold what Premier Edouard Daladier the other day called the "French gold mine."

Now the premier has issued a decree law, one of the first since he was given special powers by parliament, providing for a tourist card which should gladden the hearts of those Americans who intend to visit France this summer. It costs slightly less than a dollar and gives 40 per cent reduction on the railways and 60 per cent on the price of gasoline. It will be issued to all foreigners who plan to stay for at least six days. The reduction on gasoline is good for any amount up to 600 liters—about 158½ gallons.

The reduction on train fares is less than those in neighboring countries. The Germans offer a 60 per cent cut, the Italians 50 per cent, and the Swiss 45 per cent. But the French argument is that their rates were lower in the first place.

The tourist card is counted on to attract an additional 300,000 visitors, and they are expected to spend a billion francs—nearly $31,190,000 at the present rate of exchange.

The number of tourists was more than doubled last year by the exposition. It is hoped the tourist card will help hold considerable of the gain made by the exposition.

Chinese Artwares at ½ Price

$29,500 Worth to Go for $14,700

The story behind this sale is as exciting as the latest flash from a war correspondent! We bought this collection (at a sacrifice price) 'way last December. It has just arrived, 5 months late, after being routed and re-routed dozens of times to avoid destruction by gun-fire. The kilns are now destroyed, the chimneys (excellent targets) are toppled. It will be a long time before any more of these exquisite wares can be made! Though late in arriving, this collection came through safely! It includes museum pieces you really should see! Treasures you'll want to own! And can own at huge savings!

The Country Girls Make Good!

By Ed Sullivan

Hollywood, Cal.

DARRYL ZANUCK of Wahoo, Neb., produced "In Old Chicago." It was directed by Henry King of Christiansburgh, Va. The star was Tyrone Power of Cincinnati, O. He was in love with Alice Faye of New York City, and her rival was Phyllis Brooks of Boise, Idaho. His brother was played by Don Ameche of Kenosha, Wis. His mother was played by Alice Brady of New York City. The "menace" was Brian Donlevy, from Portadown, County Armagh, Ireland. Donlevy's gang lieutenant was Raymond Hatton, from Red Oak, Ia.

● And that gives you a faint idea of how many Main streets of the country and the world go into the making of a moving picture.

● Main street of Helena, Mont., probably is the most unusual stretch of pavement of the smaller cities of the country, for down it to movie stardom and international fame walked Myrna Loy and Gary Cooper.

● "It's funny, but I don't recall Gary at all as a kid," said Myrna.

● Cooper, however, remembers her. "Myrna Williams had more freckles than any other girl in town," he tells you.

● Of the two Helena, Mont., youngsters Gary was the more celebrated, as he became the political cartoonist on the Helena Independent, but his job exploded in his face when the paper supported the wrong candidate in a local election. Cooper, who had been caricaturing the winning candidate, was dropped as a face-saving device by the editor.

● It's difficult to picture a movie star as a small-town boy or girl, but, nevertheless, most of them came from small towns. Jane Peters of Fort Wayne, Ind., is today's Carole Lombard. Jack Kubelski, whose father ran a store in Waukegan, Ill., is better known as Jack Benny now. The two kids who worked in a Milwaukee lumber yard grew up to be Spencer Tracy and Pat O'Brien. The group of youngsters who went to see Rudolf Valentino in the Seattle theaters, and thrilled to his lovemaking, are better known now as Mary Livingstone, Frances Farmer, Keye Luke, Bing Crosby, and Gypsy Rose Lee.

● The pigtailed little girl of Humphreys street, Louisville, Ky., entertains you now under the name of Irene Dunne.

● The balcony usher in the Kansas City theater resolves into William Powell, suave movie hero. The girl who lived at 5123 Arch street, Philadelphia, and attended West Philadelphia High school, matures into Jeanette MacDonald. The college youngster who played the lead at Madison, Wis., in an amateur presentation of "Excess Baggage" is heard of years later as Don Ameche. The Lake View High school, Chicago, senior tickles the public fancy as Edgar Bergen, master of Charlie McCarthy. The good looking boy who lived at 2112 Fulton street, Cincinnati, becomes Tyrone Power.

● Darryl Zanuck, mightiest power in the movies, is the boy from Wahoo, Neb., who shocked the town by running away to join the 6th Nebraska regiment of the National Guard. The son of the osteopath at Filley, Neb., wins page one attention as Robert Taylor, and nations put aside affairs of state to wonder if he has hair on his chest. The girl who sold stockings in a Stockholm department store is languorous Greta Garbo, though she was the Gustaffson girl then. The three girls who attended public school in Butte, Mont., are Martha Raye, Andrea Leeds, and Lucille Ball, interviewed in the fan magazines.

● The telegraph operator at Green Bay, Wis., famed for its professional football teams, is Hugh O'Connell. The daughter of a St. Paul train dispatcher is Joan Davis. The daughter of Patrolman Lappert of the New York police department is Alice Faye, guarded by cops so that fans won't tear off her clothes. The good looking blonde from Mamaroneck High school at Mamaroneck, N. Y., is Claire Trevor. The boy who sold candy in a St. Paul theater is Walter Abel. The advertising salesman on the Philadelphia Bulletin becomes Nelson Eddy. The British private picked up by the Red Cross stretcher bearers from the muck of Vimy ridge is Claude Rains, and the South African soldier decorated by his battalion commander with the military cross of Britain sneers at you from the screen, Basil Rathbone.

● If it takes all kinds of people to make the world, it can be said just as truthfully that it takes all the Main streets of the world to compose a moving picture. The Main street of Kankakee,

That First "Dog Fight"

A squadron of Allied fighters returning from 1917 bombing raid.

War Ace's Greatest Thrill Comes in Victory No. 1

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

IN A THRILLING "dog fight" over no man's land in the region of Chambley, France, on Friday, Sept. 13, 1918, 22-year-old Second Lieut. Frank K. Hays brought down his first German plane.

Although he continued on as an aviator throughout the remainder of the war and destroyed five more enemy planes, earning for himself the coveted designation of ace, he remembers most vividly that day in September when as an untried flyer he vanquished his first foeman.

"The first that I knew of the presence of danger that day," he says, "was when machine gun bullets began cracking past my ears and I saw tracer bullets sneaking by uncomfortably close."

Lieutenant Hays, who was a member of the 13th aero squadron of the 2d American pursuit group, based on an airdrome at Toul, was out with a flight of five planes under the leadership of Capt. J. D. Este. It was about a twenty-minute flight from the airdrome to the sector of the front line that Hays and his companions had been ordered to patrol for two hours, and the five planes were sailing back and forth from one end of the sector to the other at a height of 5,000 to 6,000 feet. Overhead were bunches of clouds. Through the openings between these clouds here and there the sun was shining down.

The flight under the leadership of Captain Este, a quintet of French Spads motored with single 220-horsepower Hispano-Suiza V-8 engines and each armed with two .30-caliber Vickers machine guns, mounted on the cowling and synchronized to fire through the propeller, had just reached the west end of its patrol sector and was turning when seven enemy Fokkers spotted it through rifts in the clouds.

The German planes, according to Hays, were capable of a speed about equal to that of the Spads, approximately 135 miles an hour. They could not dive as fast as the planes flown by the Americans, but they could climb much faster. Those of this flight of seven, it was ascertained later, were piloted by experienced flyers.

The Germans peered down upon the American planes while the latter were out of alignment in the business of turning. The enemy pilots pushed forward their sticks and went into dives, swooping down upon their unsuspecting adversaries at terrific speed.

Hays, on account of being one of the least experienced of the pilots of his flight, was supposed to fly at one of the open ends of a V formation. This was customary among war aviators. He was maneuvering his plane to reach the position and was slightly above the other planes of his flight when the Germans dropped in to pay their call.

The cracking machine gun bullets from the rear jolted Hays into the realization of danger. He was more startled than frightened, however. He had no time, he says, to become really scared.

The enemy in their eagerness to destroy the Americans overdove, and as they did so Hays put his plane into a vertical bank. He made a complete vertical circle, and when he came out of it he saw all of the other planes, both friends and foes, some distance below. He singled out one of the Fokkers, dropped upon its tail, and pressed the two triggers at the end of his flying stick that controled the fire of his twin machine guns.

Frank Hays with Spad bearing grim reaper insignia of 13th aero squadron.

But both guns jammed. There was nothing for him to do but pull out of the mêlée. He got away in this manner and began working on the guns. There were five or six routine manipulations prescribed for jammed machine guns. He tried all of them and finally got the weapons working again.

In an aerial engagement such as this planes often become widely separated. A fight may range over several miles. So by the time Hays was ready to renew action there were only three planes within his range of vision. These were one American and two enemy, and they were directly below him. The Germans were taking turns firing on the American, who was in a desperate situation.

Hays dove on the enemy plane more distant from his comrade. He immediately got upon the tail of the Fokker, and almost the first bursts from his guns registered on the enemy plane. He could see his tracer bullets entering the cockpit of the German. He saw his antagonist go into a steep dive. The vanquished German quickly fell out of sight. American troops saw him crash in German territory.

Planes in battle lose altitude rapidly, and Hays by this time was flying at a height of only about 3,500 feet. There still was the other German plane within his sight, but when he got close to it and began shooting it streaked for its base somewhere behind the enemy lines.

Hays and the other American flew back to their airdrome at Toul. The man in the other plane was Captain Este. Soon another plane of the original flight of five dropped down from the sky. These three were the only ones to survive the battle, since two of the trio that had been separated from Hays and Este in the fight were shot down by the Germans. Against this score the Americans had two of the enemy to their credit, the plane that Hays had destroyed and one other.

Safe on the ground, Lieutenant Hays found that his plane, although it was not disabled, bore fourteen bullet marks. Not one of these bullets, however, had so much as grazed him. Obviously the worst that the jinx of a Friday the 13th could do to him was to put a few holes in his plane. Thereafter for the remainer of the war no plane that Lieutenant Hays flew ever was touched by a bullet, notwithstanding the fact that he brought down five more of the enemy.

As the war progressed Hays discovered that he was calmer and calmer each time that he met the enemy. His first fight was his most exciting exploit of the war. For bringing down that first German plane he was decorated with the distinguished service cross. For another citation he was awarded the silver star medal.

Hays was born in Louisville and came to Chicago with his parents as a small child. He attended Englewood High school and had had two years at the University of Illinois when war broke out and he enlisted in the air service. He got his first training at the ground school at Champaign. From there he was sent to Kelly field at San Antonio, Tex., and then to a camp at Dallas, Tex. When he landed in France he had only forty hours in the air. In France he was sent to the U. S. army air field at Issoudun. He got further instruction at the aerial gunnery school near St. Jean de Mont on the west coast. When ready for fighting he was assigned to the 13th aero squadron, commanded by Maj. Charles Biddle.

After the war Hays returned to Chicago, where he was employed for nearly two years in the securities business. In 1920 he entered the service of the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, of which at present he is a vice president. He is married, is the father of a 10-year-old son and a 6-year-old daughter, and resides at 10016 Longwood drive, Beverly Hills.

So is Barbara Stanwyck. Grace Moore always sang at the church socials in Jellico, Tenn., and the daughter of the first suffraget in Hartford, Conn., bobs up years later as Katharine Hepburn. Ruben marries Virginia Bruce, the girl from Minneapolis.

Glenda Farrell, from town named by traveling salesman.

Enid, Okla., owes its name to a traveling salesman who was passing through on a train and stopped there for a cup of coffee and ham and eggs. Sitting in the depot restaurant, he heard some of the citizens arguing over the choice of a name for the hamlet. "We'll leave it up to you, stranger," said the spokesman. "We can't agree on a town name. You name it." The wayfarer spelled out the name on the restaurant window —ENID—which is DINE backward. So that's how Enid, Okla., was named. The girl who used to watch the trains go by there is Glenda Farrell.

The boy who lived in Flemington, N. J., during the Hauptmann trial is in the movies now —Dick Foran. His father was collector of the port of New York. Son of University of Pennsylvania's famous Mike Murphy hoofs on the screen as George Murphy. The girl from Washington Irving High school who studied commercial drawing is Claudette Colbert. The assistant stage manager for Sam H. Harris develops into comical Allen Jenkins. The voice behind the screen at Fall River, Mass., in the days of silent pictures steps out into the open as Hugh Herbert of "Woo-Woo" fame. The pretty little British girl who used to play with the little Japanese children on the streets of Tokio is Olivia De Havilland.

Main streets of the Tribune states sent out a great batch of performers — Spencer Tracy, Dennis O'Keefe, Robert Young, Charlie Winninger, Margaret Lindsay, Walt Disney, Billy and Bobby Mauch, John Litel, Pat O'Brien, Ronald Regan, Edgar Bergen, Doris Weston, Kent Taylor, Harriet Hilliard, Fred MacMurray, Dick Lane, Bette Jaynes, Nat Pendleton, Jean Chatburn, Alan Curtis, Don Ameche, Carole Lombard, Bill Frawley, Jack Benny, Marsha Hunt, Louise Campbell, Charlie Butterworth, Beulah Bondi.

From Massachusetts Main streets came Bette Davis, Jack Haley, Parkyakarkus, Veda Ann Borg, Eleanor Powell, Bob Benchley, Ray Bolger, Lewis Stone, Sophie Tucker, Mary Carlisle, Charlie Bickford, Jed Prouty, Song Writer Jimmy McHugh, Benny Rubin, Rita Johnson, Edna May Oliver, and Borrah Minnevitch.

The Main streets of the deep south were responsible for Margaret Sullavan, Melvyn Douglas, Frances Langford, Randolph Scott, Sidney Blackmer, Barton MacLane, Buddy Ebsen, Gail Patrick, Dorothy Lamour, Miriam Hopkins, Leah Ray, Jane Withers, Judy Canova, Cora Witherspoon, and Una Merkel.

FROM IDAHO

● The girl in colors on page one is Lana Turner, who was born in Wallace, Idaho, Feb. 8, 1920. Her father was Virgil Turner, a professional dancer. Lana was educated in the Hollywood, Cal., High school and first attracted attention in the movies in Warner Brothers' "They Won't Forget." Her favorite pastimes are tennis and horseback riding.

Arkansas contributed Dick Powell and Bazooka Bob Burns. Texas sent up John Boles, Nan Grey, Joan Crawford, the late Ted Healy, Guy Kibbee, and Judith Barrett. Missouri's Main streets sponsored Ginger Rogers, Jane Wyman, John Beal, Janet Beecher, Lynn Overman, Gladys Swarthout, Betty Grable, Dick Baldwin, Cliff Edwards, Dorothea Kent, and Robert Cummings. Miss Wyman comes from St. Joseph, Mo., which was Jesse James' hangout. Minnesota bats high with June Lang, Virginia Bruce, Joan Davis, Walter Abel, Suzanne Larson, Warren William, Lew Ayres, and Alan Dinehart. North Dakota's Valley City contributed Ann Sothern. Salt Lake City hasn't many to offer, but one is Loretta Young. Idaho rests its vote with Lana Turner and Gloria Dickson. Arizona gave us gravel-throated Andy Devine.

Andy Devine, gravel-throated gift of Arizona.

There is no necessity to go on, however, as the thought of this piece has been driven home; that is, if it weren't for the people Main street sends to Hollywood, Hollywood couldn't send moving pictures to Main street.

"Test Pilot" offered the most recent proof of this. Myrna Loy is from Helena, Mont.; Clark Gable is a small-town boy from Cadiz, O.; Spencer Tracy is from Prospect avenue, Milwaukee, and Lionel Barrymore is a Philadelphian. The picture was directed by a Pasadena native son, Victor Fleming.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you please print in your column some facts about Don Ameche? Do you think you can squeeze in a picture of him? Try to print it as soon as possible. Much obliged. Sincerely yours,

MISS S. K.

Editor's note: I guess we can oblige. Mr. Ameche was born in Kenosha, Wis. Educated Columbia college and University of Wisconsin. He's married and has two children. Before entering motion pictures he appeared on several radio programs in Chicago. And here's his picture.

DON AMECHE

A fan gets picture and biography.

Dear Mae: I have never been stirred enough to contribute to your column until after seeing Edith Fellows last week in "Little Miss Roughneck." Have never seen enough of this little star and therefore anticipated with pleasure seeing this movie. I was flabbergasted and completely disgusted when they had our clever little imp sing! Must everybody sing to stay in the movies? Miss Fellows' acting is without fault when she plays the little meanie, but why, O, why must they make a second Deanna Durbin out of her? We enjoy hearing Deanna sing, but, Mae, it was actually painful to listen to Edith!

According to this movie fan, the picture would have been perfect without the opera singing scene.

I want to get another item off my chest. Just saw "Stage Door" last night, with Katharine Hepburn and Ginger Rogers. When Katie sees herself with Ginger doesn't she realize how ridiculous that hairdress makes her appear? I think she could be very good to look at if she only tried. She is a splendid actress, but why doesn't some one tell her about her hair? Outside of Katie's appearance I enjoyed the picture a lot.

Yours very truly, EDITH FABIAN.

Editor's note: "Into each life some rain must fall," etc.

Dear Miss Tinée: I saw Willemina Phillips' letter in The Tribune, and I think she's darn right, if you'll pardon the forceful language. Errol Flynn did make a fool of himself in "The Perfect Specimen," and I hear he's doing it again in "Four's a Crowd."

When the reticent Nelson Eddy kicked over the traces and began to raise Cain on a radio program I was first surprised and then grieved. He's the last person I'd ever suspect of taking up monkey shines.

But the movies have gone crazy for sure. They've come in droves: "Call It a Day," "Topper," "It's Love I'm After" (Leslie Howard did it in that!), "Merrily We Live." All adorable pictures, to be sure, but, as Miss Phillips said, "It's getting unbearably silly." Slapstick went over big in the days of custard pies and the Keystone cops, but I believe America has progressed from that comparatively infantile age and would like more good, serious fare, with just a pinch of comedy now and then to keep things livened up.

A Phillips supporter,

DELLA DAYTON.

Editor's note: You'll get plenty of answers to this letter, Della!

Dear Mae Tinée: I want to say I agree with Peggy Leith about Marjorie Weaver. She was the high spot of "Second Honeymoon" and should have had a bigger part in "Sally, Irene, and Mary."

In my estimation she is the best young actress in Hollywood. She has everything a good actress needs. Here's hoping she gets lots of good parts and continued success. Also success to you and your column.

One of your fans, W. D. M.

MARJORIE WEAVER

Called "best young actress in Hollywood."

Editor's note: Yes, Marjorie was a joy in that picture! She'll probably forge right ahead—and be grateful for your partisanship. Glad you like the column. Come again.

Dear Miss Tinée: Please give me the cast of actors in "Stella Dallas." Thank you. ANN.

Editor's note: Following is the cast of "Stella Dallas":

Stella Martin	Barbara Stanwyck
Stella Dallas	Barbara Stanwyck
Stephen Dallas	John Boles
Laurel Dallas	Anne Shirley
Helen	Barbara O'Neil
Ed Munn	Alan Hale
Mrs. Martin	Marjorie Main
Mr. Martin	Edmund Elton
Charlie Martin	George Walcott
Carrie Jenkins	Gertrude Short
Richard	Tim Holt
Mrs. Grosvenor	Nella Walker
Con	Bruce Satterlee
Con (grown up)	Jimmy Butler
Lee	Jack Egger
John	Dickie Jones
Miss Phillibrown	Anne Shoemaker

You're very welcome.

Dear Miss Tinée: To settle a dispute will you please inform us who the child star was that played the part of the "brat" in the picture "These Three," starring Merle Oberon and Miriam Hopkins? One of us says it was Bonita Granville and the other Edith Fellows. Please straighten this out.

What recent pictures have Bonita and Edith made?

MRS. HOWARD J. REILLY.

Editor's note: Bonita Granville played the rôle of Mary Tilford, the "brat," in "These Three." Bonita's most recent film is "Merrily We Live," and Edith's are "Pennies from Heaven" and "Tugboat Princess."

Russia—A Drab Eden

Traveler Finds Pleasures Subjugated to Utility

Foreword This word picture of Russia today was written by an American youth—from Salt Lake City, Utah—who has just returned to Berlin from a visit to the U. S. S. R.

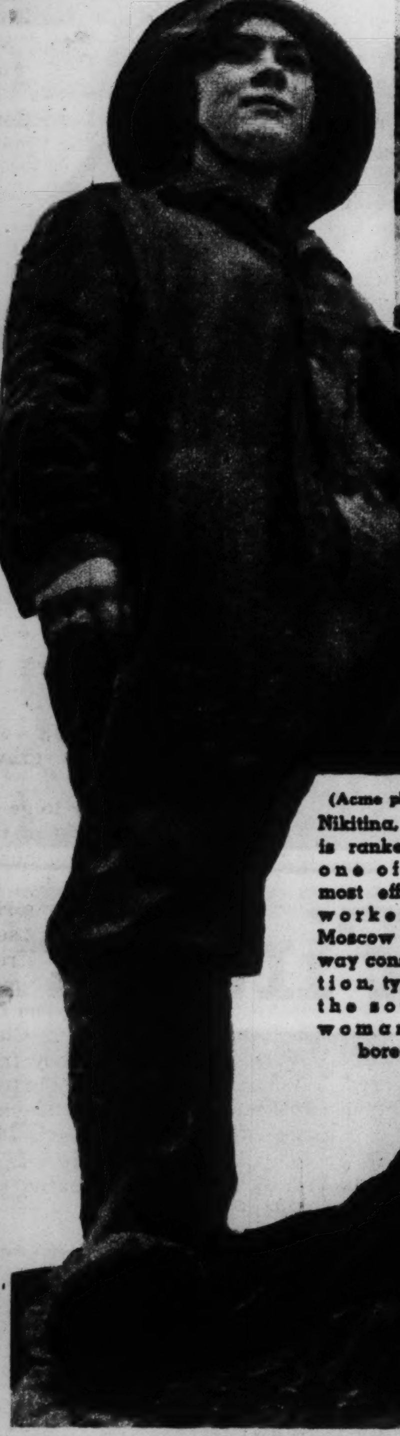
By RICHARD SCOWCROFT

IT WAS a German on the boat who said, "Russia is tomorrow, America today; but in twenty years——" a snap of the fingers. And between gulps of vodka he went on to consider the amazing possibilities of a German-Russian combination, the material aspects and ideals of Russia, the energy of Hitler.

Russia tomorrow. But what of Russia today? The first contact is not a pleasant one. Our boat docked at 10 in the morning, and it was not until 3 in the afternoon that we had finished with the customs. Every film negative was held up to the light, every postcard looked at and commented upon, every small box in my shaving kit opened.

During this ordeal the guide provided for me noticed a club badge in the shape of a gold cross. "A cross," he said. "How funny! O, but you believe in Christ! Well, no crime in admitting it. No religion in Russia, no Sundays."



(Acme photo.) Nikitina, who is ranked as one of the most efficient workers in Moscow subway construction, typifies the soviet woman laborer.

"But how it that possible?" we asked. "What takes the place of religion?" "We give them education instead." Children are taught to be militant atheists, and in the theater when a priest comes onto the stage there are snickers in the audience. Only once did we see a church that is still a church; some of the old people still attend.

We came into the country by Odessa—grim, gray, depressing. The car in which we were driven about was one of very few automobiles on the streets. Buildings haven't had a coat of paint in years; people are dressed in anything which will give protection against cold. Women are bundled in shawls and heavy drab coats and wear shapeless cotton stockings. Men have fur-collared coats, boots, and either caps or fur hats. Everything is entirely utilitarian. Buildings are four walls and a few windows; shops are places where people buy things to supply the primary needs. At night the streets and buildings are dimly lighted with low-power light globes, and through this gloom people walk back and forth with seemingly no purpose in mind, merely waiting until time to go to bed and then start another day.

Back at our hotel, we had bortsch, thick with cabbage and hunks of meat; roast chicken and vegetables, excellent ice cream. Listening to an orchestra play old American jazz, we watched the few people who came in, wondered if they were enjoying themselves and if they were conscious of their unkempt clothes, of their uncombed hair. It seemed to us then that all the niceness, all the small touches that make life more pleasant, had been forgotten in their drive for necessities. It seemed as if all these people had lost their sense of humor.

The more industrialized cities present a much gayer picture than does Odessa. There are silk stockings and attempts at style and color in clothes. Everywhere buildings are either going up or coming down, wide streets are being made much wider, large squares larger. The building program should continue indefinitly, because by the time the present plan is completed reconstruction will have to begin on what has already been done. Buildings two years old are already well on the way to decay, and one hears of towering structures in which elevators have been forgotten.

With an influx of peasants from farm to factory, the need for space was so great that beauty and in many cases efficiency were sacrificed to speed. Inside the apartments are not much better; small and cramped for space. There might be families of four or five living in one room and sharing a kitchen and bath with three or four other families. A two-room apartment with private kitchen and bath is the height of high living. But Russia is a closed world and most of the people can't conceive of the living conditions in other countries. They can still remember when they shared rooms and beds with other families, and they find their present condition much improved. When we visited one family living in two rooms the man asked, "Does my brother in America have as nice a place as this?" We looked around the dark rooms, at the table and chairs in the center, the single beds in which two persons slept, and we thought of the shared kitchen and shared bathroom, and said nothing.

We are told that in Russia the sexes are on an equal basis. Judging from the type of employment in which many women are engaged, that idea has been carried out to its fullest possibilities. Women digging foundations for buildings, women heaving rocks in road construction, women struggling with railroad ties; woman coal stokers, street car conductors, street cleaners. The only time I saw a peasant woman laugh was when one, working on a road, tossed a rock which hit me in the back.

The nurseries and crèches where the children of these women stay during working hours are sometimes not too well equipped but are doubtless more cheerful and clean than many of the homes. The children appeared to be healthy and happy. One of them said "Dada" when we entered. The menus seemed wholesome and appetizing, and each child had a daily bath.

Salaries, of course, vary to such a degree that one rather doubts the ideal of a classless society. The fact that all are comrades does not eliminate the fact that some have automobiles while others have scarcely enough to eat. Prices of articles vary according to scarcity and newness. A family of four spent 3 rubles a day for bread, which forms a large part of the diet. One lemon might cost 3 rubles, a chocolate candy bar 5 to 7 rubles, a pair of shoes 60 to 200 rubles. The shops are always crowded. Long lines form—the longest are buying newspapers from small stalls.

There is a dead seriousness about everything, work and play. When couples dance they never seem to relax and enjoy it. They look as if they're bound to see that dance through if it kills them.

From morning until night children look at pictures showing the gloom of their pre-revolutionary existence as contrasted with the sunny brightness of their lives today, and cartoons of former aristocrats and Nazis adorn the walls of primary grade activity rooms. A children's theater in Leningrad presented a play full of revolutionary blood and thunder, capture by the White army, treason, killings. The majority of the audience was made up of youngsters about 10 years old, and they applauded loudly.

One is not allowed to forget for an instant that he is a member of the U. S. S. R. and that certain godlike men are looking after his every interest, and that certain vipers are doing their level best to destroy him. In one of the former cathedrals is a large cartoon showing man with all the forces of evil working against him—the church; two hideous square-jawed men with protruding teeth, one wearing the Fascist insignia and the other the Nazi swastika; and, lastly, a reptile with the face of Trotzky.

And then there is the Kremlin, where at night a dimly lighted red flag flies dramatically in the wind; and that supreme bit of propaganda, the Lenin mausoleum, through which awed hundreds daily shuffle for a glimpse of the man who liberated them. Whether or not it is true that the figure is really the embalmed body and not, as has been suggested, a wax model, does not really matter; it is brilliantly successful and no church was ever filled with more devout worship than is that small marble building. For one part of the population the propaganda means nothing. As a Russian artist stated, "It goes in one ear and out the other." But for a larger group, for the children and the peasants, whose minds are being formed, it is a tremendous instrument toward creating satisfaction with what they have and a fighting enthusiasm to protect it.

Difficult demands are made of the creative artist. All art must be realistic, all art must be propagandic, all art must be directed to the ideal of a classless society. If one argues against such a position he will very likely be answered with, "There never was a piece of art produced that was not propagandic." And argument ceases with that. The result in painting is endless portrayals of Red army events and revolutionary leaders. Occasionally a still life comes through, and some vivid poster work—generally propagandic. The theater, however, makes up for the deficiencies in some of the other arts and certainly adds color and beauty to otherwise drab lives. One doesn't wonder that theater tickets must be ordered weeks, months in advance and that capacity audiences sit enraptured from 7:30 to midnight, and that 12 and 14 year old children run down the ailes applauding Shakespeare and Tschaikowsky. And Russia can still show the rest of the world what a real ballet is. One wonders a bit despairingly if the lovely ballerinas wear cotton stockings and sacklike dresses.

Russian peasant of the type that is being educated to prefer his present standards of living.

Education is being carried out on a gigantic scale, not only for the youth but for all that mass of people who formerly made up the illiterate 70 per cent of the population. The Pioneer and Octoberite palaces, generally former homes or clubs of the nobility, are excellently equipped to encourage students between 8 and 16 to spend their leisure constructively. Here these youngsters study technical and biological sciences, sculpture, painting, and embroidery. An 11-year-old boy had done some excellent small statues of soldiers, vigorous and understanding. We were told with great pride that this boy's uncle living in Canada, though having the same talents, is not a sculptor but a barber. A similar program is carried out for older people in the culture centers, where lectures, concerts, and other forms of entertainment are presented. Every one can have education. We saw a dormitory for 6,000 students, most of whom are on scholarship. The students pay nothing to live here, and the accommodations are quite comfortable. In connection with this were a clinic, an inexpensive dining room, a laundry, a nursery. Seven years of education is compulsory. In the country villages, where there are no facilities for higher education, scholarships to the cities are granted. The museums and art galleries attract great crowds—groups listening to lectures, youngsters going about by themselves. Russian people today may lack certain things, but they do not lack the opportunity to improve themselves intellectually and culturally. The far-reaching educational program is one thing to which they may point with great pride and say, "This at least we did."

Here's Thrilling New Lustre for Hair All Summer Long

where all outdoors is a playground for the movie stars! where beaches are lined with world famous beauties—a survey made by the leading Hollywood newspaper revealed that more women now buy Drene Shampoo to keep their hair beautiful than all other leading shampoos combined.

Amazing shampoo discovery leaves hair gloriously soft, radiantly beautiful, and easy to manage, whether dry, normal or oily.

THIS summer, you are going to get the surprise of your life. You can see your hair more glamorous than you ever dreamed possible—soft, radiantly beautiful, easy to manage—even on hottest days. And you will be astonished to find how quickly and easily you can overcome that dull, matted-down appearance of past summers—this new day way.

For, today, there are two amazing kinds of Drene Shampoo, which work seeming beauty miracles for hair during hot summer months. Magically wash away that sticky, gummy film caused by excess perspiration and dust. Eliminate that dull, unattractive, matted appearance. Leave the hair silky-smooth, alluringly fragrant, dazzling with beautiful highlights.

If your hair is inclined to be dull, dry-looking, and unmanageable, you should use the new Special Drene Shampoo for Dry Hair. If your hair is normal or oily, then you should use Regular Drene Shampoo.

Drene makes this startling difference because it is so different from ordinary shampoos that the process by which it is made has been patented. It is not a soap, so it cannot possibly leave an unrinsable, sticky, soap film on hair to dull natural lustre. Thus, special after-rinses are totally unnecessary. It is not an oil, so it cannot deposit a gummy film to catch dust and dirt. Yet hair gleams and glistens like threads of silk.

Drene magically makes 5 times more lather than soap in hardest water. Lather so gentle, yet so active, that dirt, grease, perspiration—even loose dandruff flakes—are washed away with a single sudsing and thorough rinsing in plain water. We have not found a milder, safer, more beautifying shampoo.

So sensational are the results which Drene performs—that, today, it is used by more women than any other shampoo. Please consider carefully what an important recommendation that is.

Procter & Gamble make and guarantee both kinds of Drene Shampoo. Get either the new Special Drene for Dry Hair, or Regular Drene at drug, department or 10c stores. Or, ask for a Drene shampoo at your beauty shop. You'll be thrilled to see how easy it is to keep your hair brilliantly beautiful during the summer with Drene. Trade-Mark U. S. Pat. Off. Reg.

'White Ants,' Dry Rot at Work

An exhibit at Rosenwald museum, Chicago, showing termites actually at work in tupelo gum. Notice size, indicated by ruler.

TERMITES, popularly called white ants, eat cellulose, such as the fibrous structure of wood. The damage which they do to wooden structures and other cellulose materials is conservatively estimated at $40,000,000 a year. No section of the United States is immune to their attack, and few species of wood resist them unless treated. Proper construction of a house, it is true, can eliminate their destructive work, but the need for precaution is not realized by the vast majority of builders.

Contrary to popular opinion, termites are not "new" insects imported from the tropics. They have been present in this country for centuries. But it is only lately that the general public has become aware of them as destructive insects. As the forests are becoming depleted and they are deprived of their natural habitats, they seek other sources of wood—houses among them—for food and shelter.

Diagram of termites' plan of attack.

Several types of destructive termites exist in this country. The subterranean or ground-burrowing type is most widespread and devastating. An illustration on this page shows their plan of attack.

Because these subterranean termites shun light and remain hidden from view, the damage which they accomplish often reaches an advanced stage, with the infested lumber becoming structurally weak and unsafe, before the termites are so much as discovered. An unusual display of a colony of termites vigorously at work is on exhibit at the Rosenwald Museum of Science and Industry.

Even more destructive to wood—and homes—in this country are the low parasitic forms of plant life known as rot-producing fungi, causing damage that runs into millions of dollars a year.

They thrive under a wide range of moisture, temperature, and food conditions. The particular variety with which we are concerned here feed on the cellulose found in wood.

The spores of these fungi lodge in the crevices of wood. If conditions are favorable (moisture, temperature, food) they germinate rapidly, emitting a labyrinthlike branchwork of destructive filaments which finally permeate the membranes of the affected wood.

This condition is known as dry rot or decay.

Some types of wood are less subject than others to fungus attack, but unfortunately the resistant woods are very expensive and are seldom used for construction purposes.

If the cellulose in wood is made unfit as food for termites and fungi it will resist attack.

To this end scientists have worked for years on the impregnation of the wood fiber with suitable chemicals toxic to termites and fungi. Many substances have been tried. Some have been found ineffective, some too expensive, others difficult to apply or harmful to human beings.

The two outstanding products successfully used are creosote oil and zinc chloride. The American Wood Preservers' association, the recognized technical and engineering associations, as well as several divisions of the federal government, have for some time specified these two—zinc chloride where a clean, odorless, paintable treatment is needed (zinc chloride also increases the resistance of the treated wood to fire), and creosote oil for uses where its discoloration, odor, and inflammability are not objectionable.

An outstanding proof of the merit of zinc chloride is seen in the "termite test house" built in the Panama Canal Zone in 1925 by the American Wood Preservers' association, coöperatively with the United States bureau of entomology. The house proper is built of lumber treated with zinc chloride, resting on creosoted supports. In this section, the area in North America which is the most heavily infested with termites and which has climatic conditions conducive to rapid decay, untreated wood is completely destroyed within a year. The 1936 inspection showed this building to be free from termite attack and in a perfect state of preservation.

Recently it has been found possible to fix the zinc chloride preservative in the lumber more firmly, greatly extending tne permanence of the treatment. This development, known as chromated zinc chloride, was the result of an intensive research program carried out jointly by the du Pont laboratories and one of the leading wood preserving plant operators. It offers the most effective clean lumber treatment known to date for the prevention of termite and fungus attack.

In addition to its effectiveness in combating termites and decay, chromated zinc chloride imparts a definite degree of fire resistance. It also has the several requisites for use in home construction of being safe to use, moderate in cost, clean, odorless, and paintable.

Second-growth timber, growing rapidly and of loose formation, is usually considered nondurable. Actually, however, it possesses excellent mechanical strength. Its principal drawback is poor resistance to decay. Invariably second-growth timber, treated, will prove to be not only much less expensive but definitly superior to untreated varieties of the best grades of wood. The same factor is true of certain species of lumber usually regarded as of inferior durability.

A caution against exaggerated fears is appropriate. Damage by termites is very real. The aforementioned $40,000,000 annual figure is quoted from Dr. Thomas E. Snyder, senior entomologist of the United States bureau of entomology and plant quarantine.

It should be pointed out that the risk of collapse of any fairly well constructed building in the United States or in any northern part of the temperate zone, due solely to termites, can be dismissed as very rare. Further, once a house is built, the fight against termites must be chiefly by effective reconstruction of certain parts to cut off termite entrance from the outside.

It should also be again emphasized that the sum total of damage due to rot and decay is far greater than that due to termites, costing home owners millions of dollars each year in repairs and replacements which could be eliminated by the use of treated lumber.

DURING the spring and summer months thousands of American families either buy or consider buying a puppy for the home, and up comes the question of price.

No matter what breed is under consideration, we find many prospective purchasers who think a dog of good stock may be bought for a song, and register disbelief and dismay when told that a sound, healthy twelve-week-old puppy ought to cost them (for example) $25 or $35.

This schnauzer has reason to hold his head high. He's Champion Zeck von Egelsee, and he recently won best of breed in a big spring dog show.

The American Kennel club brought up the problem of puppy sales and costs at one of its spring conferences. The organization emphasized that spring brings out the unscrupulous puppy vender who scours the country for mongrel litters or even unwanted pure-bred dogs and makes his profit on a big turnover at "bargain rates." They may sell a puppy for as little as a dollar. If a buyer wants just a dollar's worth of dog, that's his business. But the trouble is that in many cases he is led to believe that he is getting $25 worth of dog, which is another story.

For years we have urged puppy buyers to keep this point in mind: No one can raise sound, healthy puppies from registered stock, give them good food, keep them well, and sell them when they are twelve weeks old for a couple of dollars. Nevertheless every week buyers of "bargain" puppies place their troubles before us, some asking if they should pay an extra $5 for "registration papers"! Recently one buyer called to find out the room number in the county building where she was to call for registration papers on her new puppy, sold to her as a pure-bred. The unscrupulous seller told the buyer to call at the county building for the papers—an obvious misrepresentation, of course. Many letters tell us that their "bargain pup" is very sick or has just died.

Naturally we feel sorry that the first venture into dog ownership has resulted so disastrously. Yet in every instance it was a case of a "bargain puppy."

High Cost of Puppies Is Justified

Here are some of the costs that the breeder faces in raising a litter of puppies from sound registered stock. First there is the investment in the female. This may run into hundreds of dollars. In nearly all cases the breeder must charge against the litter a stud fee that may range from $25 to $50. Supposing there are five pups in the litter and the stud service was $25, each puppy already has a $5 cost against it the day it is whelped.

The mother of the puppies must be well fed before she whelps and when she is nursing her litter. Then well cared-for pups, once they are weaned, get cod liver oil or some supplementary diet combination containing several vitamins. They need calcium, lots of milk, prepared dog food, meat, and other foods. None of these important foods is sold at a dime a dozen. Then there is the veterinarian fee for immunizing the litter against distemper. Add the cost of medicine to worm the litter. Itemize all these expenses and even forget the time that dog breeder spends on the puppies (after they are weaned they get four or five feedings a day) and it's very obvious that each pup can't be sold for a dollar or two.

This perky little wire-haired terrier is owned by Mrs. Carl Witzke. The wire-haired fox terrier continues to be one of America's most popular terrier breeds.

In the dog-buying game one gets what he pays for, just as he does in buying a car, a radio, or a pair of shoes.

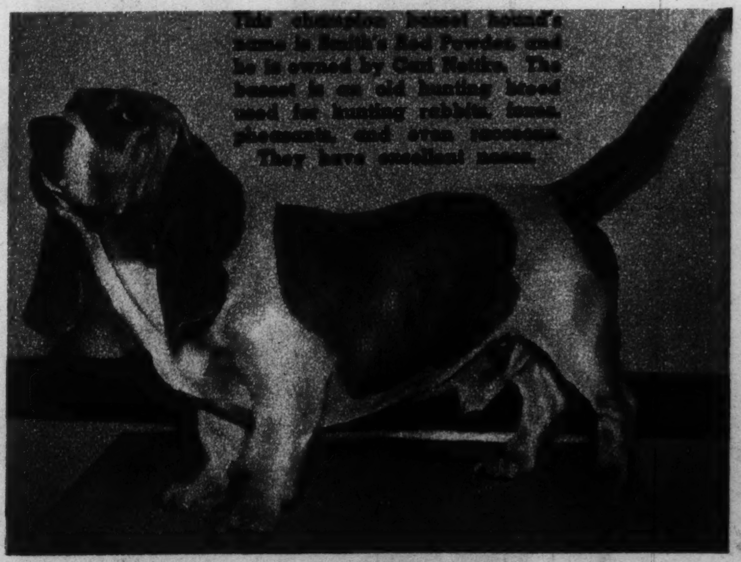
DOG NOTE

Charles L. Lawrence of Linden, N. J., has offered a prize of $100 for a field trial of retrievers worked as spaniels. Mr. Lawrence states that several trainers and judges have assured him that the idea is a practical one. Although this idea may be practical for some dog groups, there is nothing new about it, as retrievers working like spaniels have been seen in the middle west for many years. In fact, the Howell kennel at Barrington, Ill., used to work as many as four Labradors at a time ahead of the guns—all dogs trained to stop or sit when birds were flushed and guns were shot. We saw these dogs in action many years ago. But the point that most dog owners make on this idea of using retrievers as spaniels is this: Whereas it may be advantageous for some dog owners to have their retrievers trained this way, sportsmen have spaniels to work ahead of the guns. So why not let the Labradors stay in their own field, fit into the hunting as they are supposed to do, and have the spaniels do the work for which they are eminently fitted?



This champion basset hound's name is Smith's Red Powder, and he is owned by Carl Nettke. The basset is an old hunting breed used for hunting rabbits, foxes, pheasants, and even raccoons. They have excellent noses.

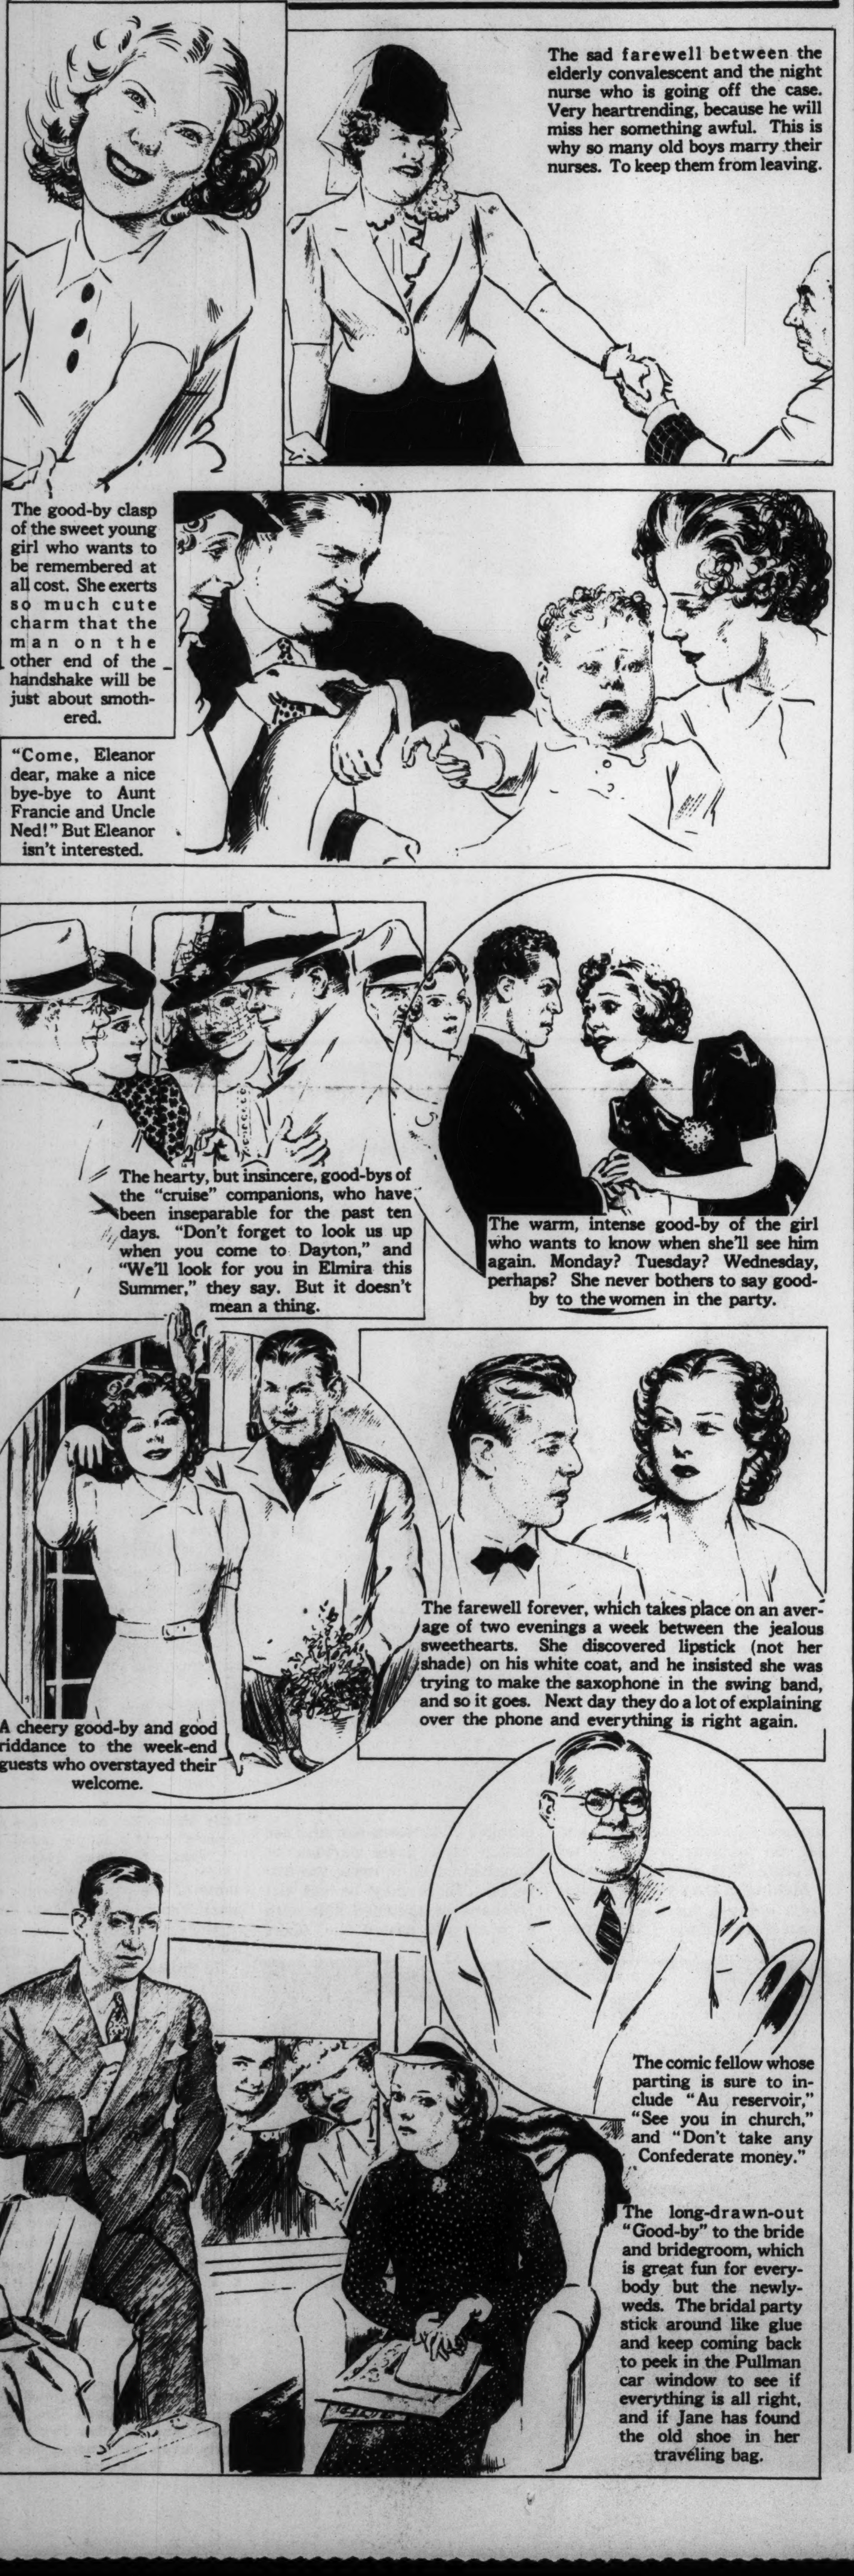
"GOOD-BY!"

By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1938, by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.



The sad farewell between the elderly convalescent and the night nurse who is going off the case. Very heartrending, because he will miss her something awful. This is why so many old boys marry their nurses. To keep them from leaving.

The good-by clasp of the sweet young girl who wants to be remembered at all cost. She exerts so much cute charm that the man on the other end of the handshake will be just about smothered.

"Come, Eleanor dear, make a nice bye-bye to Aunt Francie and Uncle Ned!" But Eleanor isn't interested.

The hearty, but insincere, good-bys of the "cruise" companions, who have been inseparable for the past ten days. "Don't forget to look us up when you come to Dayton," and "We'll look for you in Elmira this Summer," they say. But it doesn't mean a thing.

The warm, intense good-by of the girl who wants to know when she'll see him again. Monday? Tuesday? Wednesday, perhaps? She never bothers to say good-by to the women in the party.

The farewell forever, which takes place on an average of two evenings a week between the jealous sweethearts. She discovered lipstick (not her shade) on his white coat, and he insisted she was trying to make the saxophone in the swing band, and so it goes. Next day they do a lot of explaining over the phone and everything is right again.

A cheery good-by and good riddance to the week-end guests who overstayed their welcome.

The comic fellow whose parting is sure to include "Au reservoir," "See you in church," and "Don't take any Confederate money."

The long-drawn-out "Good-by" to the bride and bridegroom, which is great fun for everybody but the newlyweds. The bridal party stick around like glue and keep coming back to peek in the Pullman car window to see if everything is all right, and if Jane has found the old shoe in her traveling bag.

Flying Target Practice

Civilian Has Lesson in "War"

By WAYNE THOMIS

A Douglas O-38 observation plane over the firing range. The 108th observation squadron of the National Guard has six of these two-place open biplanes. (Tribune photos.)

"RRRRRRRRRIP" came the muffled explosions of the machine gun.

From the observer's cockpit I could see over the pilot's head. I lined up the gun sights and watched sand spout as lead and tracer bullets poured into the embankment. We were in a shallow dive and very low. The gun's stutter ceased. The 600-horsepower engine began rumbling comfortably and the machine lifted into a climb as we flashed across the beach and out over the cold blue waters of the lake.

"Terrible! Lousy!" came the voice of the pilot and machine gunner—Lieut. William Westlake—through the interphone from the front cockpit. "Don't think any of 'em went near the target."

The left wings dipped as we swept around in a turn toward shore and Camp Logan's barracks and flagpole. Headed inland, we could see another National Guard plane diving at the butts. No sound of firing came through our motor's noise, but we saw the plane stiffen as though the pilot were holding it steady while shooting. Then it, too, was past the targets and pulling up in a steep climbing turn.

Now we were in position for another dive. Westlake banked vertically, then weaved and twisted the big biplane to get his sights on the 36-inch solid black bull's-eye which looked so small from where we were beginning our "pass." The gun on the Douglas O-38 was rigidly mounted to fire through the propeller. The pilot aimed the ship to point the gun and was forced to hold the craft in an absolutely straight line to make his firing accurate.

The pilot-machine gunner's view of targets at approximately the moment he ceases firing. The plane is only about ten feet off the ground, 300 yards from the targets.

• • •

This was our fourth dive. On the first two Westlake held his fire in order to gauge the slight cross wind and to get a close look at the bull's-eye. This time he was firing again. A whole package of Chinese fire crackers exploding—that's what it sounds like, I thought. Then, before we'd finished the dive, there was silence. I could see Westlake fumbling with the cocking handle on the machine gun.

"Calling PV-7, Lieutenant Westlake to PV-7," his voice came suddenly on the plane's transmitter. "My gun's jammed. Going back to Waukegan airport to have the armorer look at it."

"Oooooo-kay, Bill," came the drawn-out reply from the officer controling the firing from the squadron radio trailer on the ground near the butts.

But back on the airport—temporary base for the target practice—the armorer reported it was not a jammed gun. We'd emptied an entire belt of eighty rounds.

"Eighty!" I gasped. "Sounded like twenty. I thought I'd counted, too."

Maj. C. A. McElvain strolled over. The major, commanding officer of the outfit—108th observation squadron, 33d division aviation, Illinois National Guard, shook his head.

"They come too fast to count," he drawled gently. "These Browning guns fire very rapidly, twelve hundred a minute. That's twenty a second. If it's a short burst, though, you sometimes can count your memory of the shots."

While the armorer stripped away the cowling over the gun to insert a fresh belt the major talked about his squadron's guns and ammunition.

"We get special cartridges," he explained, "for synchronized machine gun use only. If found unsatisfactory they are returned to the ordnance depot."

He pointed toward a wooden box filled with cardboard cartons of fresh, shining brass shells. Several men under Capt. R. C. Kuhn, squadron armorer, were fabricating new belts of cartridges. The belts consisted of metal links, each of which held one cartridge and a connection for a neighboring link. As the shells are fired the links fall away and are ejected with the spent cartridge case. The belts are built up one link and one cartridge at a time.

"The guns are special aircraft weapons, air-cooled and lighter than ground machine guns," the major continued. "They are very finely machined and fitted, which makes it possible to fire them just about twice as fast as the more rugged Browning gun issued to ground troops.

"Sure it shoots through the propeller. There's an electric timing gear which fires the gun just after one blade of the propeller has cleared the muzzle. The slug is out of the barrel and on its way before the other blade comes around."

These guns fire so rapidly that the pilots are unable to hold their firing to short bursts. So it has become the practice to put the belts together with one dummy shell after each ten live cartridges. The gun rips off the ten and then stops when the dummy is thrown into the breech. The pilot recocks the gun, ejecting the dummy, when ready to fire another burst of ten.

The schedule for firing at the ground targets calls for a maximum of ten dives by each pilot. Two targets are assigned to each flyer. And the pilots when firing for record have four "phases" on each target. Two of these are made from left turns into the dive and two from right. The firing is at alternate targets. While the airplane is diving on one target the ground crew counts the hits on the other. Since there are eight available butts at Camp Logan, two planes fire together. While one is diving on the targets the other is climbing away and maneuvering into position to dive.

"What was your score, Bill?" demanded other pilots of the squadron when we returned from our scheduled firing.

"I'm not telling," he grinned back. "This was practice. I'm not going to fire for record till I've had more practice."

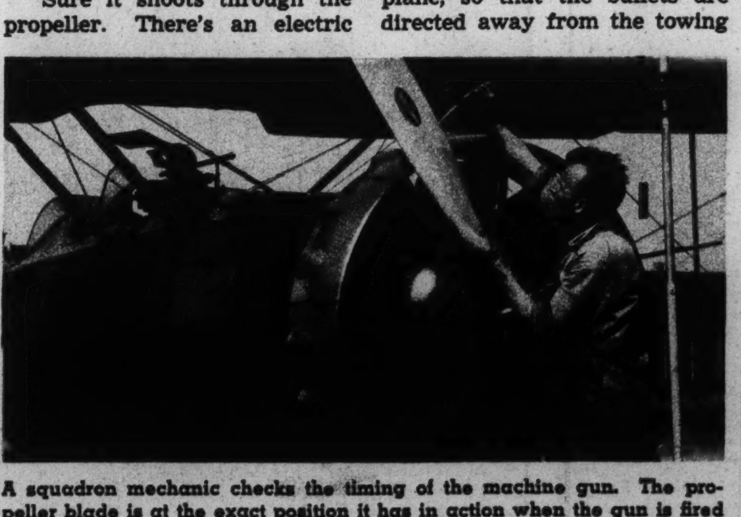
Major McElvain, who had arranged for me, a civilian, to fly as a passenger with his squadron pilots on the shoot, assured me there was even more sport in firing at the sleeve target which is towed at ninety miles an hour. One squadron plane tows the target at the end of a 1,000-foot cable at a height of 3,000 feet. Other pilots then climb up and dive at the sleeve, passing as close to it as possible and firing for the fraction of a second that it whisks across in front of them.

The dive is about 90 degrees across the course of the tow plane, so that the bullets are directed away from the towing ship. In other words, if the target is being towed due north the firing plane must dive either due east or due west.



A squadron mechanic checks the timing of the machine gun. The propeller blade is at the exact position it has in action when the gun is fired—just past the line of the bullet's flight. The light-weight machine gun can be seen by the front cockpit.

Weeks later the major himself demonstrated to me. We met the tow plane at 3,000 feet and three miles out over the lake. Major McElvain slid in close to the sleeve, looked it over, and then climbed ahead and above it. Finding the position he desired, he half rolled into a dive at the tow cable well ahead of the target and with his plane pointed away from the shore.

The cable began to grow in the sights. We were upon it. Just as I thought we would foul it with our propeller the sleeve flashed past and the gun stuttered briefly. Speed picked up in our dive was used to climb back into position. On the next dive the major held his fire, for the jacketed bullets otherwise would have pounded into one of the city's pumping stations there below us.

From the right, from the left, diving and zooming toward the target, we continued the fascinating game for half an hour. Perfect timing was required. The method was to dive as close to the sleeve as possible, thus to make certain your burst went into it.

A member of the ground crew inserts a new belt of cartridges.

Later I learned that one pilot had dived into a sleeve. It lodged in one wing, but he managed to land safely. The impact, of course, snapped the tow line.

In its winter course the squadron made some of the highest target scores ever recorded by pilots in the United States. Lieut. R. B. Daniels scored 824 hits out of a possible 1,000 while firing at the ground targets. Captain Kuhn, firing from observer's position at a sleeve target, made a score of 734 out of a possible 800. This is phenomenal shooting.

Height of Hair Fashion

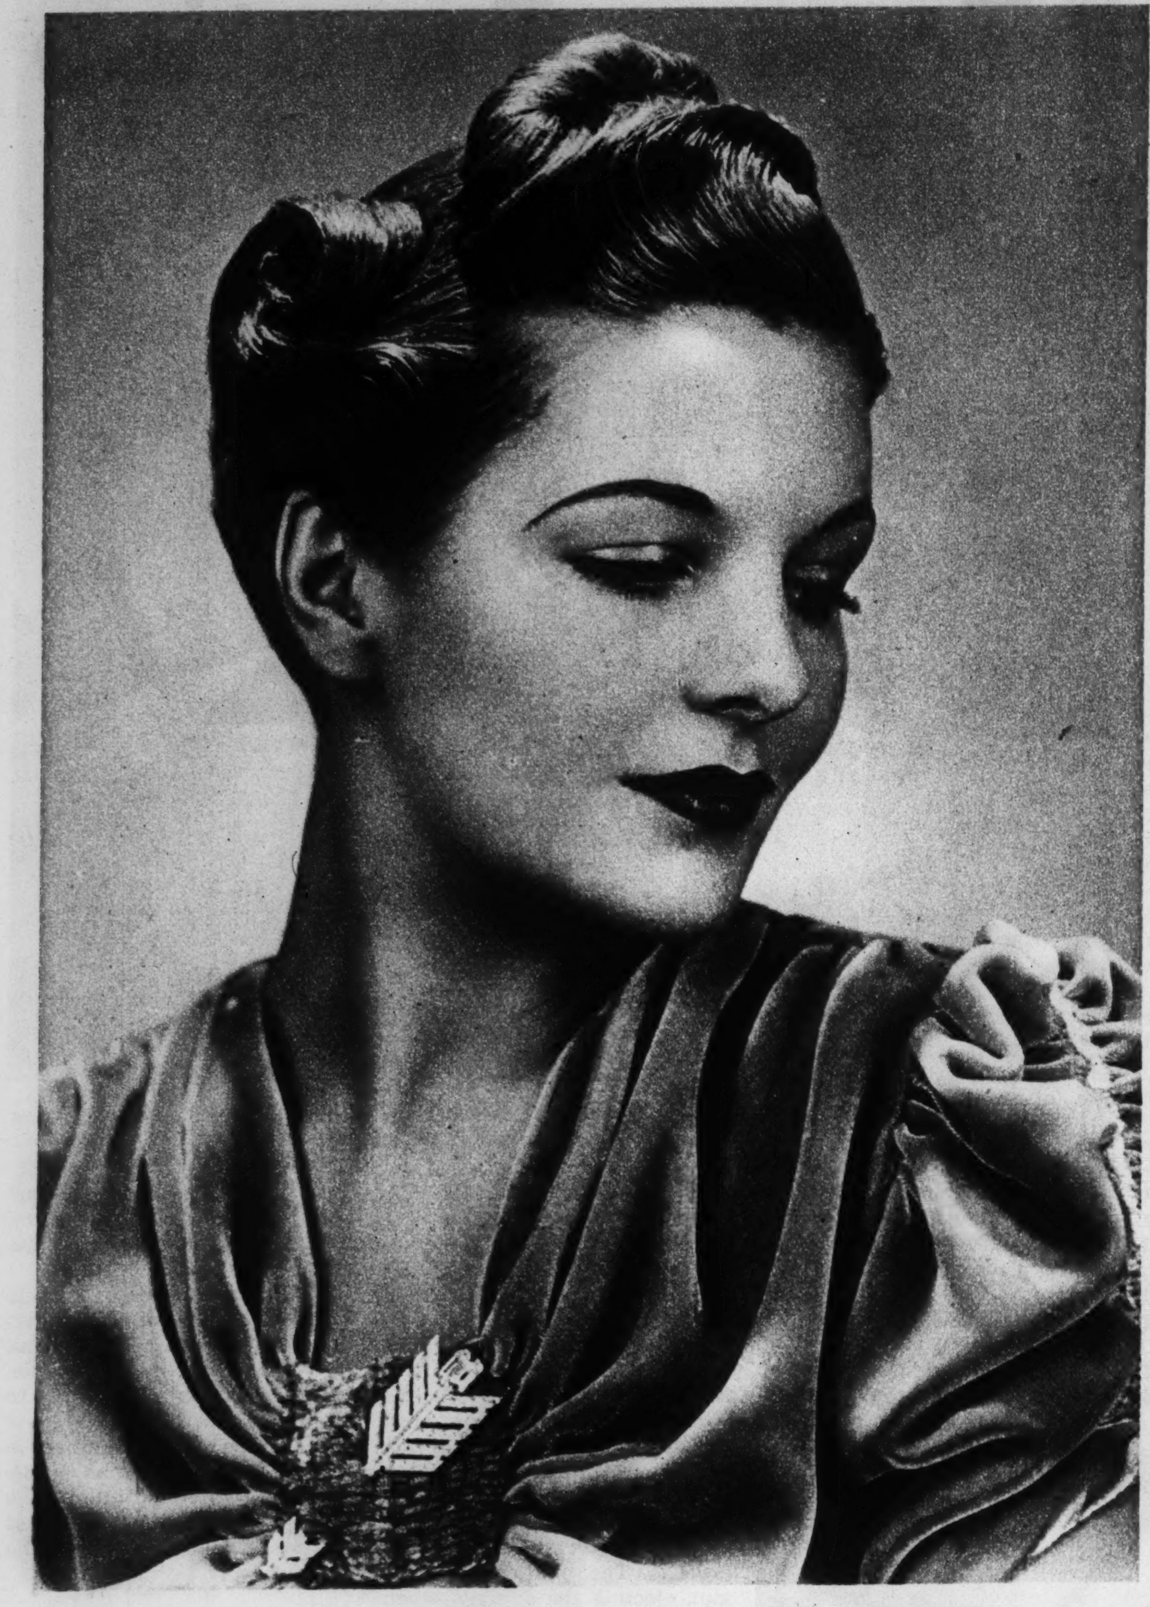
The Upswept Coiffure in Pictures

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

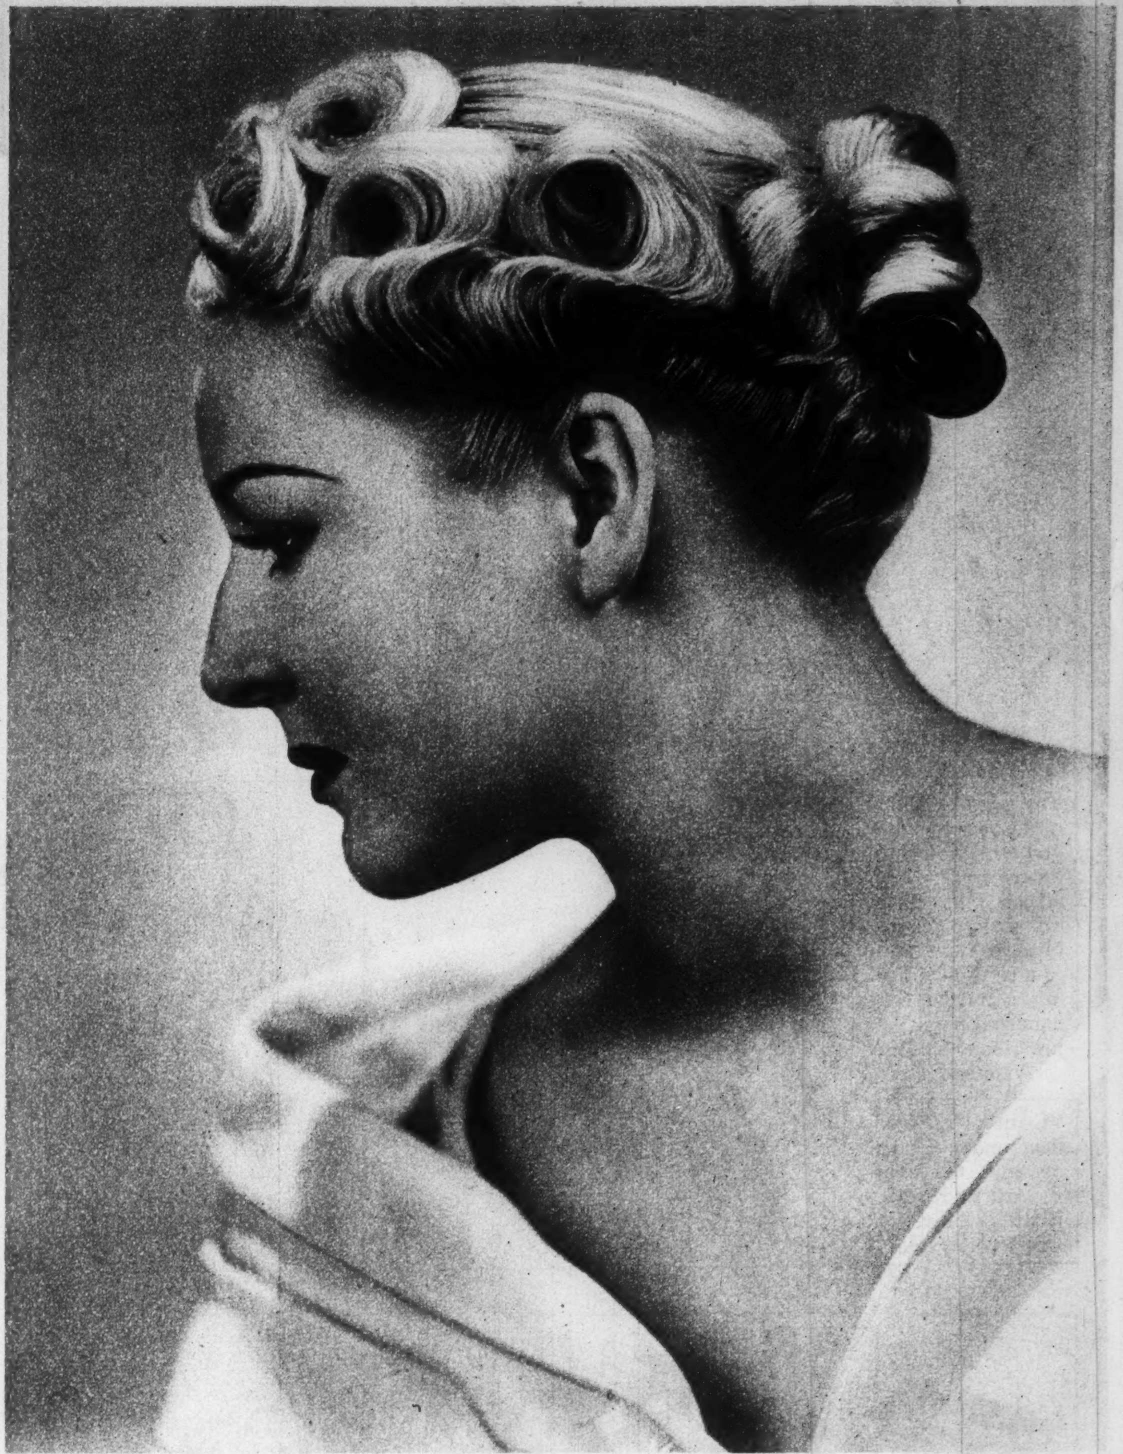
(Copyright: 1938: Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate.)

AT THIS moment, as your inquiring editor sees it, no one knows for certain how assured is the adoption or rejection of the upswept coiffure. My own impression is that it will take on eventually, if not right away, during the summer months. There is a powerful lot of pressure behind the movement, with hairdressers and hatmakers in the lead. A new style is needed for several good reasons, the least of which is economic. And that same type of pressure has been known to launch a thousand other styles which women eventually have adopted wholesale.

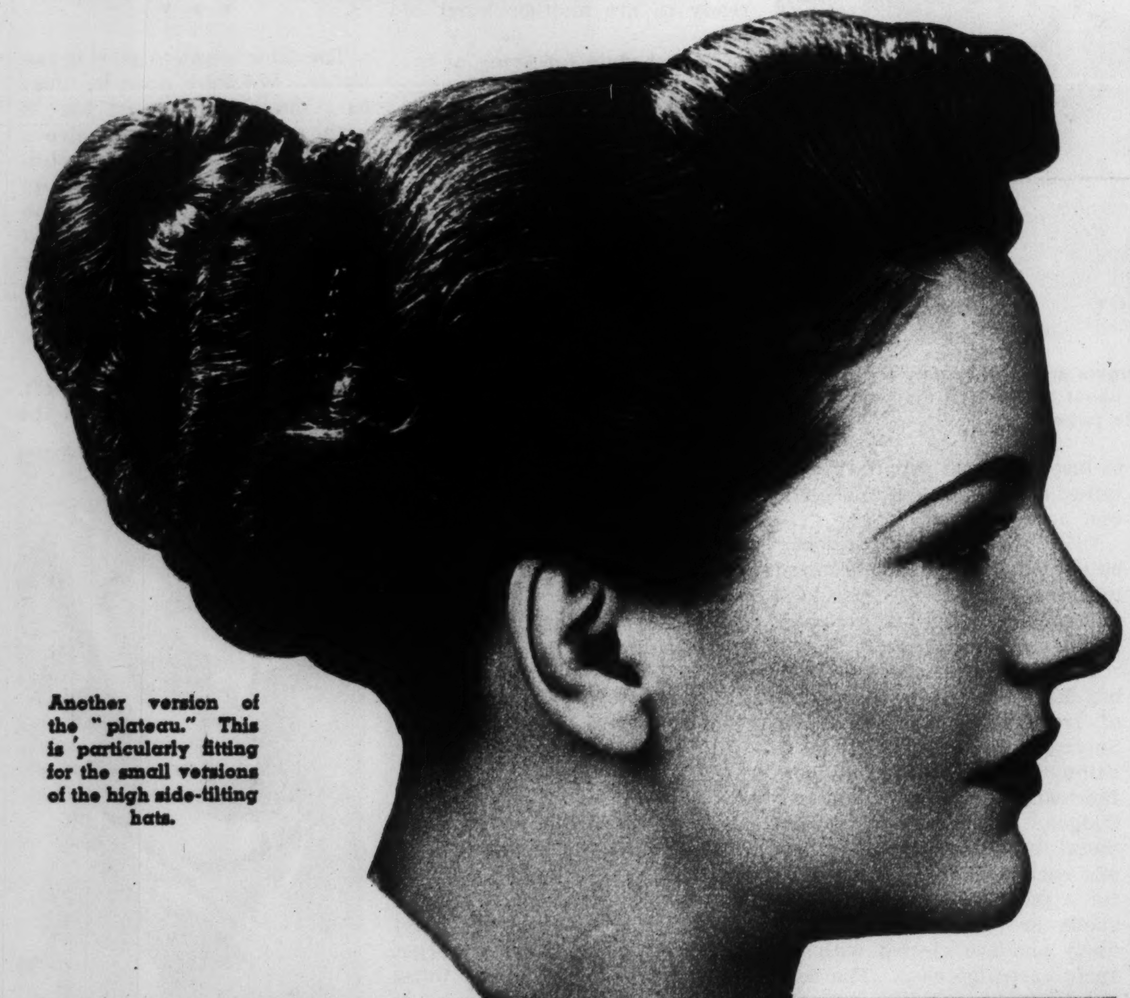
But we shall see what we shall see as the fall rolls around. In the interim I present herewith a few "best dressed" heads in the upswept manner shown at the May convention of the New York State Hairdressers and Cosmetologists. You might be trying them out on a vacation afternoon, a free Saturday or Sunday, if you are skilled with hands and comb. If not, you might want to let your hairdresser experiment with your head and see how you look the fine grown-up lady.



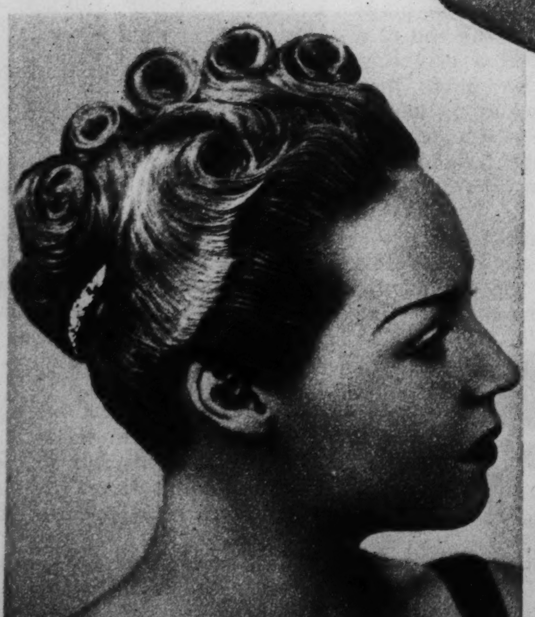
At left: "Venus de Milo"—appropriate daytime and evening. Hair should be shorter than last year—about ten inches on top, six on sides, fifteen at back.



At right: "Plateau profile"—inspired by Versailles period of Louis XIV., an increasingly important style trend.



Another version of the "plateau." This is particularly fitting for the small vetsions of the high side-tilting hats.



Italian renaissance inspired this coiffure. The small bar comb provides an accent at the back. Hair lengths same as for the "Venus de Milo."

The upswept styles won't permit stringy hair or a spotty neckline, so the use of various methods of removing hair becomes part of coiffure routine.

A Party for Children

By MARY MEADE

THE SMALL host or hostess takes much more delight in a party he has planned for himself than in one planned entirely by older folks. It's fun to be allowed to make the ice cream or to help devise favors like the ones pictured here. This ice cream is simple even for a child to make. And it's very good and very healthful.

VANILLA ICE CREAM
(Made in refrigerator tray)

⅔ cup sweetened condensed milk
½ cup water
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 cup whipping cream

Blend condensed milk, water, and vanilla very thoroughly. Chill. Whip cream to a custard-like consistency and fold into the chilled mixture. Pour into freezing tray. When cream is about half frozen remove from refrigerator, scrape from sides and bottom of pan, and beat until smooth but not until melted. Smooth out and replace in freezing unit until firm. Serves six.

This is the freezer method:

VANILLA ICE CREAM
(Made in freezer)

1⅓ cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
2 cups thin cream
1 cup cold water
1 tablespoon vanilla

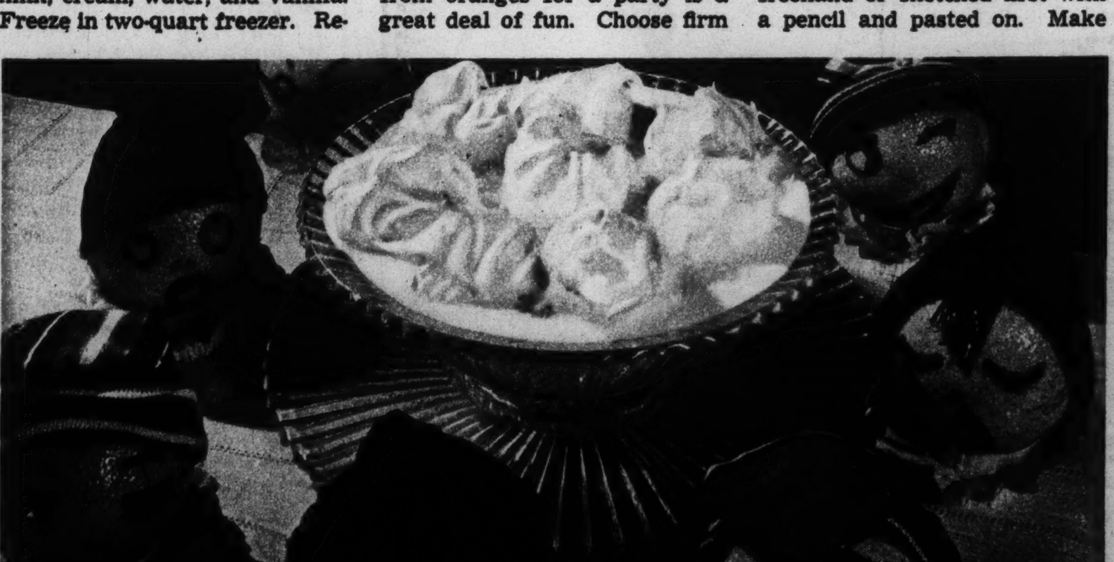
Thoroughly blend condensed milk, cream, water, and vanilla. Freeze in two-quart freezer. Remove dasher and pack in ice and salt for an hour or more after freezing. This makes 1¼ quarts.

Making dwarfs or pirates from oranges for a party is a great deal of fun. Choose firm oranges of uniform size and use Scotch tape, passe partout, or gummed labels to make the features. These may be cut out freehand or sketched first with a pencil and pasted on. Make some of the mouths happy and some "sour puss." Make some of the eyes bashful, some flirtatious, and others with goggles.

To make hair cut a strip of the material and then snip the ends with scissors to give a fringed effect. Eyelashes may be made by fringing smaller pieces of material. After the features are all on brush each orange with a coat of clear shellac to make them permanent. Caps may be made of children's half socks, folded or tied into shape. For collars set oranges in frilled, and filled, nut cups.

In the picture at left seven dwarfs are grouped around a Snow White pudding, which is a kind of custard with sliced oranges and grated orange rind, piled high with a soft meringue. The vanilla ice cream would do quite as well.

Lady fingers and fresh berries give a party air to a simply made, rich vanilla ice cream dessert.



At left: If you use imagination perhaps you'll recognize Doc, Happy, Dopey, and the other dwarfs in the party favors surrounding this Snow White pudding.

Frequently, one of the services pictured on the left may save the cost of a new furnace. Parker VACUMATIC

New Jewel Case included with matched Pen and Pencil Sets at $8.50, $11.25, $12.75, $15

3,739 Graduates of '38 were asked by 73 college newspapers
"Which Pen would You prefer as a Gift?"

THEIR CHOICE TELLS YOU WHAT TO SELECT FOR Commencement
FOR Birthdays–Weddings
FOR "Au Revoir" Gifts
FOR Fathers' Day (June 19)
FOR All Anniversaries

To supply a reliable guide to purchasers of Graduation Gifts, 73 unbiased college newspapers recently polled 3,739 graduates in leading colleges from Coast to Coast and determined their No. 1 choice of pens.

To no one's surprise, the revolutionary Parker Vacumatic received almost as many votes as all other pens combined! Here are some of the reasons:

"Shows when to refill!" You see days ahead if the ink is running low, so it won't run dry.

"Double Ink Capacity!" Diaphragm Filler abolishes rubber ink sacs, piston pumps, etc.; hence, has room for 102% more ink than even our famous Duofold.

"World's Smartest Style!" Shimmering circlets of Pearl and Jet form a barrel gracefully slenderized for restful balance.

"Scratch-proof Point!" A Point wrought of Platinum and Solid Gold, tipped with flawless Osmiridium, twice as costly and far smoother writing than ordinary iridium.

So take the shortest route to any nearby pen counter today, and try this pedigreed Beauty. The smart ARROW clip identifies the genuine Parker Vacumatic.

LUCKY STRIKE

● WITNESSED STATEMENT SERIES:
Dewey Huffine Has Smoked Luckies for 20 Years

Tobacco's Highest Court Votes 2 to 1 for Luckies

Copyright 1938, The American Tobacco Company

Now You judge the evidence, Mr. and Mrs. Smoker... Luckies use the best tobacco and are gentlest on your throat.

1. SWORN RECORDS show the preference of independent tobacco experts like Dewey Huffine (above). These men are auctioneers, buyers and warehousemen. Among such experts, Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all other cigarettes put together.

2. MYRNA LOY, Clark Gable, Bette Davis, Lauritz Melchior, Lanny Ross and countless others, whose voices are their fortunes, have smoked Luckies for years. They find Luckies gentlest on their throats.

3. YOU WILL FIND Luckies gentlest on your throat, too. Here's why... the "Toasting" process takes out certain harsh throat irritants found in all tobacco. This makes Luckies a light smoke. Try them for a week, and see for yourself.
